Gov. Al Que, Congressman Arlan Stangeland, Sens. Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz, and state Rep. David Fjoslien, also attended this year's session. Students gave a written and oral evaluation of the seminar during their last day there.

Smoke Detector Installed At U of M Housing

There will be something new in every dormitory-room at the University of Minnesota this fall: a smoke detector.

More than 4,000 detectors will be installed in dormitory rooms and married-student housing on all university campuses before classes begin. The project will bring the university into compliance with a state regulation requiring detectors in dorms and other student housing by the first of the year, according to Joe Matusovic, facilities coordinator for the university housing office.

Two types of alarms are being installed, Matusovic said. Some rooms will be equipped with photo-cell alarms that react to smoke, white others will have ionization alarms that respond to heat.

"We have had alarms in the hallways and stairwells hooked into a central alarm system, but the detectors will sound only in the rooms," he said.

Matusovic estimated the cost of the alarms and installation at $250,000.

As students move in this fall, they will receive an information sheet about the smoke detectors, advising heavy smokers to open their windows. Students will also be informed of the penalty for tampering with the alarms.

"It is a misdemeanor and carries a $500 fine and-or 90 days in jail. Students also would risk getting hurt if they touched the wires in disconnecting the alarm," Matusovic said.

STEP UP AND TAKE A BOW, COOPERATIVES... for a job well done and worth doing.
Fifty million Americans can't be wrong. They're members of some 40,000 cooperatives across the nation—advocates of the cooperative way to provide themselves and their families with goods and services . . . and to help produce and market much of this country's quality foods and fiber.
Owned and operated by the people they serve, cooperatives efficiently and economically meet a broad range of needs—marketing farm products and obtaining farm supplies and services, credit, telephone and electric services, food, housing, health care and insurance.
Here, there, everywhere—in towns, cities, and countryside—big cooperatives and little cooperatives are busy serving members, their communities, and the public. They don't put on a flashy show; they're just GOOD FOR ALL AMERICANS.
They deserve a great big hand.

Charities Get Grant To Help Foster Parents

Dr. James J. Raun, executive director of Lutheran social service of Minnesota, has announced that the Northwest area foundation of St. Paul has made a three-year grant of 129,847 to a coalition made up of Catholic charities, Children's Home society of Minnesota, and Lutheran social service of Minnesota. Purpose of the grant is for a continuing education program for poster parents of infants.

Roger W. Toogood, executive director of Children's Home society, indicated that "the Minnesota department of public welfare has mandated that all foster parents receive a specific number of hours of education each year, but has not allocated any funds for this objective to be achieved."

Robert B. Miller, director of Seton center, the child welfare division of Catholic charities, said "for us to establish an educational program on our own would be prohibitively expensive, not to mention wasteful and inefficient."

Since the agencies could not find an educational program available for foster parents of infants, no funds to facilitate an educational opportunity of higher caliber, the agencies determined to cooperate in providing this training. The grant from the Northwest area foundation coupled with the resources of the agencies will now provide such an educational offering..

Catholic charities, Children's Home society, and Lutheran social service are private licensed agencies, which for years have provided quality human services to children and families to enable them to develop their potential for greater well-being. All three agencies for many years have had foster care programs designed primarily for the foster care of infants.

Training classes will be held monthly. The educational thrust in October will be "Sudden Infant Death Syndrome."

Northwest area foundation was established by Louis W. Hill Sr. who sought to create an institution that would "promote the public welfare" with private means. The foundation has chosen to concentrate on arts and humanities, education, environmental and physical services, human services, medical sciences and health, and the social sciences. Grants totaling $3,846,264 were made in 1978.

Motor Vehicle Safe Place In Electric Storm

A motor vehicle is a relatively safe place to be during a lightning storm, but it's not a good place if a tornado is approaching, advises the automotive information council (AIC).

Some believe the rubber tires cause the vehicle to be insulated if struck, but the national weather service says it is the steel of the body which "fights" the lightning.

Lightning striking a car usually travels along the outer metal skin of the vehicle and then jumps to the ground, keeping the power from the occupants. However, they are warned not to touch interior metal parts during the storm and to avoid convertibles.

Contacted about what to do in the event of severe weather, the weather service also suggested that during a lightning storm those who are outside should get inside a vehicle or a building. Avoid getting near metal fences and other metal objects, stay away from trees and do not remain in or on the water.

For tornadoes, the weather service warns that if you try to outrun one it could be the last race you'll be in.

Fleeing a tornado in a car could be fatal unless you're in open, flat country, which will permit you to drive in any direction at high speed, but if there's even a slight doubt about the funnel's speed and direction, don't take the chance.

Instead, if you're in a vehicle when a tornado approaches, get out and take shelter in a well-constructed building. If none is nearby, lie in a ditch, culvert or other low spot until the twister passes. Avoid small buildings which can get picked up by the high winds.

Remember, says AIC, stay in or get in a car during lightning and out during a tornado.

It takes 18 minutes to complete a 20-mile trip at 65 miles per hour. The same trip can be completed in 20 minutes at 60 mph and in 22 minutes at 55 mph. You save only four minutes by going 65 mph instead of 55 mph, but you increase fuel consumption by two miles per gallon and double the chance of being killed in an auto crash. The Minnesota safety council reminds everyone to drive 55 mph — it makes sense.

Proposes Bill To Expedite Energy Tasks

Concerned that an agency established to cut red tape on energy projects may become "just another layer of bureaucracy," Senator Dave Durenberger has cosponsored a bill to expedite new energy projects without jeopardizing the environment. The bill creates an energy mobilization board that will have the authority to make quick and prudent decisions on new projects.

"The energy mobilization boards that have been proposed in Congress so far are inadequate," Durenberger said. "The House version gives the board sweeping power to circumvent environmental laws. The Senate version creates more bureaucracy without clearly defining procedures or allowing for involvement in the decision-making process by local government."

Durenberger said an effective energy mobilization board is needed "to wade through the bureaucracy to expedite the necessary energy projects. However, the board can't exist only to go around present law at the expense of the environment. And, it has to be something more than just a quicker way for the federal government to say 'no' to energy projects."

Durenberger met representatives of environmental groups, energy industries and Minnesota government agencies to develop the points he negotiated into the bill. At Durenberger's urging, the bill will require a single state-federal environmental impact statement (EIS), rather than separate studies by each unit of government. Durenberger also favors greater participation by the public before an EIS is approved.

"The bill establishes a solid framework for an energy mobilization board, but some more modifications are necessary," Durenburger said. The senator said he wanted more public and industry involvement in the procedure and urged that a specific process be established for making decisions on energy projects that affect more than one state. "We need a procedure to get the states together on energy decisions. At the same time we have to protect the interests of each state," Durenberger said.

The bill was introduced by Senators Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) and Edmund Muskie (D-Main).

Suggest Areas To View Trees Changing Color

Motirists looking for fall color should find the North Shore area of Minnesota to still be very colorful the first weekend in October, according to Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

Yellows and reds of autumn are also starting to appear in the central portions of Minnesota north of Alexandria and should be peaking about the first weekend in October, predicted Minnesota AAA spokeswoman Diane Nelsen. "However, heavy rains or high winds could shorten ideal displays to a few days," she added.

"The number of routes for viewing fall colors is almost endless, but to really enjoy the splendor of fall, take side trips off the main highways and take it easy on the gas pedal. You'll not only enjoy the scenery more, but you'll be safer and save gas," said Nelsen.

For example, highway 61 along the North Shore of Lake Superior is justifiably famous, but also wander along the byways off highway 61 in the Schroeder-Lutsen-Tofte area. Here you'll find the bright reds of maples mixed with the yellows and oranges of white birch and poplars and the yellow-red-purple of the tall mountain maple shrubs and the brilliant red berries of mountain ash.

Another recommended route in the northern section of the state is the Echo trail (highway 116) from Ely to just north of Buyck. Here the predominent colors are the yellows of birches and aspens set against the blue-black of spruce and the greens of balsam and red pine (with occasional white and scotchpine, too).

Central portion of Minnesota also has a number of excellent fall color drives: the Tamarac National wildlife refuge; the Smokey Hills state forest; Itasca state park; highway 34 from Detroit Lakes to Walker; highway 46 from Squaw Lake to Deer River- highway 38 from Marcell to Grand Rapids; highway 200 from Jacobson to Walker and highway 4 from Lake George to just east of Park Rapids. Along these routes the flaming red maples strike a sharp contrast against the brillance of sun-bright birch and aspen and the mustard of turning tamarack.

Minnesota tourism bureau is also helping fall color seekers by publishing a colorful map showing 40 driving tours. They also have a fall color reporting service that's updated weekly. To request a copy of the map or for current color information call 612-296-5029 in the metropolitan area or toll-free 1-800-652-9747 Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mail requests can be sent to the Minnesota tourist information center, 480 Cedar St., Box 702, St. Paul, MN 55101. The maps can also be picked up at any AAA office.

"Government statistics indicate as many as 40 million people may be exposed to noise levels that could be harmful, and that most of these individuals are not aware of the hazard.

Three Lincoln Students Get Merit Citation

will continue in the 1980 competition for Merit scholarships — each has shown exceptional academic promise.

A spokesman for NMSC, which conducts the Merit program, stated that "the high performance that is required to be designated a commended student in the Merit program is an attainment deserving of public recognition. The nation as well as each of these students will be benefited by the continued educational and personal development of their talents."

In an effort to increase opportunities for college admission and financial aid, NMSC offered the high-performing commended students a service in which they could be identified and referred to two higher education institutions of their choice.

"It is hoped that recognition of these students by the Merit program will serve as an encouragement to able youth throughout the nation, and that attention they receive from colleges will help them to obtain whatever information and assistance they may need to pursue their educational plans," Hamerlinck said.

Supt. Corliss said the administration and board will be sure the public has available all factual information as it relates to whatever question is placed on a bond issue ballot. Such information would include projected enrollment, educational philosophy of the district, costs involved and what would be accomplished by approval of the project.

He noted that the board considering construction or remodeling projects must take into consideration not only the long range development of the district and community but such things as utilities, streets, assessments, easements, boundaries, land topography and soil conditions, traffic patterns, zoning, other potential uses of property, total costs and public opinion.

STRONG WINDS SATURDAY were not bad enough to prevent people from attending and participating the Middle River goose festival. Regular yearly activity included bed racing where teams tested their running ability against competitors. More photos from the festival will be in Wednesday's Times.

Popularity Of Mopeds Rises In Minnesota

Moped registrations in the state have more than doubled since last year, according to figures released by the Minnesota department of public safety.

The driver and vehicle services division of the dpeartment reports that, by the end of July of this year, more than 5,000 mopeds were registered. Last year's registrations were approximately 2,000.

"There's no doubt that more Minnesotans are turning to the moped because of the high cost of gasoline," said John P. Sopsic, commissioner of the department.

He pointed out that the moped is a safe means of transportation if drivers are aware of potential hazards of operation.

"Drivers should know that, with a few exceptions, mopeds are subject to bicycle laws," Sopsic said.

This means that drivers must travelin the right side of the lane and may not travel on freeways. Bicycle driving practices, including signalling must be used.

Exception for application of bicycle laws is that mopeds may not use sidewalks or bicycle paths. Also, a moped operator who does not have a valid driver license must take a written and skills test at a driver examining station to receive a permit. Operators age 15 through 17, must have the written consent of their parents, and all mopeds must be registered with driver and vehicle services.

'Moped drivers, as well as bicyclists and motorcyclists, should drive defensively," the commissioner said. "And they should do everything they can to increase their visibility. . . wear bright clothes, and include reflective strips ontheir clothes and equipment."

Sopsic also recommended that moped drivers wear helmets and use their headlights during the day.

The commissioner also said operators should remember that the moped is a low speed vehicle and not try to compete with faster traffic. They should avoid sudden movements, keep a safe distance from the vehicle ahead, be concerned with maintenance of the vehicle, avoid riding in bad weather and never hand-carry anything when driving.

"For moped safety," Sopsic said, "the new operator should know the capabilities and limitations of the vehicle, be aware of road hazards, choose the right equipment, drive defensively and be aware of weather hazards."

Welfare Funds To Treat Child Abuse Offered

Funds to develop innovative programs to identify, prevent and treat child abuse and neglect are now available from the Minnesota department of public welfare.

Private or public non-profit organizations may apply for the grants, which range from $5,000 to $40,000. Proposals must encourage inter-agency cooperation. Grant money, totalling $200,000, was appropriated by the 1979 Minnesota state legislature.

Applications, which must be submitted by November 2, may be obtained from Paul Spears, child protective services, social service division, Minnesota Department of Public Welfare, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155

If a car now averages 15 mpg and is driven 20,000 miles per year, the owner could save almost $400 in fuel costs by driving 55 mph instead of 70 mph. If the car is now getting 20 mpg, that savings could be almost $200. Minnesota safety council reminds that driving 55 mph makes sense — and more cents.

State Eighth In Production Of Red Meats

Minnesota's commercial production of red meats during the first seven months of 1979 has been estimated at 950.9-million pounds, eighth highest in the nation, Agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported today.

That was enough beef, veal, pork, lamb, and mutton to satisfy the red meat appetites of over 9-million American consumers.

January-July commercial livestock slaughter and red meats production estimates for Minnesota also indicated that the gross marketing receipts of livestock farmers for that volume was nearly $781-million.

"Consumers should note that the livestock farmer's share amounted to slightly over 82 cents a pound for Minnesota's red meats production during the first seven months this year. Average prices per pound for that period paid to Minnesota farmers for their live red meat animals were 60.3 cents for beef cattle, 83.7 cents for veal calves, 45.7 cents for hogs, and 69.6 cents for lambs," Commissioner Seetin said.

State-Federal crop and livestock reporting service statistics show that it required 1.47-billion pounds, live weight of red meat animals that were commercially slaughtered in Minnesota, to produce the 950.9-million pounds of actual meats. Nationally, the meat yields from the respective livestock commercially slaughtered have averaged over 59 per cent for beef cattle and calves, over 71 per cent for hogs and over 50 per cent for lambs and sheep.

Based on livestock slaughter data, Minnesota's beef production continues about 15 per cent below last year, veal production 30 per cent below last year, while pork production is up by 7 per cent and lamb-mutton production is higher by five per cent, compared to the first seven months of 1978.

Gross farm values of the Minnesota livestock slaughter through July this year are cattle $429.3-million, hogs $338.8-million, lambs and sheep $12.2-million, and calves $541,000.

Expect Additive To Cut Costs For Bridges

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) is performance testing new concrete additives that could save more than $500,000 a year in bridge construction, according to commissioner Richard Braun.

The additives, called super water reducers or plasticizers, will save energy and make bridge construction more efficient, Braun said. Super water reducers allow concrete to made with less water and to flow more easily. That means large concrete units, like girders seven to eight feet deep used in bridges, can be more easily formed and more quickly cured. These additives cut curing time to less than a day. Normally curing takes three to four days at 120 F.

That means up to 52 million BTUs of energy per girder could be saved, Braun said. This would be most noticable in winter because maintaining 120 F for several days requires extensive energy.

With curing time reduced, pre-cast units like bridge girders can be made faster, he said. This results in lower costs and better use of bridge construction crew time due to a steadier supply of girders to erect.

"Performance testing is only one aspect of our continuing program of research to reduce transportation costs and make operations more efficient," Braun said.

Why Tell If Nobody Wants To Listen

One of our farm friends sent us the following clipping from a farm trade publication, the "National Hog Farmer":

Tom Duesler, vp of Oscar Mayer, made a point that bears repeating, in a presentation during the National Feeder Pig Show.

After setting the audience up, by asking how many feel agriculture does a good job of telling consumers about the process of putting food on supermarket shelves and the problems involved (few did) and asking how many feel agriculture should do a better job (many hands were raised), Duesler suggested that perhaps that kind of effort really isn't important.

After asking how many in the audience owned tractors, he asked one of those with his hand up what kind of tractor he owned. He had five. What kind of tractor tires did he have?—both Goodyear and Firestone.

"There's a consumer, a consumer of tractor tires," Duesler said, and asked the tractor tire consumer:

"Did you know that there have been major disease outbreaks in the rubber trees in South America?"

The tractor tire consumer replied: "No".

"Do you care?"

"Not much."

"Did you know that the people who work on those rubber plantations only make 40 cents an hour and work 16 hours a day?"

"No."

"Does that bother you?"

The consumer was noncommittal.

"Well, if you aren't concerned about those things, what is important to you as a tractor tire consumer?"

"How much they cost and how long they'll last," was the reply.

"That's the same attitude the housewife has about your product and your problems," Duesler declared. "All she cares about is what it costs and what it will do for her family, and she doesn't care about your problems or whether you made a profit."

There's a lesson there for those who think agriculture needs to do a better job of telling the consumer about how food is produced.

Look At The Record

Following is from the Kossuth County Advance:

One of the older games in politics is if you can't think of anything nasty to say about the president, find something to say about his wife.

Rosalynn Carter is the current victim of this urge.

Thinking back, Betty Ford talked too much about drugs and breast cancer and sleeping in the same bed with her husband. Pat Nixon was a yes woman to her husband and her smile was a bit frozen. Lady Bird Johnson, with that peculiar name, made money by the basket after her husband became president with TV stations and what not. Jackie Kennedy was a spoiled little rich girl but very photogenic, which got her in a lot of pictures. Mamie Eisenhower was not a beauty but had facials and mud packs at an Arizona beauty resort. Eleanor Roosevelt was toothy and homely and talked too much in many nationwide trips.

There was one president who escaped this. It was Buchanan, who was a bachelor.

Holding no briefs for the current administration as to its ability, but let's remember that it was only a short time ago that columnists were telling the president he had to fire a bunch of people or go down the drain in 1980.

So the President got rid of a few and what happened? The cabinet shuffle opened up a whole new door of speculation by columnists and gave a host of political foes fresh meat. Joseph Califano, who had been vigorously attacked from all quarters before his ouster became something of a saint afterward.

Cabinet changes are nothing new. Truman had four secretaries of defense and Eisenhower had three as did Nixon. Roosevelt had four attorney generals, Truman had three, Nixon had four, and if you want to go way back Grant had five.

Most presidents have had at least two of everything in most of the cabinet jobs.

Anything a president does, a trip to Kentucky or a steamboat ride, lays him open to criticism, and if he is down in the polls he will fare exceptionally bad.

Despite all of this, there seems to be no lack of candidates for the job, as we are finding out.

U.S. Senator

Rudy Boschwitz

reports to Minnesota

President Carter's hiatus on the wooded slopes of Camp David went unshared with the presence of even one farmer.

Perhaps that's why his subsequent energy program conspicuously and completely overlooks one of the most practical and least costly ways of partially solving our energy problem — the small-scale production of alternate fuels from farm and forest products.

He proposes spending $88 billion for a synthetic fuel program, a grandiose plan that would produce — at best — only two-million barrels a day by 1990. That's merely an eighth of our present yearly consumption.

In contrast, I have long supported and encouraged the development of small, on-farm and "in-the-garage" projects which require far less government expenditure and for which much of the technology is already available and needs only some helping coordination from the government to be brought to fruition.

My frequent trips to Minnesota have strengthened my thinking on the practicality of this approach. People back home constantly approach me to talk about their projects and about the assistance they need now to get these programs to the full production and, possibly, marketing stage.

That's why I was particularly pleased this week to co-sponsor and introduce the Agricultural, Forestry, and Rural Energy Act of 1979. Its goal is to reduce — by 50 per cent — the petroleum and natural gas used by rural residents and communities over the next 20 years.

This Act does not propose the establishment of any new and strangulating government agencies to accomplish its goal. Nor does it require the expenditure of 88 billion dollars.

Instead, the Rural Energy Act will concentrate on bringing together the research and technology already available to the people who can and want to use it. . . on continuing and disseminating that research. . . on overcoming the bureaucratic tangles and obsolete laws that presently cripple the development of fuels from farm and forest products. . . on providing the financial aid through loans that the small entrepeneur needs to finance his project.

Specifically, the Act includes the following provisions:

+ naming of the Department of Agriculture as the coordinating federal agency for the program of fuel production from farm and forest products;

+ funding applied research programs at states' agricultural experiment stations;

+ making available $250 million in direct loans and guaranteeing a billion dollars of other loans for on-farm and commercial energy projects with one-fourth of that money set aside for on-farm and small scale projects;

+ establishing cost-share programs for owners of nonindustrial forest land to provide financing for forest improvement practices that increase the production of wood for energy.

The value of the Act comes in the utilization of the brains and initiative of the hundreds of Minnesotans and their counterparts throughout the country who already have projects underway and in the involvement of government only to help the financing and research rather than letting them take over the marketing and ownership phases.

Especially important, the Act would ensure increased domestic energy production almost immediately and with federal expenditures of only a tiny proportion of those called for by Carter.

This whole approach simply makes a lot more sense.

Bicycle Seats For Child Must Meet Standards

Bicycle infant seats are legal in Minnesota as long as them comply with state safety standards required by law.

"People do not realize how hazardous these seats can be. Most bicycles are designed to carry only one person. When more than one person is riding the same bicycle, the balance, braking and steering will be affected," said John P. Sposic, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

A proper child seat must be chosen with care. If the seat it to be attached to the bicycle, it must be equipped with a harness to hold the child securely, and leg shields must be provided to prevent the youngster's feet from hitting the wheel spokes. Backpack style carriers also meet state requirements but are recommended for smaller children.

The seat itself should be sturdily constructed and well padded to protect the child if the bike should hit a bump. Check the nuts and bolts holding the seat because they could have been jarred loose, causing the seat to slip off of the bicycle and injure the child.

If the seat if mounted in the front, steering will become more difficult because of the added weight, and because the child may lean to one side or grap the handlebars. Back mounted seats also present problems because the center of gravity is concentrated in the back, which makes the front wheel very light.

Sopsic urged parents to ride on the right side of the road, watch over traffic, obey all bicycle riding rules and be extremely cautious.

Small Business Plan Approved For Minnesota

Governor Al Quie announced recently that Minnesota has been selected as one of five states nationally to develop a small business assistance program funded in part by the small business administration (SBA). A $150,000 U.S. SBA contract has been awarded to establish a statewide network of small business development centers in Minnesota aimed at providing close direct access to business management help for small business people.

Satellite business centers will be located at St. Cloud state university, Bemidji state university, the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Mankato state university, the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis and Duluth, Moorhead state university, Southwest state university and Winona state university. Through the use of matching funds from the participating institutions, more than $600,000 will be invested in the program.

Minnesota department of economic development will provide organization and administrative services to the nine satellite small business assistance centers. State agency will coordinate the program and handle public information, financial accounting and reporting and operations supervision through its bureau of business and community development.

"We are very proud to have Minnesota singled out for this experimental program," said Commissioner David Printy of the Minnesota department of economic development. "It gives our agency an opportunity to try a new system of helping small business people. There have been many programs in the past that have had varying degrees of success. This statewide network will get to the grassroots and truly supply the help that small business people are asking for. We expect the program evaluation to show good results."

According to Dr. Andrew Nappi, director of research, development and community service for the college of business at St. Cloud university, who developed Minnesota's proposal to the SBA, the staffs of the satellite centers will help small businesses in dealing with a broad spectrum of marketing, insurance, accounting, personnel, investment decisions and management strategies. "We expect our business centers to become focal points for local small business people to find competent business advice," said Nappi. "There are more than 82,000 businesses in Minnesota and 98 per cent of them have under 100 employees. These businesses are important to our state's economy. We need an effective program of assistance to protect these jobs."

By funding local business centers, SBA is using federal dollars to leverage additional state resources, Paul Jansen, SBA district director for Minnesota, pointed out. "This leveraging of local resources is consistent with SBA's move from retailing to wholesaling its capabilities. Other examples of this trend would be SCORE-ACE counseling, SBI college internship programs and the bank guarantee loan program. These programs, including the new small business development centers, involve supportive cooperation between the public and private sectors."

Farm Bureau Comments On Grain Strike

"We are pleased that the Duluth-Superior grain millers' strike is over," states G.W. Hagaman, chief administrator-secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

"This untimely and prolonged work stoppage has impacted consumers and farmers alike. It is no exaggeration to say that both the non-farm sector and the farming community have sustained such staggering losses that it is unlikely they shall ever be recouped.

"Farm Bureau strongly believes in the right of free collective bargaining; it is very much a part of our private competitive economic system, and a strike can have valid objectives.

"However, it becomes an unhealthy situation when extended strikes of the kind that paralyzed Upper Midwest grain markets since late July are allowed to undermine, or threaten to undermine, the economy of a region or a state. While the strike may not have officially constituted a national emergency, or posed a threat to national security, health or safety, it deprived thousands of farmers — innocent third parties and helpless victims of the dispute — normal marketing conditions and billions of dollars," Hagaman said.

"On the strength of this, Farm Bureau supports legislation prohibiting strikes in vital public services such as grain handling and transportation, providing instead for mediation and binding arbitration if and when collective bargaining proves ineffective.

"Farm Bureau has long been in favor also of outlawing strikes that shut down the market for strategic goods at a critical time such as harvest. It is not uncommon for a farmer, under those circumstances, to lose an entire year's income," the Farm Bureau leader concluded.

Outlook For Technicians In Dentistry Good

Because of the expansion of dental prepayment plans and increasing awareness among younger and middle-aged people of the need for continuing oral health, the National association of dental laboratories (NADL) estimates there will be a need for an additional 3,000 technicians annually.

Most people are unaware of the commercial dental laboratory industry, yet all of us will probably utilize the services of a dental technician at some point in our lives.

A dental technician is the wizard behind your dentist — the person who makes the crowns, bridges, dentures, ceramic caps, partial dentures, dental prostheses and orthodontic devices the dentist uses to improve a patient's oral hygiene. A dental technician must at times be a chemist, a metallurgist, an architect, an engineer, an artist and a manufacturer—and most important, a craftsman.

Although the dental technican works directly with the dentist and never personally meets the patient, he or she enjoys a fulfilling and demanding job and has an excellent opportunity to fulfill the American dream of owning one's own business. There are an average of four employees per laboratory; however, dental laboratories can range in size from a one person owner-operator to large operations utilizing the services of hundreds of employees. And these laboratories are located all over the United State, from small towns with under 1,000 population to major metropolises.

Technician-trainees can follow two paths in learning the business — an apprenticeship with an established dental laboratory of enrollment in one of the 57 accredited two-year community college programs in 30 states. Quality training also is available through military service.

After formal training, several years of experience are necessary. National board of certification, estalished by NADL, provides continuing educational opportunity, allowing the technician to progress from the apprentice level to an intermediary stage, and into specialization, if desired. After completing the courses of education, the technician can qualify for certification by the board. Today, more than 10,000 dental technicians are certified.

Recreational Travel Rises In Popularity

Twenty-four million Americans use recreation vehicles (RVs) for family camping.

It's one of the main leisure-time activities that exploded into popularity over the past quarter century as Americans experienced a general increase in prosperity and a decrease in the work week. Camping was the recreation chosen by many families as the economical and healthy way to spend that additional leisure time.

As a recent federal study put it:

"Without question, the growth in the number of visits to federally administered recreation areas has been phenomenal. Between 1950 and 1975, recorded visits to the national forests, national parks and national wildlife refuges increased by more than 600 per cent.

"Attendance at corps of engineers lakes increased by more than 2,250 per cent."

Same report noted a parallel growth in sales and ownership of recreational vehicles, slowed perceptibly but temporarily by the 1973-74 energy crisis. Also noted was the proliferation of private campgrounds, many of them regional and national franchise operations.

"Commonly," the federal study said, "a family that starts its recreational travel by staying in cabins and motels decides to try tent camping. From there, they will often graduate to a tent trailer, thence to a travel trailer, and finally to a motor home."

Who are these growing numbers of Americans who have found that camping is the answer to the social and recreational needs for themselves and their children?

In a private study of recreational vehicle ownership, a Washington, D.C. consulting firm found that RV use tends to be family oriented. The report said that "typical" RV owners tend to be married and have children, homeowners and established families, whose head of household has a median age of about 44 years, representing an annual family income in 8 of 10 cases of over $15,000.

They are also the kind of people who treasure their recreational activities, according to the department of transportation, which noted that economic dips and energy problems had little effect on the upward growth curve of outdoor recreation and RV use over the past 15 years.

"At this time," according to D.O.T. surveys, "recreational and other non-business travel accounts for more total vehicle miles traveled on the state highway systems than does work-related travel" and all projections agree highway travel for recreational purposes will grow more rapidly than total highway travel."

Prowlers, Spuds Like Series

Despite the final scores which have been leaning heavily in the Spuds' favor in three of the four games since the Thief River Falls-Moorhead high school football series was renewed in 1976, both sides are apparently hoping the meetings continue.

Thief River Falls, although out-scored in the series 101-42, still gets a thrill out of being able to challenge one of the state's premiere football attractions. For the Prowlers it's a classic example of "nothing to lose but everything to gain" since nobody will ever expect them to beat the Spuds. But if they ever do, it'll rank among the top Lincoln high school athletic feats of all time. For Moorhead, a "breather" midst a highly competitive schedule ain't all that bad.

The Thief River Falls-Moorhead series is actually a shotgun wedding because games are hard to come by in this part of the country. The Spuds, in fact, are playing only eight games this fall.

"I hope the series continues," said Moorhead coach Craig McComb. "I think it's a good rivalry. We admire Thief River's philosophy to play anybody anywhere. I hope we can continue to play them."

Top TRF Offensive Effort

It's too bad the much-publicized Thief River Falls defense wasn't able to come through with a strong performance in Friday's 41-14 football loss to Moorhead because the Prowlers turned in a super offensive effort.

Led by Bill Jury's 168 yards, Thief River Falls rushed for 272 yards and finished with 283 yards worth of offense, the Prowlers' best performance by far in the current four-year series against Moorhead.

In 1976 Thief River Falls lost to Moorhead 46-6 when the Prowlers gained only 53 yards on the ground. In 1977 Thief River Falls lost only 14-8 but netted a nere 74 yards total offense. A year ago the Prowlers lost 40-14 when they were limited to just 34 yards on the ground.

Swimmers Face Top Challenges

Lincoln high school girls swimming team faces tough back-to-back assignments this week when the Prowlers face Moorhead Tuesday and swim against Fargo South Thursday.

Moorhead, considered a likely candidate to succeed Thief River Falls as Section 3 champion this fall, will visit the Franklin middle school pool Tuesday at 5 p.m. The Prowlers will travel to Fargo Thursday to face a strong South team at 4:30.

"Moorhead and South are really strong," warned Thief River Falls coach John Hustad whose team was hit heavily by graduation after several outstanding seasons. The youthful Thief River Falls line-up features just one senior — Johanna Desrocher, nine juniors, four sophomores and 11 freshmen, along with seventh grader Shelly McGann.

"Moorhead is heads above everybody else in the section," conceded Hustad. "Anyone who comes and watches Tuesday will really see some powerhouse swimmers."

Thief River Falls is not without its individual stars, either. Junior Brenda Lund has been the premiere diver in the section for a couple of years now and she came up with a school record 244.1 score Thursday when the Prowlers beat Grand Forks Red River and Grand Forks Central in a double dual at Grand Forks. In addition to Lund, Betsy Hallstrom, another junior, has been turning in the section's fastest 50-yard freestyle times to date, including a 26.8 at Grand Forks.

Miscellaneous

+Brian Kjos, a freshman from Thief River Falls, is a member of the Moorhead State University cross country team.

+Park Rapids high school football coach Andy McCarthy called Bemidji, Friday's Thief River Falls homecoming foe, "the best football team I've ever coached against," following the Lumberjacks' recent 26-6 victory over the Panthers. Park Rapids was considered a preseason favorite in the Mid-State Conference, a league that won just five of 25 nonconference games this fall, which includes a 1-9 record against Northwest Athletic Conference schools.

+Crookston's impressive 26-7 Northwest Athletic Conference-opening win over Fergus Falls recently left coach Don Stueve of the Otters mighty unhappy. "We were humiliated out there," he told Bruce Bakke of the Fergus Falls Journal. "All I've got to say is that this loss was a total team effort."

THREE MEMBERS OF the Thief River Falls defense closed in on Moorhead tailback Jim Laske (35) in the first half of Friday's high school football game played on the Thief River Falls athletic field. Laske, trying to follow the block of tackle Troy Oanes (75), picked up six yards before running into the Prowlers' Scott Loehr (20), Dave Odegaard (22) and Brian Ranum (62). The play carried to the Thief River Falls 22-yard line and the Spuds scored six plays later — with 39 seconds left in the first half — for a 22-7 lead at halftime. Laske scored three touchdowns and rushed for 123 yards to lead the Spuds to a 41-14 win over the Prowlers. Thief River Falls begins Northwest Athletic Conference play Friday when the Prowlers celebrate homecoming by hosting Bemidji.

Spuds Easy 41-14 Winners Over Lincoln

Moorhead, which in the past has waited until the second half to put away Thief River Falls, stuck it to the Prowlers in the second quarter Friday en route to a 41-14 high school football win on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

The score was almost identical to last year's 40-14 final, which in turn was similar to a 46-6 outcome in 1976. However, on both occasions Thief River Falls trailed only 14-6 at halftime before being blown out in the second half. And Moorhead's last visit here in 1977 produced a 14-8 squeeker for the Spuds.

Same plot was in the making Friday when Thief River Falls started with an 8-0 first quarter lead on the strength of a 77-yard touchdown dash by halfback Bill Jury who finished the game with 168 yards on 14 carries. Jury took a pitch wide to the right, got around the corner and stunned the Spuds by sprinting through their secondary. Dave Odegaard carried a pitch around the left side for the conversion points with just 3:31 elapsed.

But the drama didn't last until the second half this time because Moorhead made easy work running against a highly regarded Thief River Falls defense, grinding out three touchdown marches on three offensive possessions in the second quarter for a 22-7 halftime cushion.

Moorhead actually started generating some offense late in the first quarter when the Spuds opened a seven-play, 80-yard drive. Big gainer was supplied by workhorse tailback Jim Laske who burst through the middle for 45 yards before being hauled down from behind at the Thief River Falls two-yard line three plays into the second quarter. Fullback Kurt Larson stepped into the end zone on the next play and Laske, who scored three touchdowns, rushed for 123 yards and totaled 230 yards for the night in rushing, pass receiving, punt returns and kickoff returns, carried a pitch around the left side for the game-tying conversion points with just 53 seconds gone.

Second Moorhead touchdown drive was a carbon copy of the first as the Spuds sprinted 74 yards in seven quick plays. Two inside reserves by flanker Bob Thon netted 42 yards and Laske scored on a 13-yard run when Moorhead simply blew away the inside of the Thief River Falls defensive line. Reid Christopherson's kick made it 15-7 with 5:34 remaining.

However, this time Moorhead wasn't willing to settle for a one-touchdown edge at halftime. Tom Bjorkman's 24-yard punt was returned 14 yards to the Moorhead 44 by Laske and the Spuds had 3:38 to reach the end zone. They did it in three minutes thanks to three offside penalties on the Prowlers that gave the Spuds two first downs. Laske scored on a pitch to the left from the six and Christopherson followed with the conversion.

"I thought we had 'em on the ropes for a while," said Thief River Falls head coach Gene Jurgens. "We came out and got a quick one, and our defense was playing well. But then they got us a couple of times and once you get down, it's tough to come back against a team like Moorhead."

Moorhead made it 35-8 in the third quarter as the Spuds extended their possession-touchdown string to five.

Defensive back Bob Masanz picked a Dave Odegaard fumble out of mid-air at the Thief River Falls 23 on the first series of the second half to set up the Spuds' fourth score, a 12-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Shawn Anderson to flanker Doug Mithun who was wide open in the end zone. The two-point conversion pass was incomplete, but the Spuds had themselves a comfortable 28-8 spread.

A short Thief River Falls punt set the Spuds up at the Prowlers 39-yard line midway through the third quarter and Moorhead scored in 11 plays as Laske carried that often-called pitch-out around the left side from the two. Christopherson made it 35-8 with 30 seconds on the clock.

"Thief River gave us a lot of problems and they had us worried in the first quarter," explained Moorhead coach Craig McComb. "But we came back and ran the option play outside. They had it stacked up in the middle, so we went wide with it."

Odegaard, who was carried off the field on a stretcher after suffering a leg injury with 4:14 remaining in the game, scored the Prowlers' second touchdown on a nicely-executed pitch from quarterback Jeff Ulrich. With little room, Odegaard sprinted 21 yards down the left sideline untouched with 5:35 left in the third quarter. The conversion try was fumbled away, leaving the score at 35-14.

Moorhead reserves made it 41-14 after an unsuccessful Thief River Falls on-side kick. Jay Haas scored on a hard charge through the middle from the 13 with 1:37 to play.

"I thought defensively we would have played better," mentioned Jurgens. "Alot of that wide stuff they ran started inside and they broke it to the outside. Laske is good. He just sat back there and waited for a hole to open, and it did he was off. We didn't come up and fill those holes like we're suppose to.

Thief River Falls, 2-3, begins its season-ending four-game Northwest Athletic Conference schedule Friday when the Prowlers host Bemidji in the 1979 Lincoln high school homecoming game. Moorhead, 3-2, will be at Fergus Falls that night.

Hunter Education Program Planned

Wednesday will mark the start of a 12-hour Department of Natural Resources hunter education program scheduled to be held at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school. The six two-hour weekly meetings will start at 7:30 p.m.

Sportsmen, biologists, researchers and outdoorsmen will draw a bead on the problems and frustrations that face today's sportsmen during the DNR programs that will feature a variety of special interest clinics, seminars and classes throughout the state this fall.

Some of the topics dealt with will be wildlife management, laws and regulations, ethics, species identification and habitat needs. Plus, special skill will be offered in finding your way with map and compass, tracking, dog care, decoy placement, duck and goose calling, survival and first aid.

The list goes on and will be somewhat different in each area of Minnesota, depending on that area's concerns and priorities.

All outdoor users are urged to attend.

Local resource people are used as much as possible in order to keep on top of local areas of concern.

A limited edition Les Kouba print (Mallards Arriving) will be given to each person successfully completing one of the hour classes and to those people who help.

If you are already concerned about the future of hunting and would like to see it as a respectable sport in the eyes of all Americans, then lets all chip in, says the DNR.

For details on all courses, clinics and classes, write to Dick Anderson, Hunter Education Coordinator for the Minnesota Dept. of Natural Resources, 316 No. Oak St., Fergus Falls, 56537.

Prowlers Find Additional Hitters Against Nordics

By force rather than choice, Lincoln high school volleyball coach Sharon Stauss discovered Thursday that she has more than one heavy hitter in the line-up as Thief River Falls defeated Marshall County Central 2-0. The Prowlers stopped the visiting Nordics 18-9, 18-4.

Because of the service rotation, Thief River Falls' top spiker, junior Stacy Ehrenstrom, found herself as a non-scorer in the back row most of the night. But that allowed others, like seniors Paula Kertz and Nancy Noreen, to share the spotlight that is normally focused on Ehrenstrom.

"Stacy didn't hit that much, but Nancy helped us and Paula hit a couple," mentioned Stauss. "It's nice to know you can depend on other people like that."

Noreen's serving started Thief River Falls off to a 3-0 first game lead, and when things bogged down, she came back to the service line to make it 8-4 and the Prowlers went on to double the Nordice 18-9.

Junior Marlys Huot made news on the second game when her eight straight points built a 6-4 edge into a 14-4 cushion. Senior Kathy Walker then served the final four points in an 18-4 victory.

"The offense wasn't too good, but the serves went over," said Satuss whose Prowlers are 7-5 for the year.

A 2-1 winner in the junior varsity match, Thief River Falls came back from an 18-7 first game loss for 18-16, 18-12 scores. The Lincoln junior varsity if 6-2.

Thief River Falls will be at Red Lake Falls tonight (Monday) and at Bemidji Tuesday.

Lumberjacks Beat Otters 32-7 Friday

Passing game played a big role Friday as defending Northwest Athletic Conference football champion Bemidji began defense of its NWAC crown with a 32-7 win over Fergus Falls.

The pass worked well for the Lumberjacks, both on offense and defense. Bemidji quarterback John Herath threw touchdown passes of 50 yards to Craig Erhart, 39 yards to Dale Leonard and 13 yards to Rob Egersdorf while scoring himself on a one-yard run in the fourth quarter. And on defense the Bemidji secondary intercepted six Fergus Falls passes to hand the Otters their second conference setback and eliminate them from the NWAC title race.

Fergus Falls scored first on a 54-yard first quarter fea-flicker pass from quarterback Phil Hatchner to end Alan Stricker and stayed within 19-7 in the fourth quarter. But the Otters' fifth interception, this one at the Bemidji five-yard line, stopped the visitors who surrendered two touchdowns in the final four minutes.

It was the fifth win in five starts for the Lumberjacks who will visit Thief River Falls Friday. Fergus Falls dropped to 2-3.

In nonconference games involving NWAC teams Friday, East Grand Forks struggled past Grafton 15-7, Crookston lost to Cloquet 15-0 and Thief River Falls lost to Moorhead 41-14.

Crookston, 1-0 in the NWAC, will be at East Grand Forks Friday for the Green Wave NWAC conference. Fergus Falls entertains Moorhead that night.

Cross Country Teams Compete At Grafton

Thief River Falls cross country runners — boys and girls varsity, boys junior varsity and boys junior high school — competed Thursday in the Grafton invitational.

Grand Forks Central won the boys varsity race with 39 points, followed by Grand Forks Red River 44, East Grand Forks 80, Thief River Falls 85 and Crookston 160. Devils Lake, Grafton and Wahpeton fielded incomplete teams.

Bruce Johnson paced the Prowlers with a sixth place 16:32 over the 3.1-mile course. His top ten finish earned him a trophy. Greg Ness placed 13th and Bob Fitzgerald was 14th to claim ribbons.

Grand Forks Central was also a winner in the boys junior varsity race that for the most part featured incomplete teams. Rick Engelstad of Thief River Falls placed 16th for a ribbon.

East Grand Forks won the girls varsity race by a 25-61 margin over Grand Forks Central. The rest of the teams were incomplete, including the Prowlers who had ribbon winners in Margaret White, 10th; Pam Swenson, 15th; and Trisha Armstrong, 17th. White ran a 16:50 over the 2.1-mile course.

Grand Forks Schroder won the boys junior high school race with 38 points, followed by Grafton 91, Grand Forks South 93, Grand Forks Valley 140, Crookston 131, Thief River Falls 149, Wahpeton 190 and Grand Forks Twiney 237.

Chuck Lowell of Thief River Falls placed sixth with a 13:10 in the 2.1-mile junior high school race. Kevin Kezar was 11th in 13:19 to also earn ribbons.

Cardinals Celebrate Homecoming With First Win, 56-26 Friday

Jon Swanson scored three touchdowns and passed for another Friday as Plummer celebrated homecoming with a 56-26 North Tri County Conference high school football win over Clearbrook that snapped the Cardinals' season-opening four-game losing streak.

"It was a good homecoming," smiled Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "Everything went really well. We won and everybody got to play."

Pattern of the wide-open contest was set at the start when Clearbrook, on its game-opening possession, scored on a 30-yard Paul Ostby to Jeff Johnson pass.

Plummer responded immediately, marching the ensuing kickoff downfield for a two-yard Blair Gustafson touchdown and a Swanson to Jay Brekke two-point conversion pass that supplied the Cardinals with an 8-6 first quarter lead.

Swanson scored on a one-yard run to start the second quarter and he ended the half by throwing a seven-yard touchdown pass to Clifton Franklin in the final minute for a 28-12 cushion.

Second half started with a two-yard touchdown run by Swanson who produced two more scores in the final quarter by passing nine yards to Jay Brekke and scoring himself from four yards out.

Plummer, held to 16 points and very little yardage in four losses, collected 373 yards on offense Friday, including 298 yards on the ground as Gustafson carried 19 times for an even 100 yards and Alan Mattison netted 69 yards on the same number of carries.

"Even though we gave up 26 points, it was a real good team effort on defense," mentioned Brantl. "We put good pressure on the passer and as a result we intercepted four passes." Monsterback Kevin Malwitz intercepted two of those passes and was credited with 11 unassisted tackles.

Oklee 26
Erskine 6

John Dulka scored three touchdowns, two on pass receptions from Richard Bronken, to lead Oklee to a 26-6 North Tri County Conference triumph at Erskine.

A 44-yard pass play from Bronken to Dulka gave Oklee a 6-0 first quarter start. Dulka went in from three yards out in the second quarter and after Erskine cut the difference to 14-6, Dulka latched on to a 15-yard pass from Bronken that supplied the Bobcats with a 20-6 halftime advantage.

"It was a real good game," pointed out Oklee coach Dale Svaren who had plenty of praise for the underdog Erskine squad. "That was the hardest-hitting Erskine team I've ever seen. It was happy to get out of there with a win."

Oklee lost the services of fullback Darrell Sandeen who suffered a knee injury in the second quarter. His loss kept the Bobcats' rushing total to 146 yards for the game, with Dulka getting 70. Bronken was 5-for-9 passing for 79 yards.

Svaren cited the defensive play of his linebackers — Pat Paquin, Mike Kirkpatrick and Wes Magnell, who replaced Sandeen.

Oklee will take a 4-1 record to Mentor Friday.

Middle River 24
Mentor 14

Middle River's high-powered offense was held to 104 rushing yards by Mentor Friday afternoon and the 4-1 Skippers struggled to a 24-14 North Tri County Conference victory.

"It was an uninspiring performance," said disappointed Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "We played poorly. Our line didn't do a very good job and we made a lot of dumb mistakes on defense."

Middle River held only a 6-0 halftime lead, with Monty Peterson's three-yard first quarter run representing the only first half scoring.

It was still a close 18-14 ball game when Mike Peterson hauled in a 25-yard pass to set up Scott McKeever's game-clinching two-yard touchdown with about 2½ minutes remaining in the game.

Middle River played without the services of fullback Steve Bengston, injured on the game's second play.

The Skippers face McIntosh-Winger in a key conference showdown Friday afternoon in Middle River.

Gonvick 35
Goodridge 6

Gonvick's size wore down Goodridge in the second half and the unbeaten Bulldogs dampened the Huskies' homecoming with a 35-6 North Tri County Conference decision.

"They have a fine ball club," pointed out Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "They were so much bigger than we were. It's only so long before they wear you out."

Gonvick scored on its first possession, with Rick Hopperstad going in from 12 yards out and Bob Beckstrand adding the conversion points. But the only other scoring in the first half was a 17-yard Hopperstad pass to Kurt Halvorson.

"We played well defensively in the first half," said Nelson. "But in the second half it just wasn't there."

A blocked punt at the Goodridge six yard line was immediately followed by a Doug Faldet touchdown as Gonvick pulled away 22-0 in the third quarter.

Goodridge scored when defensive end Randy Hendrickson intercepted a Gonvick putch-out and stepped into the end zone from the five-yard line in the fourth quarter to cap a strong performance.

The Huskies rushed for 140 yards but a pre-planned passing game netted only 50 yards. "We wanted to pass, but it just didn't go over too well," noted Nelson.

Goodridge, 1-4, will play at Grygla Friday afternoon.

Newfolden 14
Greenbush 12

Jeff Johnson rushed for 127 yards and scored the game-winning touchdown in the final four minutes of the game Friday as Marshall County Central won its nine-man debut with a 14-12 nonconference win over Greenbush at Newfolden.

A pass interception by Johnson, which he returned 17 yards to near midfield, set up his touchdown, a three-yard run that brought the Nordics from a 12-8 deficit.

It was the first nine-man game played by the Nordics who play the standard 11-man brand of football in the Top of the State Conference. "It was pretty wide open on the big field," noted Newfolden coach Sam Gebhart. "It was pretty tough to play defense. But it was a lot of fun and the fans enjoyed it."

Marshall County Central accumulated 310 yards worth of offense, 210 on the ground and an even 100 yards in the air where quarterback Chuck Sorenson completed five of eight passes, including a first quarter 18-yard touchdown toss to Jeff Dahl. But the Nordics hurt themselves with key fumbles and penalties. "We gave up quite a few yards and we had some mistakes again," admitted Gebhart.

Greenbush, playing an independent nine-man schedule this fall after dropping out of the Top of the State Conference, finished with 149 yards on the ground and 89 in the air.

Marshall County Central, now 2-3, will play Lake of the Woods Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Nordics' 1979 homecoming game.

Northwomen Host Spartans On Tuesday

First Northwest Division match of the 1979 season awaits the Northland community college volleyball team Tuesday when the Northwomen host Fergus Falls at 7 p.m. in the Northland gym.

Northland was outclassed in an eight-team tournament at North Hennepin Saturday when the Northwomen lost eight straight games. Beating Northland were Anoka-Ramsey 15-4, 15-6; Rochester 15-0, 15-4; Vermillion 15-8, 15-7; and Hibbing 15-5, 15-8.

"It wasn't too good," admitted Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "It was good for the girls because they saw good volleyball, but unfortunately it was coming right at them. I know we can play better than that."

Itasca won the event, beating Anoka-Ramsey in the finals.

Northland is 1-8 overall.

Defense Shines Again . . .

Tony Smith Rallies NCC Past Fergus Falls 6-3

Relief pitcher Tony Smith picked up the win Saturday when the freshman quarterback came off the bench to direct an 82-yard fourth quarter touchdown drive with his pin-point passing to spark Northland community college to a 6-3 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) win over Fergus Falls. The victory marked the first Northern Division road win in Northland's four-year football history and lifted the Northmen to 2-2 for the season.

Smith and the Northland defense saved the day for the Northmen who continue to struggle offensively. It was the third straight game in which the defense did not yield a touchdown. Vermilion beat Northland 10-0 three weeks ago with a punt return for a touchdown and a field goal; Northland shut out Hibbing 7-0 two weeks ago; and Saturday held Fergus Falls to a 21-yard Kevin Stich field goal in the first quarter.

"We're playing terrible and beating people," said Northland coach Irv Smith. "But our defense is just unbelievable. They're super tough. To play as poorly as we did (offensively) and win says something for our kids. If we would have played like that last year we would have gotten beat 100-0.

Tony Smith, passing from deep in his own territory with a strong wind at his back in the fourth quarter, connected on a 62-yard completion to flanker Joe Kraska on his first pass attempt to get the game-winning drive off to a fast start. Two of Northland's 17 penalties slowed the drive, but Smith hit tight end Chris Kneen with a 14-yard pass and found Kraska again for a 23 yarder that set up the game's only touchdown, a 12-yard run by freshman halfback Mike Cowart.

"Fergus Falls was a helluva lot tougher than I thought they would be," admitted Smith. "Their defense was real tough. They were committed completely to stopping our option, and they did. We wanted to pass, but we didn't have the wind, and it was strong enought to be a factor. We knew what we were going to do with the wind in the fourth quarter."

Tony Smith finished with five completions in six attempts for 111 yards, a big portion of Northland's 198 yards on offense that all came in the second half.

"We obviously played a lot better in the second half," explained Smith. "We were kind of flat at the start. We would have blown them away if we wouldn't have stopped ourselves," he said in reference to 175 yards worth of penalties. Twelve of the 17 Northland infractions were charged against the offense.

"They say defense wins football games for you, and that's really been true for us the last two weeks," mentioned Smith. "A good defense really does help you a lot."

Northland's defense forced nine Fergus Falls turnovers as Jim McCue, Todd Tangen and Luis Delahoz came up with interceptions and Dave Klemish, Tom Buell and Jose Cabrera had fumble recoveries. Klemish recovered two fumbles and Cabrera also blocked a third quarter field goal attempt.

Double Dual Win . . .

Divers Shine For Prowlers

Top Thief River Falls diving performances highlighted a double win for the Lincoln high school swimming team Thursday as the Prowlers beat Grand Forks Red River 47-36 and out-pointed Grand Forks Central 62-21 in a double dual meet in the Red River pool.

Junior Brenda Lund headlined the Thief River Falls diving exhibition with a Lincoln school record 244.1 point performance. Sophomore Lisa Desrocher also dove well for the Prowlers as she cracked the 200-point barrier for the first time with a 212.5-point effort.

In addition to the varsity divers, Thief River Falls sophomore Lori Swanson made news with a 199.75-point divers performance in winning the B squad competition where Thief River Falls defeated Red River 69-10 and beat Central 60-13.

"Our divers had a really good day," understated Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "We had lots of nice steady improvements from nearly all of our swimmers."

The two wins improved Thief River Falls' dual meet season record to 3-2 heading into a challenging week that will find the Prowlers hosting Moorhead Tuesday at 5 p.m., traveling to Fargo South Thursday for a 4:30 p.m. dual and then taking part in an invitational meet at Fergus Falls Saturday.

ATTRACTING A LOT of attention from white-shirted Moorhead defenders, Thief River Falls' halfback Bill Jury struggled for additional yards before being brought down in the fourth quarter of Friday's football game played here. Moorhead pursuers included John Winberg (22), Russ Viker (62), Terry Larson (61) and Sherman Smith (79). Jury rushed for 168 yards and scored on a 77-yard first quarter run, but the Prowlers lost to the Spuds 41-14.

Hetteen Made Honorary Chairman Of MS Event

It was announced recently that Edgar Hetteen of Thief River Falls, father of snowmobiling, will serve as honorary chairman of MS sno-rally '80.

Founder of Polaris Industries and Arctic Enterprises, Hetteen has joined the fight against multiple sclerosis with the same determination that took him 1,200 grueling miles across Alaska to test the Polaris Sno-Traveler in 1960. A pioneer in the industry, he designed, built, promoted and sold the first practical and reliable forward engine machine manufactured in the U.S.

As honorary chairman of MN sno-rally '80, Hetteen and his wife Hannah will lead the way in MS sno-rally "500" a marathon ride from Duluth to White Bear Lake in connection with the St. Paul Winter Carnival sponsored by the Minnesota united snowmobilers association and Arctic enterprises.

The two day event is expected to raise $40,000. All Minnesota snowmobilers are eligible to ride in the "500", but only the first 50 to secure $500 or more in pledges will make the trip on February 1 and 2. The top fundraiser in the "500" will win a specially selected prize.

In addition to the "500", MS sno-rally '80 offers a wealth of prizes ready to be given away to Minnesota snowmobilers who make outstanding contributions to the fight against multiple sclerosis. An Arctic Cat Jag will go to this year's top fund-raiser. In addition, tropies will be given to the top 20 fundraisers and to the top 20 clubs. Each club's top fundraiser will win an official sno-rally '80 jacket, and the top fundraising club will receive a movie camera, screen and projector. All these prizes are compliments of Arctic Cat.

As a special bonus prize, everyone riding for MS this year is eligible for an additional drawing, an Arctic Kitty-Cat snowmobile. Every rider in MS sno-rally '80 will also be given a free shoulder patch and tie tac.

MS sno-rally '80 also gives participating snowmobile clubs the chance to increase their community support. Publicity posters, four pre-event press releases, and two post-event press releases as well as radio public service announcements will be furnished by the Multiple Sclerosis Soceity to local media for approximately 100 clubs anticipated to ride for MS between December 1 and February 20. Rider vests will also be provided, along with mayoral proclamations and celebrity riders for clubs raising $3,000 or more.

Two representatives from each club deciding by November 20 to participate in MS sno-rally '80 will receive free tickets to the Buffalo Bills — Minnesota Vikings game at Metropolitan Stadium on December 9. The eight winners of the Minnesota united snowmobile association beauty contest will also attend the game as the Viking's special guest.

Following the game, club representatives will attend an athletes versus MS celebration where they will be photographed for promotional news releases with the Vikings' Matt Blair.

In 1979, 35 snowmobile clubs across Minnesota raised over $36,000 for MS. Sno-rally '80 iw expected to raise over $80,000.

DNR Sponsors Habitat Program For Pheasants

Sportsmen's clubs, FFA chapters, 4-H clubs and other outdoor oriented groups who wish to participate in the Department of Natural Resources' 1980 habitat-pheasant chick program have until Jan. 4, 1980 to become enrolled.

To enroll, groups need only to fill out a brief pheasant clinic registration form and send it to: DNR-Section of Wildlife, Box 7 Centennial Office Bldg., St. Paul, MN 55155, postmarked no later than Jan. 4, 1980. Copies of the form and other information will be available upon request at DNR wildlife field offices and the St. Paul office.

Groups enrolling prior to the deadline will attend a pheasant clinic conducted by an area wildlife manager sometime between Jan. 20 and Feb. 19, 1980. The purposes of the clinics are to describe pheasant habitat needs, supply habitat project forms and provide other program details.

"Entering its fifth year, the habitat-pheasant program again emphasizes the extreme importance of habitat," said Larry Nelson, DNR wildlife specialist. "Groups are required to undertake their own habitat improvement projects such as nesting cover, food plots, and woody cover. Raising and releasing pheasants remains a fun and interesting part of the program, but it is the habitat work that benefits the wild pheasant population."

World's smallest fox is the fennec, a desert dweller only 12 to 18 inches long, according to the National Wildlife Federation. Its ears grow to a length of four inches or more.

Grygla Beats LOW Volleyball Team Thursday

Grygla rallied from a 9-0 third game deficit to beat Lake of the Woods 18-13 and take a 2-1 decision from the Bears Thursday in a high school volleyball match played at Baudette.

The Eagles opened with a 19-17 first game win in overtime, with the Bears pulling out an 18-16 second game victory to even things at one game apiece in the evenly played match.

"We played real well that first game," mentioned Grygla coach Pam Worth. "And we came back at the end when the girls were really looking for each other for the sets."

Senior Cindy Moe served 11 points for the Eagles who improved their season record to 4-3.

Grygla will be at Middle River Tuesday and will host Roseau Thursday.

Plummer—Goodridge

Plummer rolled to an easy 18-5 first game win but had to hold off a determined Goodridge come-back effort in the second game before pulling out an 18-15 decision and a 2-0 match triumph Thursday at Goodridge.

Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff praised the Huskies for their teamwork and determination. "They showed good spirit, spunk and drive," she said.

Freshman Leah Dahlen served eight points for the Huskies who will play at Gonvick tonight (Monday) before hosting Warren Tuesday. Plummer entertains Oslo Tuesday.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of husband and father, Oscar Christenson, who passed away 11 years ago Oct. 2, 1968:
The sun and moon are shining
Upon a silent grave
Where lies the one we dearly loved
But whom we could not save
God saw the road was getting rough
The hills were hard to climb.
He gently closed your eyes, Dear One,
And whispered peace be thine.
Sadly missed by wife, Hazel Christenson and family. 1177p

Child Immunization Needed To Prevent Against Diseases

Sometimes there's nothing so dangerous as a false sense of security.

A case in point is the fight against "childhood" diseases like mumps, whooping cough and measles. A lot of people seem to have the impression that modern vaccines have all but eliminated these diseases. They're no longer bothering to have their children immunized, and health authorities report, that as a result, some of these diseases are starting to make a comeback.

Measles is perhaps the most striking example. Diane Peterson, of the state health department's immunization unit, says complacency about that disease has contributed to a number of major outbreaks during the last few years. Almost a thousand cases of measles have been reported in Minnesota since the beginning of the year. That figure is one of the highest in the nation," and the third highest in Minnesota since the measles vaccine was introduced in 1963.

Peterson says we face a renewed threat from measles and other childhood diseases, simply because many parents are failing to have their children immunized adequately. She attributed part of the problem to the effectiveness of the vaccines used to do the job.

"We now have safe and effective vaccines against measles, mumps, rubella, polio, diptheria, tetanus and whooping cough," she said. "When the vaccines were first introduced, there was a big rush to get children immunized, and the incidence of these diseases fell off dramatically. Many people mistakenly concluded that the diseases weren't a serious threat anymore, so they stopped immunizing their kids."

"But the vaccines can't prevent outbreaks of these diseases unless most of the children in a community have been immunized," she warned. "Right now, our immunization levels aren't high enough to guarantee that the diseases won't reappear."

Peterson also cautioned that diseases like mumps or measles are not as harmless as many people think. "Most people are aware of the severe crippling effects of polio, and they know about the birth defects associated with rubella," she said. "They also know that diseases like whooping cough or diphtheria can kill. But even measles can lead to complications like pneumonia, ear infections, blindness or deafness. Mumps can spread to the central nervous system in three or four cases out of every thousand, and the result can be deafness, mental retardation or even death. And as long as it's possible to prevent these diseases altogether, it's pretty hard to justify even the smallest risk."

A special effort to focus attention on the immunization issue has been underway as part of the United Nations' International Year of the Child (IYC) observance, and health authorities nationwide have been attacking the problem on a number of fronts. The U.S. department of health, education and welfare has been conducting a national immunization initiative, aimed at immunizing at least 90 per cent of all children in the country against the seven major preventable childhood diseases by next October. In addition, Minnesota has a recently enacted child immunization law, which requires that all children be immunized against these diseases before they're allowed to enroll for the first time in an elementary school, nursery school or day care center.

"Health authorities at every level of government have been participating in the initiative," said Peterson. "If we can get our immunization levels up where they belong and keep them there, we really can eliminate these diseases. And if we can do that, we can also eliminate a lot of needless suffering and tragedy."

Mail Carrier Openings Filled At Middle River

Two mail carriers have been added to the postal service personnel list at the Middle River post office.

Vacancy of carrier on route 1, created by the resignation of Leo Locken last December, has been filled by Bennie J. Sys, who resides six miles west of Strathcona. Previous to his appointment to the post, Sys served as a city carrier, first at Minot, ND for three years and at Roseau for the past four years.

His substitute carrier and also substitute on route 2 is Marvin Foss of Viking. Foss has worked intermittently as a substitute carrier at Middle River since July.

Three mail routes presently serve rural patrons of the area. Regular carrier on route 2 is Mylan Abrahamson. Lowell Scramstad is the carrier on the northeast star route.

WHY ARE THESE MEN SMILING? Perhaps it is just the conversation in progress, or maybe it's because they both think they are getting the best part of a local business transaction. Don Schoonhoven (left) is instructor in the aviation mechanics program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school. Al Redick is from Chino, Calif., where he has an unusual hobby-business. For more details, see this Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Highway Meet Next Tuesday In R.L. Falls

Emergency highways and bridges will be the principal topics discussed at a meeting at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, October 9, at the Wheat headquarters in Red Lake Falls, sponsored by the Minnesota good roads, Inc. and the Minnesota association of wheat growers.

This will be a follow-up on a series of road and highway meetings that have been held across the state during the past few weeks.

Richard P. Braun, commissioner of the Department of transportation for Minnesota, other DOT personnel, legislators and Minnesota good roads officials will be on hand for the meeting.

Good roads officials will attempt to inform a capacity crowd on action that has taken place during recent weeks, concerning highways in the state. Opinions will be requested. Ideas of all types will be extremely important at this meeting.

Meeting place will accomodate about 250 people, and officials are confident that all available space will be taken, since roads and highways are extremely important for agricultural use in this part of the state.

Highway officials have already promised some emergency relief for the northwest area of Minnesota, but elevator operators and farmers will be accompanied by truckers in requesting additional relief for some areas.

"You, the public, know your daily transportation needs. This is your opportunity to offer your ideas on possible acceptable solutions to the present dilemma," Robert M. Johnson, executive director of the Minnesota good roads association said as arrangements were being made for this meeting.

Attendance has not been good at earlier meetings, but officials report that interest has increased during the past several days in talking about transportation needs of the state.

At a meeting earlier this year, the Minnesota wheat council agreed to spend considerably more money in the areas of transportation, and feels this is one of the real bottle necks that must be solved for agriculture.

Some Disabled Exempted From Restrictions

Some people with disabilities will be able to apply for exceptions this winter to build temperature restrictions imposed by presidential executive order in July of 1979.

Emergency building temperature regulations place temporary restrictions on temperatures for heating, cooling and domestic hot water in commercial, industrial, government and other non-residential buildings. The regulations generally require that thermostats be set no lower than 78 degrees for cooling, no higher than 65 degrees for heating and no higher than 105 degrees for domestic hot water.

Owners and operators of buildings covered by the regulations are required to post a "Certification of Building Compliance" in prominent locations in their buildings. General exemptions are provided to protect the health of persons in health care rehabilitation facilities and in day care centers and elementary schools.

In addition, persons anticipating "undue physical hardship" may apply for an exception to the restrictions through their regional office of hearings and appeals. Examples of these cases are people with circulatory disabilities whose conditions would be worsened by cool temperatures, and those with spinal cord injuries who cannot tolerate temperatures as high as 78 degrees.

Applications for special exceptions must be in writing and signed by the person of persons affected. Applications should provide documentation of why these regulations create a special hardship. The building in which the requested exception would apply should also be identified. The envelope should be labeled: "Application for Exception-EBTR." Address for the regional office of hearings and appeals for Minnesota is 175 Jackson Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60604.

Executive order will expire April 15, 1980 unless officially extended.

Persons who have any questions concerning these regulations or exceptions may call the building temperatures hotline toll-free at 1-800-424-9122.

Replacement Of Joints Given Much Emphasis

No field of surgery is expanding as fast as that involving replacement of joints by man-made substitutes. Total hip replacement ranks high among the most effective surgical procedures ever devised, according to an Arthritis foundation medical authority.

While no surgery is without risk and the outcome is never guaranteed, the objectives of increased mobility and freedom from pain are achieved in more than 95 per cent of the cases. Great care must be taken, the authority went on to say, in the choice of the orthopedic surgeon performing the operation.

Successful joint replacement was greatly advanced by two breakthroughs. First, a durable joint had to be developed. A stainless steel ball together with a high-density polyethelene cup proved to be the answer for the hip joint. Second, a permanent, sterile and biologically acceptable cement was needed. A compound called methyl) methacrylate was found that has been highly effective.

The Arthritis foundation has a special message on hip and knee replacement that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. Free literature on joint replacement is available to callers, as well as other information.

Prevention Of Fires Goal Of National Week

"Fire claimed the lives of 85 Minnesotans and caused more than $65 million worth of damages in 1978," said fire marshal Wes Werner of the Minnesota department of public safety. "The fire problem is catastrophic in the United States and fire takes more lives and property than all natural disasters combined."

To call upon all citizens to initiate a year around campaign against the waste caused by preventable fires, the week of October 7-13 has been proclaimed as National fire prevention week. This year's theme is "Partners in fire prevention."

"The most effective fire prevention measure is for all households to install smoke detectors," Werner said. "This early warning can give the extra time needed to escape, and save our most precious resource — human life. According to statistics from the National Fire Academy, eight out of every 10 victims of residential fires might still be alive if their homes had been equipped with smoke detectors."

Effective Jan. 1, 1980, all apartments, dormitories, hotels, motels and resorts will be required by Minnesota law to install smoke detectors. According to Werner, this new law is "one of the most significant steps in recent years to cut down the tragic loss of lives and property due to fires."

1979 marks the 69th year, that fire safety will be observed in the U.S. President Woodrow Wilson signed the first proclamation on October 9, the anniversary of the so-called "Great Chicago Fire." The fire broke out on October 9, 1891 killing 250 people and destroying 17,430 buildings at a cost of $168 million. This tragedy started people thinking in terms of fire prevention rather than only of fire fighting.

MAKING A TOUR of the Arctic Enterprises manufacturing plant Monday afternoon, Congressman Arlan Stangeland (right) receives some personal insight from Arctic founder Edgar Hetteen. Congressman Stangeland was shown a number of the departments involved in snowmobile manufacture and his attention was directed to changes in manufacturing techniques and changes in snowmobile design for additional safety, comfort and environmental considerations.

10-Ton Routes Increased In NW Minnesota

Effective Thursday, September 27, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) added 15 more routes to the statewide system of roads and streets authorized to carry 10-ton single axle loadings and 80,000 pounds total gross weight, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Weight limitations are being raised on these routes because they connect or feed designated 10-ton routes and will give greater flexibility to the state's transportation system in moving agricultural and other products during emergency declared in June, Braun said.

Permits will be issued for the following routes in northwestern Minnesota:

TH 11, from Baudette to junction with TH 32 at Greenbush;

TH 32, from junction with TH 11 to junction with US 59 at Thief River Falls;

US 59, from junction with TH 32 to junction with US 2, east of Erskine;

TH 89, from Grygla to south junction with TH 1; west of Red Lake; and TH 175, from west state line to junction with US 59.

Monthly transportation permits, available at Mn-DOT offices statewide, are required to haul 80,000 pounds on the emergency routes. At $5, the permits are good for the month in which they are issued during the emergency. Permits can only be issued for properly registered vehicles, licensed to carry up to 80,000 pounds.

M-DOT offices are located at Crookston, Bemidji, Virginia, Duluth, Detroit Lakes, Morris, Brainerd, St. Cloud, Willmar, Marshall, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Windom, Mankato, Owatonna and Rochester.

Maps showing the new 10-ton routes are expected to be available the first week in October.

Old Trainer Finds A Home . . .

AVTI Trades T-28 For Smaller Plane

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

After 20 years without sky under its wheels, the T-28 military training plane which had been a metal guinea pig for hundreds of aircraft mechanics students in Thief River Falls has a new owner and a new home.

Forsaken by the military and consigned to an ignominious future after only 10 years of use, the T-28 was reconditioned to become airworthy and flown to Thief River Falls in 1959. Among the people handling those mechanical and flight chores were Ken Miller and Elwood Ehrenstrom, both Thief River Falls residents.

For 20 years it has languished in humble circumstances at the Thief River Falls airport, baked by the summer sun and buried by winter blizzards. Called to attention of students only infrequently for a particular problem or illustration, it has mostly been ignored and perhaps even abused — the stepchild of a rapidly modernizing aviation family.

But like Cinderella of the popular fairy tale, the T-28 has persevered through adversity and found someone who wants it. Al Redick of Chino, Calif., who has been aware of the plane for the past 10 years or so, has bartered for the plane and flown away with it to Reno, Nev., where it will be treated more like a princess than a pauper.

Redick is one of a growing cadre of mechanical wizards with a bent for the bizarre and a burning desire to restore "war birds" to the pinnacle of AL REDICK of Chino, Calif., is pictured in the cockpit of the T-28 training plane which he acquired from the Thief River Falls AVTI. After spending more than three weeks extensively checking and repairing the plane, he flew it to Reno, Nev., where it will be completely restored.

Grain Drying To Be Viewed On Farm Tour

Thief River Falls area grain producers who are interested in learning more about grain drying and handling systems are invited to attend the tour scheduled for Wednesday, October 10, at 7 p.m. by the Pennington county extension service.

Tour will include stops at two farms where two basic types of drying systems will be discussed. First stop at 7 p.m. will be at the Marvin Koop farm one mile south of Thief River Falls on highway 32 and one mile west on county road 7. Koop has recently erected a bin drying system with additional storage equipped with aeration.

Second stop will be at Mehrkens farms, two miles south on 32, ¾ mile west on county road 7, then ¾ mile south, where farmers can observe a grain handling system incorporating a continuous flow dryer and storage facilities equipped with aeration.

Dr. Harold Cloud, University of Minnesota extension engineer, will assist in the discussion of the capacities, limitations and costs of each type of system. Meeting will be geared to provide helpful information to farmers.

Silverleaf FU Local To Meet

Annual meeting of the Silverleaf local of the Farmers Union will be held Friday at 8 p.m. with Melvin Saugen to show slides of Norway and officers elected.

Northland Sets Fall Enrollment Record Of 415

According to preliminary figures, Northland community college in Thief River Falls will achieve a record fall quarter enrollment of 415 full-time equivalency (F.T.E.) students. This figure surpasses the previous F.T.E. high enrollment of 393 established one year ago, according to Dennis Bendickson, registrar at Northland.

Full-time equivalency is determined by dividing the total number of student credit hours for the quarter by 15.

The F.T.E. enrollment profile discloses 341 full-time students and 216 part-time students creating a student head count of 557 enrollees. This head count includes 66 students enrolled in eight classes at the Grand Forks Air Force Base and 19 students enrolled in a course at East Grand Forks.

Further analysis of these preliminary on and off-campus enrollment figures reveals that 311 men and 266 women are presently enrolled at Northland.

The significant enrollment increase of six per cent over last fall's enrollment is a trend that began five years ago with each succeeding fall quarter showing an increase over the previous year. This year was also the first time that the F.T.E. count exceeded 400, Bendickson said.

"Such continued growth makes everyone extremely proud and happy at Northland", said president Alex Easton.

Improvement Of Office Is Seminar Topic

Northland community college will present a seminar for office workers on "How To Improve Your Office Operations" on Saturday, November 3 from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. in the college auditorium.

Participants will be able to earn one college credit with the workshop fee set at $12.

Seminar topics include "Human Relations in the Office", "How To Reduce Paper Work and Organize Your Records More Effectively", "Getting your Money's Worth from Correspondence", "Practical Ways to Improve the Design of Your Business Forms" and a "Look at New Technology for the Office".

Dr. Mark Langemo, member of consultants for offices and education, Grand Forks, will be the leader.

Two Traveling Groups Perform On TRF Stages

Two traveling entertainment groups will be in Thief River Falls in the next few days to stage presentations. Sponsoring the appearances are the Thief River Falls community arts council and the Elks club.

In programs intended primarily for Elks club members, the Guthrie Players from the Guthrie Theater in Minneapolis will present "Even As The Sun" Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Elks club rooms. The production is an imaginary look into the world of Shakespeare and Will Kempe, the greatest Shakespearean comic actor.

Community arts council is sponsoring a public presentation by Chimera Theatre company of St. Paul entitled "Rodgers & Hart" at 8 p.m. Tuesday, October 9, in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Joining in the sponsorship are Northland community college and Lincoln high school. Tickets are available in advance for $2 from Larson Music company and will be sold at the door for $2.50.

The production will feature dozens of songs written by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart during their 25-year collaboration. They wrote 28 musicals, eight motion pictures and well over 500 songs.

Workshops are being conducted by both of the visiting groups with students from Lincoln and Northland participating.

Seniors Share Company, Craft At Open House

Open house conducted last week for senior citizens was successful, according to Julie Chase, assistant director of the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls.

"It offered the seniors an opportunity to become more familiar with what the library has to offer," she said. "It also gave the citizens a chance to compare what libraries used to be with what they are today."

This was the first year that the open house was done on three successive days.

"The seniors got more out of it this way," she said. "Some people even came more than one day."

Open house was from 2 to 4 p.m. daily, September 25, 26 and 27. Activities conducted each day offered the seniors an opportunity to talk with each other, view movies and share craft projects. Each day a welcome and introduction to library services and materials was presented. During this time, citizens discussed the homebound library service, the mail-book program, and were introduced to large print books and talking books — the latter being available on a state-wide basis.

The movie "Senior Power" helped illustrate some of the crimes senior citizens may face. Lorna Hanson, geo-program coordinator at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls, led a discussion on how citizens can protect themselves from such crimes.

Birthday celebration was noted for George Gershwin, music composer, and seniors were given the opportunity to hear his music. There were also demonstrations of crafts featured throughout all three days. Entertainment for the citizens was provided by Art Welter, Hilary Stoltman, and Vernon and Audrey Rogalla.

Two door prizes were given each day to citizens attending the open house. Prizes were donated by J & B Drug, Corner

School Building Considered At Meet

Don Moll, Architect

Ken Skold, Architect

Dave Goblissch, Bond Consultant

After two and one-half hours of public meeting and additional deliberation at the board level, Tuesday evening the question of procedure to be followed in improving the School District 564 building situation continues in limbo.

Board members voting on the two alternatives discussed at the public meeting seemed divided on which course to follow, according to votes taken on the two proposals. Resolutions to adopt each of the proposals failed by four to three votes, with three members voting in favor of one alternative voting in opposition to the other. Only board member Robert Servig voted in opposition to both plans.

Further study will be given and additional questions attempted to be answered for the next meeting of the board

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Sheryl Olson-Greg Olson Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at the Silver Creek Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls, by Miss Sheryl Lynn Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Olson, Thief River Falls, and Greg O. Olson, son of Omer Olson, Thief River Falls, and Shirley Struble, Columbia Falls, Mont.

Rev. J. Havland officiated at the double ring ceremony with Melodee Rupprecht, a friend of the bride, as organist. Diane Mosbeck, a friend of the couple, sang "We've Only Just Begun," "There Is Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Arrangements of peach-colored gladioli and daisies with sprigs of babies' breath, graced the altar, flanked by candelabra. Peach colored bows and lilies of the valley marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white polyester organza gown lined with acetate taffeta. Cotton Venice lace enhanced the bodice, trimmed the full sheer sleeves and edged the scooped neckline raised in back. The A-line skirt flowed into a chapel-length train. To complement her attire, she wore a Venice lace-edged veil held by a profile headpiece trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade of peach silk roses, white daisies and lilies of the valley.

Miss Audrey Thompson, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Kim Didrikson, Badger, another cousin of the bride, and Theresa McCollum, Bejou, friend of the couple. They wore peach spaghetti strap gowns topped by sheer floral, short-sleeved jackets featuring a drawstring at the waistline. To correspond with their attire, they wore peach hats and carried bouquets of peach silk daisies, interspersed with white carnations and lilies of the valley. Their gold heart necklaces and matching earrings were gifts from the bride.

Linda Otteson was the bride's personal attendant.

Best man was Dean Holtan, friend of the groom. Serving as groomsmen were Jeff Olson, brother of the bride, and Mike Cerny, friend of the groom. All reside in Thief River Falls. The ushers were Gerald Didrikson, Badger, cousin of the bride, and Keith Paulson, Gully, cousin of the groom. All wore tan tuxedos with brown velvet trim, and white ruffled shirts edged in brown. The groom's boutonniere was a silk peach rose surrounded by lilies of the valley. The groomsmen and ushers wore white carnations tipped in peach.

The mother of the bride was attired in an aqua-green, floor-length dress featuring sheer, long sleeves and an accordion pleated skirt. The groom's mother wore a blue V-neck, long-sleeved, floor-length gown accented with silver accessories. Their matching corsages included silk peach roses, white carnations and lilies of the valley.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pesek, Thief River Falls, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Forst, Strathcona, godparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Voeltz, Trail and Mrs. Halvor Rikji, Gully, godparents of the groom.

A reception for approximately 275 guests followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Olson, Greenbush, uncle and aunt of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fredrickson, Drayton, N.D., brother-in-law and sister of the groom, registered the guests as Mr. and Mrs. Tim Truscinski, Moorhead, cousins of the bride, ladled the punch. The rice packets were distributed by Michael Pesek, cousin of the bride.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with peach roses and greenery. Between the tall Grecian pillars, which separated the tiers, was a lighted, flowing water fountain. Bridges featuring miniature replicas of the bridal party extended to heart-shaped cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom. Topping the cake was a double bell ornament and filigree heart decorated with tulle, peach lilies of the valley and wedding rings. The cakes, baked and decorated by Mrs. Donald Rupprecht, were cut and served by Mrs. George Didrikson, Badger, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Tenny Olson, Silver Bay, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Gladys Thompson, Thief River Falls and Mrs. Arnold Bertilrud, Greenbush, aunts of the bride, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Kay Didrikson, Julene Thompson, Roberta Svir and Connie Forst, cousins of the bride. The gifts, carried by Deanne Thompson and Sharla Pesek, cousins of the bride, were arranged by Sue Chwialkowski, friend of the couple. The flowers were pinned by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Pesek, uncle and aunt of the bride, as Peggy Yatenes, cousin of the groom, distributed the wedding programs.

Follwoig a wedding trip along the North Shore Drive and into Canada, the couple is now at home in Moorhead. The bride is employed there at OK Hardware, and the groom, who is a student at Moorhead AVTI, is employed part-time by Precision Machine of North Dakota. Photo, R.L. Senator Seeks Extension Of Grain Shipping

"Because of the severe hardships suffered by farmers and shippers in the Duluth port strike, I'm now taking whatever action I can to have the Great Lakes shipping season extended six weeks (through January 31)," Senator Rudy Boschwitz announced Tuesday.

He said he will call upon Douglas Costle, director of the Environmental Protection agency (EPA), to make "as quickly as possible" a decision that would clear the way for a corps of engineers project, designed to keep the Great Lakes ice-free for the additional six weeks.

"The EPA is involved," Boschwitz explained, "since that agency must make a recommendation on the corps plan before installation of the special 'bubbler systems' can begin.

"The corps filed its envirmnmental impact statement on September 21, and the EPA must allow a 30-day period to receive comments on the plan. I will ask Costle to make the decision immediately after that 30-day period has ended."

Continued Boschwitz, "Time is of the essence since shippers must know whether or not the Lakes will be open longer in order to make plans.

"Also, this year we're facing an especially critical situation. Besides the delay caused by the strike, the water temperature of the Lakes is already colder than normal. Without the 'bubbler systems' the shipping season may well close even earlier than the usual time, around the first week of December."

Boschwitz said that if EPA clearance is granted, "the funds for the project have already been alloted, the corps is ready to move with the plan, and installation is expected to take only two weeks at the most."

Drug, Willow & the Reed, and Gary's Rainbow bakery. Centerpiece for the open house was loaned by Hall's flower shop.

"One citizen received her first library card during the open house," Miss Chase said. "She was 84."

"The open house helped the seniors realize how libraries have changed," she concluded. "The library is no longer a place where librarians wear black skirts and white tops, and where everyone is instructed to whisper. The library today is, among other things, an institution where people can gather to socialize."

Johnson Named Diplomate In Family Practice

Dr. Peter Johnson, Thief River Falls, has been named a diplomate of the American board of family practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a certification examination offered by the ABFP. He is now certified in the medical specialty of family practice.

The intensive two-day written examination is designed to indicate the candidate's ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics, gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and community medicine.

To qualify for the examination a physician must have completed either a three-year family practice residency or have been in family practice a minimum of six years and successfully completed 300 hours of continuing medical education approved by the American academy of the family physicians.

ABFP diplomates also must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years. No other medical specialty requires diplomates to prove competence on a continuing basis.

This series was written by and features Dr. Francis Schaeffer whom "Time" magazine called "a missionary to the intellectuals."

In the series, Dr. Schaeffer poses the following questions:

+ Why isn't it safe to walk our streets at night?

+ Why is there more violence on one hand and an ever increasing authoritarianism on the other?

+ What is happening to our accepted human freedoms?

+ Should we throw up our hands and give in?

If not, how should we then live?

Clarence Sande Honored As North Dakotan

Grand Forks agri-businessman Clarence Sande has been named recipient of the Greater North Dakotan award, Greater North Dakota association board chairman, Morris O. Broschat announced recently.

Sande will be presented the award at GNDA's annual awards banquet to be held during the annual conference in Dickinson October 5. He is the eighth North Dakotan to be so honored since the award was established in 1971.

Sande began farming with his father at their northern Minnesota farm and later was employed by Land O'Lakes in Thief River Falls for 12 years before joining the Flaat farm supply company in Grand Forks as salesman and manager of the seed division in 1941. In 1946 he and Larry Brown of Grand Forks co-founded the Agriculture Supply company, which in 1948 was formed into the AGSCO corporation, known today throughout the upper midwest.

"Sande has devoted his entire life to the promotion and support of business and agriculture for the benefit of North Dakota," Broschat said. "He is a staunch supporter of the private enterprise system and has been active his entire life in farming or business associated directly with agriculture."

In addition to his duties as vice president and secretary of AGSCO, Sande manages its seed division, advertising and promotion and farming operations.

He has been highly praised for taking the leadership in introducing the semi-dwarf wheat variety during 1967-70, which has generated in excess of $1 billion for the agriculture community.

Sande has also been a strong civic and state leader. While in Thief River Falls, he organized the city's junior chamber of commerce and served as president of the organization. He also served on the city council and was actively involved with the Boy scouts on the local and district levels for 12 years.

Sande's contributions to the Grand Forks community are many. He is a past vice-president of the Grand Forks chamber of commerce and chaired the fund drive and building project of the original Augustana Lutheran church, as well as the church's recent remodeling project. He is currently serving as chairman of the $9 million, 160-bed Valley Memorial nursing home building project.

Sande is chairman of the Consultation board for the North Dakota agricultural experiment station and extension service, and is a past chairman of the GNDA board of directors.

He and his wife Stella have four children: Curtis, a medical doctor in Caldwell, Idaho; Steven, mechanical engineer and production manager of AGSCO in Grand Forks; David, an oral surgeon in Grand Forks; and Karen (Mrs. Louis Smith) of Bismarck; and eight grandchildren.

Applicants To U.S. Military Schools Sought

U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz announced today that he is still accepting applications for nominations to U.S. service academies from persons who are currently high school seniors. Competition is based on high school grades, scholastic aptitude tests, physical fitness and leadership ability.

Those applicants meeting the basic requirements will receive notice from Senator Boschwitz in December of this year and will then be requested to appear before his academy selection committee.

Committee members will recommend up to 10 persons who will be nominated from the state of Minnesota for each service academy vacancy. Following the nominations, final selection of the one person from Minnesota for each vacancy in each academy will be made by the academies themselves.

Final selection is based on the results of scholastic aptitude tests, complete physical examination and careful evaluation of the applicant's motivation and suitability for pursuing the academy life and a subsequent military career.

Senator Boschwitz is encouraging high school seniors who feel that they may be qualified to file an application. "I personally view nomination to an academy as a tremendous opportunity, and I will look forward to receiving applications from students across the state. Those who are eventually accepted by the selection committee and by the academies will find this a rare educational and career experience."

Applications are available by writing: Senator Rudy Boschwitz, 210 Bremer Building, 419 N. Robert St., St. Paul, MN 55101.

Sponsors Bill To Subsidize Fuel For Poor

Many people — including those on fixed incomes, are concerned about how they are going to pay high fuel bills this winter, but under a bill co-sponsored by Congressman Arlan Stangeland, their worries may be laid to rest.

"Prices for fuel oil have doubled since last year and without an effective and meaningful fuel assistance program millions of this nation's elderly and low income people will face economic hardships that are difficult to imagine," Stangeland said.

Under this fuel assistance bill people with incomes less than 125 per cent of federal poverty levels, or 150 per cent for elderly households, would be eligible to receive aid. Payments would be for primary residential heating fuels including oil, natural gas, propane or electricity. Funding would be provided to the states based on low-income and elderly populations, weather, fuel costs and age of housing. Payments would be made to the fuel vendor designated by the recipient.

Middle income households using heating oil would also receive an energy tax credit of $300 maximum per household or $150 per individual. This credit would be passed out as income increases.

"This bill will assist the 24 million households which would otherwise have an extremely hard time surviving a winter of escalating inflation caused by skyrocketing energy costs. We cannot let these innocent people be forced to make choices between other necessities of life and paying their fuel bills," Stangeland said.

Price Index On Farm Products Up 3 Per Cent

Index of prices received by Minnesota farmers increased three per cent during the month ended September 15, the largest monthly increase since February. According to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service, higher prices for meat animals, milk and eggs more than offset declines for most crop commodities.

The increase in the meat animal index broke a string of six consecutive monthly declines. Compared to a year ago, prices were up for all commodities surveyed except hay, hogs, potatoes, sheep, turkeys and wool. Largest increases occurred for milk cows, dry beans, wheat and barley.

The crops index declined three per cent to 216 during the month, still 14 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-September prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.78 per bushel, down three cents from the revised August estimate; corn, $2.18, down seven cents; oats, $1.18, up four cents; barley, $2.33, up 21 cents; soybeans, $6.46, down 28 cents, flaxseed, $6.51, down one cent; potatoes averaged $2.93 per hundredweight for all grades, down $1.57 as harvest of the fall crop was well underway. All hay was $39.50 per ton, up 50 cents.

The meat animal index at 242 was six per cent above last month and four per cent above a year ago. All hogs at $37.10 per hundredweight were up $2.30 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $59.20, up $2.70. Calves were up $7.50 to $85.80. Sheep brought $23.70, up 80 cents. Lambs were up $5.70 to $65.70.

The dairy index increased two per cent during the month to 247, 12 per cent above the index last year. The preliminary milk price at $11.60 per hundredweight was up 27 cents from the revised August price.

Poultry and egg index at 200 was six per cent above last month and five per cent above a year ago. Turkeys were 37 cents per pound liveweight, unchanged from a month earlier. Eggs brought 47½ cents per dozen for all grades in mid-September, up 3½ cents from mid-August and five cents above a year earlier.

Shoemakers At Leadership Training Meet

Leadership training sessions will be conducted October 4 at Moorhead, October 9 at Bemidji, October 10 at Argyle and October 11 at Detroit Lakes for the 1980 "year of the family" celebration.

Jeff and Brenda Shoemaker, Thief River Falls, will represent St. Bernard's church at the session in Greenbush tonight. Since 1980 is the beginning of a decade, it has been suggested that everyone note this universal celebration of the "Year of the family".

Pope Paul VI pointed out that "the family is the chief cell, not only of human society, but also of the church." The sessions in October are scheduled to help design the planning process of listening.

DEMONSTRATION OF CRAFTS by various seniors was featured throughout all three days of the open house conducted at the Thief River Falls regional library September 25-27. Gunder Legvold attended the open house to display his collection of carved birds and demonstrate his wood carving technique.

WELCOME

COFFEE AND COOKIES were available to senior citizens daily during the open house at the Northwest regional library September 25-27. The three-day event offered seniors an opportunity to visit the libaray and friends for more than one day.

Bell Requests Report Cards On Service

Northwestern Bell is asking residential customers to grade the company on the quality of service it provides, the cost of the service and how employees treat customers.

Manager Al Bacon of Thief River Falls said the "report cards," which will be enclosed in bills starting in mid-September, are designed to be filled out and returned with the payment or dropped off at a company business office.

The card also has space for written comment. Anyone having a specific problem with phone service can describe it and include his or her phone number. The company will get back to the customer as soon as possible to resolve the problem.

Results of the statewide survey will be tabulated and reported in a future bill insert.

Cheryl L. Eveland of Newfolden is student teaching during fall quarter at Bemidji, Solway elementary, according to Dr. James Tillman, director of Bemidji state university student teaching.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the Bachelor of Science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

Student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

Yearbook Week Calls Attention To Old Books

"Twenty or thirty years from now when you look over your high school yearbook, you may find someone famous inside the covers. After all, today's top Hollywood stars were once high school students just like yourself," states Judy Schmit, a yearbook advisor at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls.

"If you look over some old yearbooks, you'll find there was frequently an early sign of the fame that eventually touched a classmate," she said, noting that October 1-7 is the first national yearbook week.

This is especially true for sports figures. Arnold Palmer, for example, was a member of his high school golf team for four years and won the Pennsylvania state golf championship. Joe Namath was on the football team, of course, and the slogan under his name still fits him, "Joe. . .magician with a football. . .always ready to have fun. . .carefree."

For those who found fame in the theater there are signs, too. Charlton Heston was in every high school play at New Trier high in Winnetka, Ill., and was a member of the drama club. Johnny Carson was a member of the Thespians and Dick VanDyke and Jimmy Stewart also had roles in class plays.

Yearbooks have been a part of U.S. students' lives for nearly 200 years. They are frequently used as a background source by the news media, reports the yearbook printers association, sponsor of the national week.

Famous people often worked on their high school yearbook, too. For example David Sole, who plays Hutch in the hit television show "Starsky and Hutch," was once a member of his yearbook staff. Gladys Knight was on her high school yearbook staff, and had a nickname with which everyone is now familiar, "Pip."

Farah Fawcett was voted most "beautiful girl" by her class, but Cheryl Tiegs, was not homecoming queen for her school, only a princess.

It's even possible that the high school yearbook you purchase this year may increase in value long before you and your classmates gather for your future reunions. Of course that depends on how famous you or one of your classmates becomes. A yearbook from Gerald Ford's class sold at an auction five years ago for $475, and classmates of Farah Fawcett have had offers as high as $150 for the yearbook which features her picture," Schmit notes.

Even if the members of your class never achieve Hollywood stardom or become president of the U.S., chances are you'll never return for a class reunion without first checking out your yearbook. You may not recognize the people 25 years after graduation, but you'll be sure to recall their activities and the plans they had then for the future.

Why not go through the old yearbooks at your high school? You might be surprised to find a famous person inside the pages of an older edition.

PERA Region Conferences Set For Area

Five regional conferences have been set by the Minnesota public employees retirement association (PERA) to discuss benefits and annuities available with members of the association.

Conferences in this area will be held October 9 and 10 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Beltrami county courthouse in Bemidji and October 11 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and October 12 from 8 a.m. to 12 noon at the Becker county courthouse in Detroit Lakes.

Persons who plan to retire within the next two or three years and would like an estimate of annuity and opportunity to discuss the application procedure may write the association at 203 Capitol square Building, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55101. Those writing should give date of retirement, and date, time and place they would like to meet with a staff member at one of the conferences.

A general informational meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. on the first day of each conference in the same building as the conferences will be held.

Note Increase In Interest On GI Home Loans

Veterans administration's interest rate on GI home loans has been increased from 10 to 10½ per cent, it was announced recently.

Irvin D. Noll, director of the VA medical and regional office center, Fargo, said the new rate, established for Federal housing administration loans by the secretary of housing and urban development, also applies to Veterans administration home loans.

Noll said the increase, effective September 26, was necessary to bring government rates in line with other competitive rates in the mortgage and financial markets.

He said the rate change does not affect existing VA home loans. Once a loan is made, the interest rate remains the same for the life of the loan.

New Rule May Boost Benefits Of Food Stamps

New food stamp rule will make certain elderly and disabled food stamp users eligible for increased benefits.

Under the new rule, elderly and disabled food stamp recipients will be eligible to deduct high medical expenses or exceptionally high shelter costs from their gross incomes. These deductions will have the effect of raising their food stamp benefits.

The new rule goes into effect nationwide no later than Jan. 1, 1980. States will have until Dec. 15, 1979 to notify elderly and disabled food stamp users that they may be eligible for increased benefits.

Elderly and disabled who are already using food stamps will need to apply for the increased benefits at the local food stamp office.

Public law 96-58, enacted August 14, amended the food stamp act of 1977 to allow deductions for monthly medical expenses exceeding $35, and shelter costs exceeding 50 per cent of adjusted income, for all persons aged 60 and over and recipients of supplemental security income or disability benefits under Title II of the social security act. Prior to this amendment, the 1977 food stamp act eliminated medical deductions and placed a limit of $90 a month on the amount of shelter costs households could claim.

As a result of the 1977 food stamp act, several million persons with higher incomes received reduced food stamp benefits, or had their food stamp benefits terminated. A significant number of those whose benefits were reduced were the elderly and disabled. As a result, Congress passed public law 96-58 to assure that the benefits of the elderly and disabled were restored to their earlier levels.

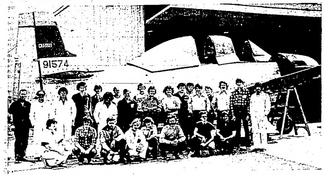
THIS CESSNA 210, a four-place plane manufactured in 1960 and still in current production, was obtained by the Thief River Falls AVTI for the military T-28 training plane in an exchange recently completed. This plane, shown with Al Redick of Chino, Calif., (left) and Don Schoonhoven, aviation mechanics instructor here, will provide students with much more practical training experience. Current price of new planes of this model is about $97,000, Redick said.



AVIATION MECHANICS STUDENTS at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute said goodbye to an institution last week. The T-28 military training plane which has been at the AVTI for 20 years was traded for a Cessna 210 to provide students with a more practical plane for learning. The T-28, which hadn't left the ground for those 20 years, was flown to Reno, Nev., where it will be fully restored.

flying condition. He has done it many times before, often quite profitably, and with each restoration his enthusiasm seems to grow.

"This plane spent most of its time in Georgia," Redick relates from the information he has obtained on the aircraft. "Then it went to San Antonio, Tex., for awhile before the military gave it away and it came up here. The military still has about 800 of this model and in some cases they are being used for pilot training today. Many others went to foreign countries where they became the military air force."

One gets the impression that Redick knows what he's talking about. He did a fair amount of work with planes used in the "Baa, Baa Black Sheep" television series and "12 O'Clock High". "I love that work," he said. "The pay is great."

He worked on restoration of a P-51 Mustang which was purchased by Johnny Rutherford and another P-51 which Steve Hinton of Chino, Calif., used to set a speed record for propeller-driven aircraft recently of 500 miles per hour.

Redick also owns his own B-25 which he flies several hundred hours a year although it burns about 100 gallons of fuel per hour. "Loook at it this way," he rationalizes. "Some people buy a $90,000 aircraft. I buy a $10,000 aircraft and that leaves me $80,000 for gas!"

To get the T-28 from the AVTI here he traded a Cessna 210 model built in 1960 but still in current production. "Right now a new plane of that model sells for $97,000," he said.

What about the one he traded. "I bought it as a bunch of parts," he said, "and put 'em together and flew it on out here. It's a good little plane."

Redick spent about three and one-half weeks with his new acquisition at the airport here, checking and repairing and replacing each system individually. He termed the plane in "average" condition but declined further comment. And he had no doubt whatsoever about it being airworthy and getting him back to Reno with stops at Rapid City, S.D., and Salt Lake City, Utah. Flight time was projected at seven and one-half hours.

Even the 20-year-old tires didn't seem to bother him much. "I plan to set her down real soft," he smiled. "There are a lot of plies in those tires. You could see the cords and still be safe." But when he gets around to restoration there will be new paint, new glass and new tires. He plans to fly it to a few air shows and eventually sell it.

Goddard Attends Rangers Camp

Tom Goddard, after participating in the New York Rangers National Hockey League training camp for 2½ weeks, is back in Thief River Falls and preparing for his third season with the Warroad Lakers senior amateur hockey team.

A Lincoln high school and University of North Dakota graduate, Goddard was invited to the Rangers' camp in Richmond, Va. as a free agent on the recommendation of a scout who watched him play in the Winnipeg area as a member of the Lakers.

But the big right-winger faced an uphill battle to land a spot in the Rangers organization because some 80 players were looking for work.

"I thought I was doing pretty good, but there are an awful lot of good hockey players around," said Goddard. "It's a pretty fine line that separates the players when you get up there."

Free agent status and age (24) would have necessitated an exceptional performance on the part of Goddard before he would have been able to dislodge any of the 40-some players that were already under contract. However, "If you're good enough, they'll find a spot for you," acknowledged Goddard who was hoping to land a spot on the Rangers' top American League farm club at New Haven, Conn.

Two years ago Goddard turned down an opportunity to play professional hockey with the Los Angeles Kings organization after the NHL team had selected him in the amateur draft. But the former Prowler and Sioux standout passed up a chance to play in the low-playing, roughly-played International League, considered a notch below the American League.

"It was fun. It was a good experience," said Goddard of his New York tryout that consisted almost entirely of two-hour scrimmage games each day. The Rangers divided the squad into four teams who faced each other in morning and afternoon matches. Goddard also played in exhibition games against the Washington Capitals rookies, against the American League Hershey, Pa. Bears and against the Rangers' 1978-79 parent club.

Goddard, who also failed in a bid to land a spot on the 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team, was hoping to attract the attention of the Rangers, but without fanfare in Thief River Falls. "I was just going to kind of slip out of town, and if things didn't work out, slip back in," he said.

Miscellaneous

+Bemidji city council has announced a $23,000 cut from the city's summer recreation program of $37,745, and the decision upset Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer who wrote, "While the council decision came with no advance notice and shocking suddenness to most residents, it reflected the continuing disinterest in recreation by the city administration. Bemidji's total park and recreation budget is well under those of such smaller area communities as Crookston and East Grand Forks and its lack of facilities has long been embarrassing. Now it appears the lack of facilities will be matched by a lack of a program.

+Marchell Cuppett, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, continues to play well as a goalie for the University of North Dakota women's field hockey team. Cuppett allowed just six goals in three games as the Sioux competed in the North Country invitational at Bemidji last weekend. "Cuppett's play last weekend was again excellent," reported UND coach Margaret Peterson. Cuppett will take a sparkling 1.61 goals against average (21 goals in 13 games) to a weekend invitational tournament at the University of North Dakota. Cuppett has a 6-7 record, which includes four shutouts.

+Cliff Morlan of the Bemidji Pioneer says Bemidji is "a two-touchdown favorite" heading into Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference high school football game in Thief River Falls.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 5, has been designated as national coaches day for the 1979-80 school year. Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith says, "This is the day when the entire nation will recognize the men and women who help make good citizens and athletes out of the young people from their communities. We feel one of the most valuable resources of the Thief River Falls community is the large number of people who devote hundreds of hours to developing girls and boys physically and emotionally through interscholastic athletics." Thief River Falls varsity head coaches include Lincoln mentors Gene Jurgens, football; Bill McGann, cross country; Whitey Olson, boys and girls tennis; John Hustad, girls swimming; Sharon Stauss, volleyball; Wendell Grand, hockey; Charlie Cornell, baseball; Glen Peters, boys basketball; John Kopari, boys swimming and boys track; Sylvia Sjoberg, girls basketball and girls golf; Jack Boyer, boys golf; and Tom Schafer, girls track. Northland coaches include Chet Engelman, men's basketball and baseball; Deb Jacobson, women's basketball, volleyball and softball; Irv Smith, football and tennis; and athletic director Al Adams who coaches golf.

Swimmers Come Close To Upsetting Spuds, 87-85

Missing top diver Brenda Lund, the Lincoln high school swimming team still threatened to pull off a major upset Tuesday before losing to highly regarded Moorhead 87-85 in the Franklin middle school pool.

Even without Lund, who missed the meet because of illness, the Prowlers finished 1-2 in the diving competition with sophomores Lisa Desrocher and Lori Swanson. But Lund, the area's premiere diver, would have given Thief River Falls a 1-2-3 finish, adding three points to the Prowlers' total while subtracting three from the Spuds, which would have made for an 88-84 Thief River Falls final.

"Brenda would have made the difference in the meet," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach John Hustad who still found plenty of reasons to smile in spite of the setback. "I was not at all unhappy," he said. "We had some very good performances."

Top Thief River Falls effort came from junior Kathy Dillon who tied a Lincoln school record with a first place 58.6 clocking in the 100-yard freestyle. Joan Jury set the mark in 1975.

Hustad also called Desrocher's 209.45-point diving performance "excellent" and was especially happy with a 1-2-3 sweep in the 100-yard breaststroke where junior Franki Kuyath swam a 1:18.4, senior Johanna Desrocher 1:19.4 and sophomore Robin Dallmann 1:19.0.

"Our breaststrokers are back in the grove," smiled Hustad who had special priase for Dallmann who turned in her best time in over a year.

On the scoreboard the 1-2-3 sweep in the breaststroke brought the Prowlers from a 78-65 deficit to within 81-78 going in to the final event. However, it was even closer than that because an error in the officials' scoring that was not detected until the conclusion of the meet failed to show that the score was actually deadlocked at 79-79 going into the meet-ending 400-yard freestyle relay.

The Spuds made the scoring error, which wasn't finally solved until 15 minutes after all of the spectators and some of the competitors had left, academic, though, with an easy relay win.

Hustad was surprised at the number of firsts accumulated by the Prowlers who normally do most of their scoring with depth instead of wins. Joining Desrocher, Dillon and Kuyath as winners were junior Betsie Hallstrom who continued her claim as the section's top sprinter with a 26.8 in the 50-yard freestyle and the 200-yard medley relay where freshman Shari McGann, Kuyath, junior Joan Giauque and Hallstrom swam a 2:05.

"Instead of depth, we got some firsts," noted Hustad. "Moorhead had the depth."

Moorhead, considered the top team in Section 3, also had some firsts — three from Georgia Corner who won the 200-yard individual medley, the 500-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke.

Thief River Falls, 3-3 in dual meet competition, will be at Fargo South for a Thursday afternoon dual and will be at Fergus Falls for a Saturday invitational.

400 freestyle relay — 1. Moorhead (Haaland, Ole, Larson, Corner), 4:07.7; 2. TRF, 4:17.7; 3. TRF, 4:34.2.

COMPLETING A turn in the 200-yard individual medley, Thief River Falls junior Andrea Lia caught a quick breath of air during the Prowlers' dual meet confrontation with a strong Moorhead squad Tuesday in the Franklin middle school pool. The Spuds fought off the Prowlers' upset bid to win 87-85.

Prowlers vs. Lumberjacks Friday . . .

Bemidji Speed Creates Homecoming Problems

Speed kills. And the Bemidji high school football team that will be here Friday for Thief River Falls' 1979 homecoming game features an abundance of the stuff. To win their Northwest Athletic Conference opener, the Prowlers will have to find a way to slow down the highly regarded Lumberjacks who will enter the 7:30 p.m. game with a spotless 5-0 record, 1-0 in the NWAC.

Bemidji followers are indicating this just might be one of the best teams in the Lumberjacks' storied football history. And a big reason for the high self-esteem is the fleet-footed backfield of Dale Leonard, a 5-9, 170-pound tailback; Nelson Rotto, a 6-1, 185-pound fullback; and Craig Erhart, a 5-9, 167-pound flanker. All three are game-breakers but Leonard is the headliner.

"We'll have to key on Leonard," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens. "When he comes out of that backfield we better have someone in his hip pocket. We've got to try to keep the ball away from him, and if he does get it, we'd better be there to stop him. The problem is, he's not easy to bring down."

Leonard is as versatile as he is talented. In wins over Crosby-Ironton 52-6, Little Falls 14-6, Detroit Lakes 46-20, Park Rapids 26-6 and Fergus Falls 32-7, Leonard has scored 10 touchdowns and produced 735 all-purpose yards, including 482 yards rushing, 40 yards receiving and 213 yards in kick returns.

"I don't think you're going to beat Bemidji by keying on Leonard alone," admits Jurgens, "but he's obviously the long threat. He's capable of the long gain every time he gets the ball. You've got a much better chance of beating them by keeping the ball away from him. We don't want to give up those 50-yard runs. If they're going to move it 50 yards, we want to make them do it in 10 plays, not one, because then we have a chance to stop them or force a turnover."

However, Leonard isn't the only weapon in the Bemidji wing-1 attack. Rotto has rushed for 397 yards and Erhart, with six touchdowns, ranks second to Leonard in the NWAC individual offensive charts with 636 all-purpose yards, including 210 yards rushing (9.5-yard average), 176 yards receiving and 250 yards in kick returns.

Most of the Bemidji offense comes off the option, directed by quarterback John Herath, a 160-pound junior and the only underclassman in the backfield. One way to stop the option, says Jurgens, is to force the quarterback to carry the ball by quickly covering the pitchman. Herath has netted just 16 yards on the ground since replacing Rob Egersdorf at quarterback, a move by coach Ray Kavanagh that has strengthened the Lumberjacks even further by returning Egersdorf to an end where he's played in the past.

The Bemidji offense has made the news, but the defense isn't shabby, either. The Lumberjacks intercepted six Fergus Falls passes last week.

"They have good size up front, and they don't have to gamble with their linebackers and defensive backs because they feel their line can handle things," explained Jurgens. "You're not going to throw deep against Bemidji — you never could. Their defensive backs are so deep and their linebackers drop quickly on the pass because they know they can do a good job just rushing five people. They have six people back there in the secondary and they can pick up those interceptions if you try to throw deep."

The assignment is tough, but Jurgens says the Prowlers aren't shying away from the confrontation. "We're looking forward to it. No doubt about it, they're good, but we feel we can play well enough to stick with them. Obviously we're going to have to play mistake-free football."

Thief River Falls is 2-3 for the year, losing to Moorhead 41-14 last week. The Prowlers lost the services of senior halfback Dave Odegaard in that game when he went down with a knee injury in the second half. He is expected to return to action before the end of the season, but not this week. Senior Tom Bjorkman will step into the starting line-up.

Offensively the last three weeks have been productive for the Prowlers in general and senior captain Bill Jury in particular. Jury has a strong of three straight 100-yard rushing games, including a 168-yard effort against the Spuds. Jury ranks third in those NWAC total offensive figures with 617 yards, including 421 yards rushing, 95 yards receiving and 101 yards in kick returns.

"We've been rolling up yards the last three weeks," confirmed Jurgens. "Hopefully our defense can come back to the way they were playing before the Moorhead game. You can't have just the offense or just the defense play a good game if you want to beat somebody like Bemidji."

Area Football Features Variety This Weekend

A showdown, a rivalry and a homecoming game will all highlight this week's area high school football scene.

+The showdown is a North Tri County Conference game Friday afternoon at Middle River where the 4-1 Skippers will find out if they're legitimate title contenders when they tackle unbeaten McIntosh-Winger.

Although they struggled to get past Mentor 24-14 last week, the Skippers haven't lost since a 22-6 season-opening setback at the hands of defending conference champion Gonvick, a season-long number one pick in the state Associated Press nine-man football poll. McIntosh-Winger, considered Gonvick's top threat, will not face the Bulldogs until the final week of the 1979 season.

+ The rivalry will also be played Friday afternoon when Goodridge takes the short drive to Grygla. The Huskies have never beaten the Eagles. The series began in 1974 when Grygla's brand-new school initiated football with a 21-0 first game win over Goodridge. The Eagles also beat the Huskies 20-12 in 1975, 54-14 in 1977 and 46-8 in 1978. Goodridge did not field a football team in 1976.

Goodridge and Grygla enter Friday's contest with identical 1-4 records and are coming off similar defeats as the Huskies lost to Gonvick 35-6 and the Eagles fell to McIntosh-Winger 40-8. To carry the similarities even further, Goodridge, and Grygla both recorded their only wins the week before when the Huskies edged Clearbrook 20-16 and the Eagles handled Mentor 36-14.

+ The homecoming game will be played in Newfolden Saturday night when Marshall County Central plays Lake of the Woods at 7 p.m.

Marshall County Central is 2-3 for the year, but last week's 14-12 win over Greenbush was played under nine-man rules. The Nordics return to 11-man Top of the State Conference play this week.

In other North Tri County Conference games Friday, Oklee will be at Mentor, Plummer at Gonvick and Clearbrook at Erksine. Plummer beat Clearbrook 56-26 and Oklee stopped Erskine 20-6 to complete last week's conference play.

Friday's Top of the State Conference schedule will find Karlstad at Hallock, Roseau at Warroad and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart at Argyle. Top of the State leader Stephen will be at Walhala for a nonconference game that night. Last week, Roseau upset Argyle 20-8, Warroad defeated Karlstad 24-14, Stephen handled Sacred Heart 27-8 and Hallock outlasted Lake of the Woods 27-20 in two overtimes.

Itasca Offense Tests Northland Defense Saturday . . .

Northmen Shooting For Third Straight Win At Homecoming

Northland community college football team will be trying to make history for the third straight week Saturday when the Northmen host Itasca in a 1:30 p.m. MJCAA Northern Division game on the Thief River Falls athletic field that will serve as the 1979 Northland homecoming attraction.

Two weeks ago the Northmen made history by beating Hibbing 7-0 for their first ever shutout. Last week Northland knocked off Fergus Falls 6-3 for its first ever Minnesota junior college athletic association road win. Saturday the Northmen will be shooting for their third straight win, another "first" for the four-year-old program.

A year ago Northland won back-to-back games over the Bemidji State University junior varsity 19-6 and Fergus Falls 12-7 but then got roughed up by Itasca 35-12 in a mistake-filled game played at Coleraine.

Saturday's game shapes up as a classic struggle matching Northland's unyielding defense against Itasca's ground-gobbling offense.

"Itasca is probably the best team we've faced," said Northland coach Irv Smith whose team lost to Mesabi 20-6 and fell to Vermilion 10-0 before the wins appeared. "They're the best balanced club between offense and defense we've seen."

Itasca's real strength, though, is its offense, a ground-orientated attack featuring Wayne Bohn, a 170-pound sophomore from Cass Lake that Smith rates highly.

"Itasca has a very good offense," warned Smith. "Bohn is an outstanding runningback. He has excellent balance and good quickness. He's a tough kid."

Freshman Todd Sanders, a 195-pounder from Grand Rapids, is Bohn's runningmate in the backfield that is directed by Cass Lake sophomore Blain Senn, a fine option quarterback, says Smith.

"If we play our defense right, they can't run that option against us," explained Smith. "But they have moved the ball so well that nobody has been able to stop them. It'll be a good challenge for our defense. We want to try to make them throw the football, but we don't know if we'll be able to stop their running game."

Itasca success has matched Northland to date. The Vikings lost to Vermilion 7-0 and fell to Hibbing 7-6 to start the year but bounced back to crush Fergus Falls 43-7 and last week shut out Brainerd 16-0.

"They moved the ball against everybody. They stopped themselves against Vermilion and Hibbing," noted Smith. Indeed, the Vikings racked up 440 yards worth of offense, including 249 yards by Bohn, against the Ironmen and Cardinals.

Changes will be made in the Northland line-up this week, some out of necessity because of knee injuries suffered by flanker Joe Kraska, a sophomore from Lancaster, and Howard Belto, a freshman from Hallock, and the departure of guard Terry Eddins, a freshman from Miami, Fla.

Kraska's injury will likely sideline him for the season. Freshman Ray Barnett of Miami was his back-up, but he may share playing time with freshman Jeff Olson of Warren who has been playing split end. Freshmen Chris Brown and Scott Brown of Miami are the likely candidates for the vacant guard spot, but Scott, a 5-8, 200-pounder, may be used at fullback.

Another new starter could be freshman quarterback Tony Smith of Inkster, Mich. who came in last week and led the Northmen to a fourth quarter touchdown with his strong passing ability. Smith started the season opener, but was replaced by freshman Lloyd Miller, a late arrival from Miami. Smith is 10-for-15 in the passing department and his coach says, "We've got to start tapping some of that potential," although he wouldn't name a starter for Saturday. Miller is considered the better option quarterback, but Irv Smith says, "If Itasca is committed to shutting down our option, then we'll throw the ball." And that means Tony Smith.

In other Northern Division games this week, Brainerd will be Mesabi, Crookston at Vermilion and Golden Valley Lutheran at Hibbing. Last week, Golden Valley Lutheran Beat Vermilion 28-15 and Mesabi stopped Crookston 10-6.

Prowlers Beat Lumberjills 2-0

First Thief River Falls-Bemidji high school volleyball match was a short one Tuesday as the Prowlers handled the first-year Lumberjills 18-7, 18-5.

Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss was happy to add the first-year Bemidji to the Prowlers' schedule, even though the Lumberjills' first-year program is struggling. "Their bumps are pretty clean, but they lack offensive spiking," she explained. "But in a couple of year they'll be right up there. They'll be a good addition to the region."

Serving continues to be a Thief River Falls strong point as the Prowlers connected on 84 per cent of their first game serves and finished with an 80 per cent second game figure. An 85 per cent service success is considered state tournament material — providing of course, you have the rest of the game to go along with the service. And at this point, the Prowlers don't. "We're getting the serves over, but that's what you're expected to do," noted Stauss. "We're still mission an offense."

Junior Marlys Huot served nine straight first game points for the Prowlers and senior Nancy Noreen followed with a string of seven straight service points in the second game as Thief River Falls improved its record to 6-6.

Lincoln junior varsity record climbed to 7-4 with an 18-16, 18-8 win at Bemidji. Lynette Huot and Jill Matson had strings of nine and 11 service points, respectively, in the junior varsity match.

Thief River Falls will be idle until Sat., Oct. 13, when the Prowlers will host their second annual Northern Lights invitational tournament.

Jurgens, McGann Will Address Sports Boosters

Gene Jurgens, Lincoln high school football coach, and Bill McGann, Thief River Falls cross country coach, will both address the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Thursday at 12 noon at the Rex Cafe.

The luncheon meeting is open to the public.

Fergus Falls Tops Northland By 3-0 Score

Northwest Division opener for the Northland community college volleyball team featured preseason favorite Fergus Falls Tuesday and the Spartans left Thief River Falls with a 3-0 victory by winning 15-4, 15-6, 15-6.

"We made mistakes at the wrong time — if there ever is a right time to make mistakes," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "We played so well when they served, but then we wouldn't play so well when we got the serve, and we wouldn't score."

The loss dropped Northland's season record to 1-9.

"Fergus Falls is probably the toughest team in our division," mentioned Jacobson. "They had the ability to put the ball away with their spikes, and we didn't.

Bagley placed nine runners among the top ten finishers in the girls race to win easily with 16 points, followed by East Grand Forks 66, Grand Forks Central 97, and Thief River Falls 126, with Grand Forks Red River fielding an incomplete team.

A Record White Pine Found In Itasca County

"Not all champions are found on the playing fields," says Frank Usniak, Department of Natural Resources forester.

Largest known white pine tree in Minnesota has been found in Itasca state park by Paul Rundell of Bemidji, Usniak reported.

Dimensions of the new state champion include a circumference of 173 inches, a height of 112 feet and a crown spread of 48.75 feet.

By coincidence the white pine is growing about one-fourth mile from the state champion Norway pine. For some time Minnesota's giant Norway was thought to be the largest specimen of its kind in the United States, but it was later dethroned by a tree in Michigan.

Michigan's national champion has a circumference of 120 inches, is 116 feet tall and has a crown spread of 68 feet.

Minnesota's Norway pine leader has about the same circumference and height but a smaller crown spread. "That's the only difference between the two trees," said Usniak.

He said another large tree found recently is a green ash, discovered near the local waste treatment plant by Bob Moscovitz of Anoka.

It has a circumference of 152 inches, a height of 73 feet and a 63 foot crown spread.

During the last week in September, a third large tree and new state champion was reported, said Usniak. Located in Brownsdale in Mower county, a white ash with a circumference of 125.6 inches, a height of 85 feet and a crown spread of 30 feet was found by two Rochester men.

Lincoln Wins Prowler Relays

Host Thief River Falls won six of the nine events Saturday to run away with championship honors in the second annual Prowler girls swimming relays. The defending champions accumulated 46 points, followed by Detroit Lakes 31, International Falls 29, Bemidji 19 and Park Rapids 14.

"It was a very good meet for us," said Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "It (an easy win) was not expected."

The stage was set for a good Thief River Falls showing in the very first event when disqualifications handed to Bemidji and International Falls shoved the Prowlers' Shelley McGann, Brenda Lund, Kathy Dillon and Betsie Hallstrom into first place.

"That set us up," admitted Hustad. "Then everything else was good showings on our part. They're making those steady improvements."

RLF Is 2-1 Winner Over Lincoln Monday

Red Lake Falls rebounded from an 18-9 first game loss to beat Thief River Falls 18-11, 18-12 Monday for a 2-1 home court high school volleyball win.

The Prowlers played without the services of starters Paula Kertz and LeAnn Paetznick, both sidelined because of illness.

"Marlys Huot took over the setter's job for Paula," explained Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "She doesn't have the experience at the net, but she did a good job and kept us in there."

Red Lake Falls was also a 2-1 winner in the junior varsity match 19-17, 15-18, 18-14.

NATIONAL COACHES DAY
FRIDAY OCT. 5th

Some of the most valuable resources in our Community are the many men and women who devote so many hundreds of hours of their time to the development of our boys and girls, both physically and emotionally, through athletics.

Whether you coach a Prowler or Northmen team, the Tiny Mites, or any of the many other teams at all age levels in between, you can be proud of your contribution to changing our boys and girls into adult men and women. This, after all, is the most important result of your work, and the results are great.

We at First Northwestern Bank say thanks coaches for your hard work, long hours and a job well done.

Consider Two Building Plans At School Meet

on October 15, at which time the question will be raised again. Specific questions to be addressed were brought up by board members following failure of both resolutions.

Public meeting was called by the board of education to present two alternatives selected by a citizens committee which had studied the school district building situation and five main proposals prepared by the architectural and engineering firm of Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen. The board also was seeking input from the public regarding opinions, attitudes and reactions regarding building needs of the district.

Dan Moll of the architectural firm reviewed the two alternatives which had been selected by the citizens committee as representative of methods by which the district could solve some of its building problems.

Alternative One has a total estimated cost of $5,327,245 and includes general improvements to the elementary schools, middle school, high school, service center and center school at $1,657,500; remodeling at Lincoln high school of $547,250; addition to Lincoln at $1,336,289; demolition of two older portions of Lincoln and two separate buildings behind the school at $210,755; updating of buildings to meet handicapped and building codes at $505,000 total; architect's fees of $341,200; contingencies of $460,620; equipment of $243,000; and fees and miscellaneous of $17,425.

Alternative Five would cost an estimated $8,860,000 and would include $1,362,500 for improvements to elementary, middle and senior high schools, construction of a new high school at $6,507,424, demolition of the buildings mentioned in Alternative One for $210,755, architects' fees, contingencies, equipment and fees, and an auditorium included in the new high school building.

At the board meeting following the public meeting, a resolution was introduced in favor of Alternative Five and a vote taken. Voting in favor were Ken Wiebolt, Ken Murphy and Wally Grovum with Sorvig, Larry McDowell, Harry Sjulson and Maynard Wedul opposed.

Resolution 1, adopt Alternative One failed with Wedul, McDowell and Sjulson in favor and Murphy, Sorvig, Wiebolt and Grovum opposed.

Questions at the public meeting were fielded by Moll and Ken Skold of the architectural firm and Dave Goblisch of Springstead, Inc., bonding consultant firm.

Goblisch emphasized the difficulty in projecting costs to individual taxpayers as a result of a bond issue because of the complex tax structure which allows for various credits. Based on the present valuation of the district, however, he indicated that a bond issue for the larger issue would add approximately 17 mills to the 122 mills currently assessed for all local government agencies. The less costly proposal would raise the levy about 13 mills, he said, with repayment period projected at 24 years.

The bonding consultant also pointed out the extremely low debt carried by the district at this time in relation to its bonding limit of more than $32 million. The district currently has less than 10 per cent of that limit in bonded indebtedness, including a large portion which is to be paid by the state for vocational school construction.

New Firearms Regulation At Air Terminals

A new and broader prohibition regarding the attempt to carry a firearm on board an airplane recently went into effect, according to Thief River Falls chief of police Ken Froschheiser. The new law, which is part of the ammended federal aviations regulations, provides for a civil penalty against any person having a firearm, explosive or incendiary device on or about the individual's person or accessible property while entering or while in a sterile (secure) area in any airport terminal. Violations are investigated under civil regulations by FAA inspectors.

"Because of this change," Froschheiser says, "it is imperative that all persons traveling by air be reminded and familiarized with the law. Signs will be posted in each airport advising the public that it is 'illegal to have a firearm, explosive or incendiary device on their person or in hand-carried articles when passing an inspection point. Violators are subject to civil penalty'."

Local law enforcement officials are in charge of enforcement of this law and will serve as security guards at the airport. All persons found in violation are subject to arrest and prosecution and will not be allowed to board the aircraft at the time of the violation.

Froschheiser cautions that even though persons may have a permit to carry a firearm, the permit is invalid and will not authorize the person to carry a firearm aboard an aircraft or in a secured area of an airport and the persons will be subject to arrest for doing so.

FOR SALE
40 ACRES OF CHOICE RIVER PROPERTY

2½ miles south of Thief River Falls on Hwy. 32, ½ mile of river frontage. Beautifully wooded oak, ash, elm and basswood. Rich black soil. 17 acres of oak grove, 7 acres of homesite and grove, 8 acres riverside park with huge old trees, 8 acres field, windbreak and garden. Uniquely isolated by river on two sides, highway and open farm land on the other. River bottomland across the river prevents future development which enhances the peace and tranquility and provides a wild isolated area for canoeing, boating, cross country skiing and snowmobiling. Controlled development would preserve this tranquility. Large 3 bedroom remodeled home, 2½ baths, oak woodwork and cupboards, fully carpeted, beautiful river view, large garage and outbuildings. This farm could be subdivided into 7 large country estates that could share a private community park. If plotted it would make 30 one acre building sites with a private community park. The oak grove and park would make a beautiful 25 acre overnight campgrounds or trailer court. We prefer to sell all in one transaction to one or more buyers, singly or collectively.

Hunter Is A Guest Of The Landowner

Hunters should remember that they are guests of the landowner — and conduct themselves accordingly, says commissioner of natural resources Joseph Alexander.

"If hunters will put themselves in the place of the landowner and look at the problem from his point of view," he said, "they will be far less likely to offend.

"Always try to seek out the landowner and obtain his permission before entering private lands — even if the land is not posted. There may be some parts of the land he does not want hunted and he may have other instructions or conditions the hunter should know about.

"And stop by and say 'thank you' when you leave. Further, if you have had a good shoot, it doesn't hurt to offer the landowner a bird or two. You may find that you will be even more welcome the next time you stop by for hunting permission."

Alexander said some of the things that infuriate landowners are trampling unpicked crops, shooting near buildings, failure to close gates resulting in escape of domestic livestock, littering and outright vandalism.

He also called attention to the state's new trespass law passed at the recent legislative session. The law has been reprinted in copies of all the 1978 hunting regulations.

"Hunters should read the regulation carefully," said Alexander, "and abide by its provisions."

He noted that one reason for passage of the law was complaints from private landowners of hunter conduct.

"More and more private land is being closed to hunting every year," he said, "largely because of a bad experience the private landowner has had with hunters."

He said hunters can reverse this trend if they are willing to make the effort of policing their own ranks.

"The Department of Natural Resources is trying to help the cause with its pilot program of adult hunter education," said Alexander, "but we need the cooperation of every person in the field with a gun to do the job right."

DNR Workshop Is October 18 In Detroit Lakes

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will present its fall environmental education workshop Thurs., Oct. 18, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Camp Shawandessee near Detroit Lakes.

Offerings include:

"Basic survival — a two hour practicum that teaches how to survive blizzards, rain storms, getting lost etc. Participants make, test and get to keep an emergency survival kit.

Advanced survival begins where basic survival leaves off. Includes detailed information on first-aid and environmental injuries, trip planning, specific navigational skills, priorities, shelters and much more. Prerequisite for this session is basic survival.

Three levels of orienteering are Orienteering I (the basics), teaches map and compass usage; Orienteering II, stresses navigational skills for outdoor activities; and Orienteering Practical, for instructor and deals with map making and correcting, course setting and precision route finding. A "mini orienteering meet is included.

Outdoor cooking deals with types of food to take on outdoor packing or canoe trips and type of stoves that are available. Noon lunch will be prepared this way.

"Snowshoeing and cross country skiing — participants will help make inexpensive snowshoes and fitting commercial snowshoes and cross country skis will be demonstrated.

For teachers who may be interested in solar water heating, there will be a session on building solar hot water heaters and the solar Olympics will be discussed. (Ten schools will be offered small grants for students to design and build solar water heaters. A competition will be held among the designs.)

Sandhill Crane Often Seen In Area In Fall

If during the next few weeks you spot birds flying with legs and neck stretched almost straight out to about 4½ feet and wings spread as much as six feet, listen closely to detect if their call sounds like the protesting squawking of rusty hinges.

If so, you have probably seen Greater Sandhill cranes — the third largest bird in this country. Only California condors and whooping cranes are bigger among Mother Nature's North American wild birds and both of the latter, are classed as endangered species. In 1966, Greater Sandhill cranes were a threatened species. But in 1973, they were taken off the list.

Chances of spotting Greater Sandhill cranes are enhanced in the gall because they make stops on their migrations southward. From late September to the first few days in November, cranes gather at one of their major stopovers — the Jasper Polaski game management area in northwestern Indiana.

Before departing Michigan's upper penisula, they gather in areas near Escanaba and St. Ignace. Most are residents from late March through September of the six easternmost counties of Michigan's upper peninsula. One morning last September, 500 Greater Sandhill cranes were counted leaving one wetland roosting area in the Hiawatha national forest to feed in grain stubble fields near the forest.

Management efforts ensure the proper habitat for breeding, feeding, and resting areas. Large bogs in the Hiawatha national forest ensure the privacy needed by nesting pairs. This is why the eastern upper peninsula today is known as the major population center of Greater Sandhill cranes. Population centers also are found in south central Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ontario.

Wildlife biologists estimate that the eastern upper peninsula population now includes between 50 and 60 nesting pairs and between 200 to 300 Geater Sandhill cranes that have not reached breeding age (about four years). This population has expanded because of cooperation from individual residents, officials of Michigan's department of natural resources and of counties and local governments in the eastern upper peninsula.

The Hiawatha national forest is preparing a management plan that should further increase this population. This could include limitations on timber harvesting, road and trail building, and some recreation uses from March 25 to June 15 within specified distances of nests. Efforts also could include policies to maintain and develop upland openings and encourage the growth of types of vegetation preferred by Greater Sandhill cranes.

Residents will be encouraged to grow wheat because grain stubble left after harvest provides food for Greater Sandhill cranes during their autumn gatherings.

The Greater Sandhill cranes that congregate at two areas northeast of Escanaba fly southwesterly along the Wisconsin shores of Lake Michigan. Those gathering due north of St. Ignace fly through the lower peninsula, making stopovers in Jackson and Washtenaw counties in southern Michigan. The birds use the same routes in their spring migrations northward. The earliest return date recorded in the upper peninsula was March 25. Most return to the Upper Peninsula during the second week in April.

A baby tree frog only half an inch long can jump over five times its length straight up in the air, says Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine for children. A full-size tree frog can jump even higher — over 20 times its length.

Canvasbacks Barely Holding Own In Spite Of Regulations

They are big, beautiful, good-eating and decoy well; but they are in short supply. The canvasback, once one of the most famous and sought-after ducks by waterfowlers, now seems to be holding its own, but not in great numbers.

"Breeding ground surveys taken in May since 1955 show the canvasback population fluctuating between 400,000-700,000 but averaging around a half million with the redhead population at a slightly higher level. In contrast, the lesser scaup (bluebill) population is about ten times higher," according to Art Hawkins, wildlife biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) in Minneapolis.

Why can't we increase production and manage habitat for this popular diving duck once exceeding the mallard in popularity? It seems there are a variety of factors influencing the canvasback.

Canvasbacks and redheads are over-water nesting ducks; that is they build their nests in stands or clumps of cattails or bulrushes growing in the water. This type of habitat has not disappeared as rapidly as some other types of wetlands because the deeper water marshes are less feasible to drain. Even where the habitat hasn't changed much, nesting success has dropped from 70 per cent to 50 per cent or lower and the main culprit appears to be the "masked bandit" of the Midwest — the raccoon. At least, the drop coincided with the invasion of the prairie pothole region by raccoons in the mid-fifties, and the difference of about 20 per cent when added to other mortality apparently is enough to keep cans and redheads from increasing.

"Raccoons have a very direct impact on the canvasback population. Unlike skunks and foxes, they forage for food in water as well as on land and destroy nests which other predators can't reach," said biologist Hawkins.

Changes in land-use patterns and habitat in the Canadian and northern U.S. "prairie pothole region" has provided the raccoon with ideal conditions to increase its numbers. Abandoned farm buildings caused by the consolidation of small farm units, and large brush-piles from bulldozed fencerows and windbreaks have provided new homes for raccoons. In addition, raccoons receive only light pressure from hunting or trapping in this area, despite record high prices for raccoon pelts. Hibernation comes to the northland early shortening the period that they are available to hunters and trappers. Coon hunting, a popular activity in more southerly regions, also suffers from a lack of raccoons due to hibernation, and this has few enthusiasts due to lack of interest.

The canvasback is vulnerable in other ways as well. "About three-fourths of the continent's population of canvasbacks migrate through a relatively small geographic area during a very limited time frame," Hawkins added, "and migration occurs when hunting activity in Canada and northern states is at a peak." This places the bird in a precarious position.

Should food for the migration-weary canvasbacks be in short supply, the welfare of large numbers of birds could be in jeopardy. Karl Korschgen, FWS biologist stationed at La Crosse, Wis., explains: "We've had 193,000 canvasbacks in late October on a 50-mile stretch of the Mississippi river near La Crosse. We hate to think of what could happen to these birds if there was no food available for them." The winter bud on wild celery, a high-energy food favored by canvasbacks is abundant on Lake Onaloska near La Crosse. "This year may present a problem for the canvasback. Lake Onaloska has lots of wild celery, but high, turbid water downstream has hurt the food this year," according to Korschgen.

Wildlife biologists are also concerned about the potential hazards of an accidental spill of oil or other hazardous material. An accidental spill on the Mississippi river when canvasbacks are at the peak of their migration concentration could prove devastating to the species.

Hunting pressure on the canvasback is strictly controlled. The 1979 waterfowl season will again find the canvasback a protected species along both sides of the Mississippi river from Prescott, Wis., to Alton Dam in southern Illinois. This area receives the greatest concentration of birds in the flyway, hence the closure during the waterfowl season. Canvasbacks are also protected in several other areas along their migration route, and hunters should be aware of the regulations in the area they propose to hunt.

While the canvasback and the redhead have maintained a rather low population over the past few decades, biologists are somewhat optimistic that their numbers are showing an increase. There appears to be enough habitat to support more birds, and biologists are trying to assist these birds in attempts to increase their numbers.

Hopefully, the day may come when the birds will travel the flyway in numbers that rival the "good old days."

Fall Fishing

Autumn's excitement comes to a thrilling climax as Minnesota's woods and forests burst into a multi-colored picture. There are changes in our lakes, too.

For the walleye fishermen, the frog migration is a signal for some of the best fishing of the year. After the first nippy frost the frogs head for hibernation on the bottom of the lakes. This migration lasts through the month of November with mild weather. There is a reception committee waiting to greet the frogs as they enter the lakes as the walleyes come in close to shore where there are sandy bottoms to banquet on the frogs.

Many lakes which offer slow walleye fishing during the summer months perk up in September, October and November. Two of the best examples of this are Lake Tetonka at Waterville and Cannon Lake at Faribault. In northern Minnesota most of the lakes are excellent in the fall, including Big Winnie, Leech and Mille Lacs.

Nevis Report

Kelley Cirks of the Sport Shop at Nevis is enthusiastic about the fishing in lakes in Hubbard county near Nevis and Park Rapids. Lake Belle Taine produced several walleye in September that weighed over ten pounds. Leeches are the best bait. Kelley caught a string of crappies on Belle Taine with several going two pounds and better. Northerns are hitting spoons.

Grand Rapids

Nine walleye weighing over six pounds were registered at Rapids Tackle in Grand Rapids last week. The largest weighed eight-pounds, 14-ounces and was caught by Leroy Cass of Kokomo, Indiana in Cutfoot Lake.

M. J. Folz of Willmar caught the biggest northern during this period, a 16-pound, four-ounce beauty. Folz was fishing in Leech Lake.

A six-pound, two-ounce bass was caught in Big Ole Lake by Jon Newcomb of Bremen, Indiana.

Deer Report

LeRoy Rutske, big game specialist from the section of wildlife, Department of Natural Resources, provided the following information concerning southeastern Minnesota deer population.

Department of Natural Resources offered a total of 13,790 antlerless permits in the nine antlerless permit areas that made up zone 3 for the 1978 season. In six permit areas hunters did not apply for all of the permits available. The total number of permits given was 10,603. Permit holders registered 3,006 antlerless deer for a 28 per cent success rate. A total of 2,299 bucks were registered to give the estimated 11,410 hunters without permits 20 per cent success.

In other permit areas across the state permit holder success ranged from 6 to 47 per cent. Statewide the average level of antlerless permit success was 18 per cent. Buck hunters on a statewide basis were 14 per cent successful.

For 1979 a total of 10,640 antlerless permits are being offered in the same nine permit areas. This reduction means that the population has been brought closer to the ideal level and southeastern Minnesota will continue to provide excellent deer hunting.

While southeastern Minnesota yields more deer per hunter than most of the northern deer range, access to hunting lands is not as easy as on the public lands of the north. Hunters prospecting in the southeast are urged to obtain permission and make arrangements with private landowners well before the start of the deer season.

Spring Duck Shoot Brings Heavy Fine

Shooting of one blue winged teal duck out of season cost a Sleepy Eye man $350 and the loss of an expensive shotgun, the Department of Natural Resources said.

Daniel A. Ibberson was arrested on May 13 following an investigation by state conservation officers and the Brown county sheriff's office.

Ibberson appeared in court on Sept. 12 and pled guilty.

The winners of the five dollar certificates at the Saturday night, Sept. 22 drawing were Anna Rud and Vernon Storeby. Eldor Westman was called for the $20 but was not present, so two $5 certificates and a $25 certificate will be up for grabs next Saturday, Sept. 29.

Pamphlets Offered By DNR

Everything — well almost everything — you ever wanted to know about natural resources is featured in a new series of leaflets produced by the information-education section of the Department of Natural Resources.

"DNR Reports" is a comprehensive — and still-growing — series of leaflets covering a variety of environmental topics, particularly fish and wildlife.

"There's something for everyone," says the project's creator Robert Kraske. "And because we produce the leaflets so economically, they are free to the public.

"Thus far, we've produced 81, two and four-page leaflets. Basically they are written and designed for the general public, but we've also found them popular with Minnesota teachers."

Hunting and fishing enthusiasts should enjoy those leaflets discussing the life histories, habits and habitats of waterfowl and game fish. But there are also DNR reports on non-game wildlife — such as Minnesota's colorful snake family.

For those who like to give wildlife a helping hand, there are "how-to" pamphlets for creating habitat or providing home-made houses for birds.

"When organizing the series, we tried to identify topics that will help people understand natural resource management, and how DNR programs affect them," explained Kraske.

Among the titles are: "Do-It-Yourself Timber Harvesting', 'Heating Your Home With Wood' and 'How To Grow Trees For Pleasure and Profit'."

To obtain a free list of the 81 different DNR Reports write DNR Reports, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Box 46 Centennial Bldg., St. Paul, MN 55155.

Wheat Growers Host Meeting On Highways

Mn-DOT commissioner Richard Braun will be in Red Lake Falls October 9 to discuss future road improvement problems. Also attending with commissioner Braun will be Gordon Fay, state aid engineer (county and municipal road programs) and Bob Johnson of Minnesota good roads, Inc.

Sponsored by the Minnesota wheat grower's association, the meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the wheat headquarters building, east of highway 32 just south of Red Lake Falls.

Public attendance at this meeting is necessary if northwestern Minnesota people are going to firmly establish the importance of efficiently moving agricultural products from farm to market, a wheat growers spokesman said. Proposed settlement of the grain handlers strike in Duluth has recently highlighted the need for a statewide commitment to a 10-ton route improvement program.

Commissioner Braun has been meeting in St. Paul with other special interest groups from around the state since the announced cutback in road projects. This meeting will provide residents of this area an opportunity to express their views on this matter.

Name Ringstad To National Committee

Arnold Ringstad of East Grand Forks, a member of V.F.W. Post 3817, has been appointed by the commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Howard E. Vander Clute Jr. of Montvale, N.J., to serve as a member of the organization's national community activities committee.

The committee will meet in Kansas City on October 7 to discuss programs and resolutions outlined by V.F.W. delegates who attended the 80th annual national V.F.W. convention held in New Orleans, La., last August.

In announcing the appointment of Ringstad, Vander Clute said that Ringstad's record of achievement and his dedication to both the nation and the VFW organization were the key factors in making the selection.

Friday Luke 1:39-56

There is no name on this pew. But through the years some very devout people have thought of it as "theirs" and willingly — eagerly — shared it with friends and strangers. Right now it is waiting for somebody to claim it. Come a little early next Sunday and it's yours.

Next Sunday is World Communion Sunday. In every land those who believe in Jesus Christ will be joining together to partake of the Lord's Supper. It is a day for realizing our privileges and blessings, renewing our commitments and responsibilities.

Christians everywhere will come to worship their Lord . . . and go forth to serve Him.

Have you a pew to call your own? On Sunday you can have: it's first come . . . first served.

Head Of Computer Group At Moorhead May Face Charges

In a report to Clay county attorney, Paul Grinnell, state auditor Arne Carlson brought to light a series of "questionable payments" to James Johnson, former executive director of Region I—ESV in Moorhead, a regional school district computer consortium serving northwestern Minnesota.

Carlson indicated that the amount in question is $4,889.50 and could result in the filing of a criminal complaint or the summoning of a grand jury investigation.

Carlson stated that the state audit came about when his office reviewed an audit done by a private firm and noted an entry stating "due from executive director, $2,110." Carlson's office pursued this entry with the firm and the result was the revelation of a series of questionable payments to Johnson and poor supervisory practices on the part of the board of directors. The questions raised include:

(1) The board of directors negotiated a settlement of questionable payments to Johnson from $4,889.50 to $2,109.80. The state auditor's letter to the Clay county attorney states that the board of directors does not have the power to "compromise what may be criminal conduct" on the part of the former executive director.

(2) Johnson took out a life insurance policy without authorization and used $1,174 of public agency funds to pay the premiums.

(3) Johnson purchased a citizen's band radio without authorization and charged the public agency $402.42.

(4) The state auditor's report noted several instances of Johnson's double charging the public agency for expenses incurred.

(5) Johnson, without proper authorization, charged the public agency $133.80 for the installation of a private phone line at his personal residence and another personal line at his office.

(6) The state auditor's office also questioned out-of-state phone bills incurred by Johnson totaling $640.47.

(7) Johnson used the automobile provided by the public agency for personal use at a cost which has not been determined. Auditors were able to note that Johnson made at least four trips in the public's car to his former home in New Jersey. Johnson also reimbursed himself $89.40 for one of those trips.

Carlson noted that Johnson had his own personal car repaired at a local dealer in the amount of $261.19 which was billed to the region and he also attempted to charge the public agency for his wife's attendance at an out-of-state conference.

The report submitted to the Clay county attorney also noted that on at least one occasion Johnson deposited a $50,000 check from the State of Minnesota into two separate accounts—$15,000 going into one account over which he had exclusive control. The state auditor's report states that such monies should be deposited intact.

On another occasion, a telephone transfer was made, without any legal authority, from the region's main account to the account that was under the exclusive control of Johnson.

Carlson's letter to Paul Grinnell also noted that in January of 1979, auditors from the firm of Eide, Helmeke, Boelz and Pasch, CPA, who did the audit of Region I—ESV, held an exit conference and Johnson did not distribute the audit report to the board of directors, nor was the department of education or the state auditor's office notified as state law requires.

Carlson noted that Ralph Christofferson, school superintendent of Mahnomen Independent School District 432, although not a member of the board of directors, raised questions about Johnson's failure to distribute the audit and forced the board to deal with the issue of questionable payments.

"Frankly," said Carlson, "If we had more people that would speak up like Christofferson did, and recognize the value and necessity of an audit, we would have fewer scandals."

James Johnson resigned in February of 1979 and subsequently the board of directors negotiated the questionable payments from $4,889.50 to $2,109.80. Carlson has asked the Clay county attorney's office to review this matter for possible prosecution.

A MUSHROOM RECIPE FULL OF SURPRISES

Mushrooms are a perfect party food. They're so neat to eat — whether they're served raw with dips, or stuffed and baked. In this recipe for Surprise-Stuffed Mushrooms you'll get the first surprise when you taste how good they are. The second one comes when nobody can guess what's inside. Discover the magic formula by making them yourself. But don't be surprised when there are no more left.

SURPRISE-STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 pound large-sized mushrooms (15 to 19)
1 can (4-1/2 oz.) deviled ham
3/4 cup fresh bread crumbs
4 tablespoons finely chopped walnuts, divided
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1-1/2 teaspoons prepared horseradish

Preheat oven to 400 F. Rinse and pat dry mushrooms; remove stems (use in soups, stews, etc.). In a small bowl combine ham, bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons of the walnuts, sherry and horseradish; set aside. Place mushroom caps cup side down on a lightly greased baking sheet. Bake, uncovered, until mushrooms are partially cooked, about 5 minutes. Remove from oven; invert and fill with reserved ham mixture. Top with remaining 2 tablespoons walnuts. Bake, uncovered, until mushrooms are tender and filling is hot, about 5 minutes. Serve as an appetizer, hors d'oeurve or with a salad as a luncheon dish. The mushrooms can be partially baked and stuffed early in the day, refrigerated, and baked until hot just before serving. Yield: 15 to 19 mushroom caps.

Transportation Tips Offered To Save Energy

Minnesota's economic health is highly dependent on the transportation systems that serve the state, but those systems often use energy inefficiently and some parts are in disrepair, according to a University of Minnesota agricultural economist.

"The prosperity and growth of Minnesota depends upon our state and national transportation system — and they are in terrible shape," extension specialist Jerry Fruin told a Minnesota Senate subcommittee recently.

Minneosta is more dependent on the national system than most other states, Fruin explained. "We are about as far away from the oceans as you can get in this country, but we are major exporters of corn, wheat, soybeans and now sunflower seeds. Prosperity of our agriculture and our state depends on these exports."

Transportation dependence goes beyond agriculture and into the energy shere. Minnesotans now use over 15 million tons of coal each year, all of which must be shipped into the state. By 1985, the need will grow to about 25 million tons.

One inefficient use of petroleum resources is long-distance grain trucking, Fruin said. "Over-the-road semi-trailer trucks use three times as much fuel per ton-mile as trains. The only time that trucks are more energy efficient than trains is when grain is shipped 50 miles or less. However, grain is routinely trucked 400 miles or more to the Duluth harbor."

Deterioration of rail service has lead to increasing truck shipment. Branchline abandonment, shortages of grain cars and locomotives, and the worsening financial situations of railroad companies have made reliance on rail service a risky business for shippers.

Fruin offered these suggestions:

"I feel we should identify the key rail line segments and use federal funds and Minnesota's cost-sharing rehabilitation program to upgrade these key segments.

"There are more rail lines than needed, so some must be abandoned. Provisions should be made to assist any business that might be seriously harmed by abandonment.

"It might be necessary for the state to take over ownership of some railroad mileage. In particular, the Milwaukee Road mainline west of the Twin Cities should be acquired as far west as we can get other states or shippers to cooperate."

Rail transportation is not the only system that requires attention, however. Fruin emphasized that the state's highways are "deteriorating faster than we can repair them, and our bridges are frequently both old and obsolete." He suggested:

"We must vigorously enforce weight limits. A vehicle that is 10 per cent overloaded exerts 25-50 per cent more stress and subsequent damage than on loaded to the weight for which the highway was designed.

"We must maintain, repair and rebuild our primary road system. A fuel tax should be a percentage tax like the sales tax, rather than a flat number of cents per gallon. Current flat rate keeps revenues for road work stable, in a very inflationary period.

"We should reduce the total miles of roads. We have too many roads to maintain."

The economist also addressed the need for improved water transportation. Shipping by barge uses even less energy than train transportation. Modernization and expansion programs on both the Mississippi and Great Lakes will be needed to move the increasing amount of grain for export.

Fruin's final recommendation was that the price of energy be allowed to rise to its "real cost." For several years, gasoline prices have risen less than the overall prices of goods and services as measured by the consumer price index.

"The consumer was not given clear signals that we had a real problem," he said. "Our cheap energy policy had many benefits for the consumer and for industry, but it encouraged wasteful uses and the depletion of our domestic oil supply."

Allowing energy costs to rise through decontrol, taxes or other means will provide the strongest incentive for reducing petroleum use. Individuals who would suffer most from rising costs — the poor — should have access to an income transfer program through either cash payments or transportation and heating stamps, Fruin concludes.

No Match For Barbed Wire

Anyone who has spent any time at all in the outdoors in a rural area has had an experience — most often unpleasant — with barbed wire. Such experiences are usually indelibly imprinted (like scar tissue) on the mind as well as the body.

Writing in Farmland News, Bob Karolevitz of Mission Hill, S.D., tells about his experiences in a manner that should bring back unfond memories for many of our readers:

I can understand hobbyists who save stamps, coins, matchbooks, beads, bottles and even bellybutton lint, but the collectors of barbed wire totally underwhelm me.

Obviously those people have only warm, friendly feelings about cacti metallica. In my case, however, collecting barbed wire holds all the charm of hoarding such delightful trinkets as thumb screws, gall stones, mustard plasters, hernia trusses, poison ivy leaves or hair of the dog that bit you.

Barbed wire to me is synonymous with pain, bloodshed, extreme aggravation and torn trouser crotches. Every time I'm near the stuff, I'm either pinioned, pricked, punctured or partly de-panted.

Some people may think that barbed wire is an inanimate object, but I'm convinced that it is Satan in mufti. Whether it is stretched between fence posts, neatly coiled into prickly wreaths or treacherously hidden in deep pasture grass, its principal mission is to lie in wait for me and to attack without mercy or warning. Even rattlesnakes have the courtesy of announcing themselves before they strike!

I also think that barbed wire possesses some form of hypnotic power. While I'm no athletic marvel, I'm agile and coordinated enough to tie a shoe, climb the stairs, dance an arthritic polka and jump to conclusions. Yet, when it comes to a simple leg-lifting act like straddle-stepping over a pronged fence, some strange psychological phenomenon overcomes me and invariably I get hung up where my lower extremities come together, or I'm snapped back to consciousness by the sound of ripping denim and the searing sensation of a hemstitched in-seam. I've noticed, too, that the severity of the damage varies in direct proportion to the newness of the trousers I'm wearing.

I'm well aware that barbed wire had a lot to do with taming the Old West; and that Joseph H. Glidden, its inventor back in 1874, has some claim to cowboy sainthood. As far as I'm concerned, though, I think the taming price was too high. I'm on the side of the cattle. If Joe Glidden made it past the Pearly Gates, I believe the least they could do would be to issue him a harp strung with his own bright idea. If he went the other direction, he probably felt right at home when he walked across the fiery threshold, assuming that the 19th century poet, Edwin Ford Piper, knew what he was writing about when he penned: They say that heaven is a free range land; Goodbye, goodbye, O fare you well; But it's barbed wire for the devil's hat band, and barbed wire blankets down in hell.

Frankly, when I lived in the city, I didn't think much about barbed wire one way or the other. But when I went rustic and bought a farm, I became aware of it in a painful hurry. Our ancient place had lots of tumbledown fence, and one of my first priorities was to gather up the old before replacing it with new. In the process, I quickly learned a fundamental rule: Do not wear cotton gloves when working with barbed wire!

Rolling up 6,000 yards (or, as we farmers say, a thousand and ninety rods) of destapled, rusty wire is challengingly difficult at best. There is no way you can let go of a giant doughnut of barbed wire with the pointed spines eagerly seeking to imbed themselves in your cloth gloves. It's like trying to sort feathers after sticking your fingers in the honey jar. Only it hurts more.

The reverse of tearing down a barbed wire fence is putting one up, and that, too — if you'll pardon the expression — can have its stickly moments. I won't go into all the gory, hernia-producing details, but when I attempted to erect my first four-strand fence, I apparently tightened the wrong wire in the wrong progression. When I bore down on the stretcher, the corner post shot up out of the ground like a Minuteman missile.

When reusing old barbed wire, it's wise not to overdo in the stretching department. Wire that's been around since the days of Billy the Kid has a tendency to break apart in unexpected places at unexpected times, and when it does, it lashes out like an angry cobra.

Admittedly, I believe in frugal practices on the farm, but though — as the song goes — love may be lovelier the second time around, barbed wire definitely isn't! After bitter experience, I've learned to bury it in the old pit silo, unless it happens to be a Kittleson Half Hitch (1878), an Elwood Spread Reverse (1882), Hodges' Spur Rowel (1887) or a Corsicana Clip (1875). Come to think of it, I've got a pretty good collection in the machine shop myself. I started it from scratch, as it were.

Now, if I could just find a Merrillo Twirl (1876), a Billings Simple (1878), Jacob Haish's Parallel (1885) and a Hiram Reynolds' Necktie (1878), my barbed wire treasure-trove would stack up with anybody's!

More On Annual Sessions

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

We don't view it with alarm, just sadness. We refer to the continuing trend toward a full time, professional Legislature.

Three members of the state house of representatives, all of them capable and all of them a long way from retirement age, have already announced that they will not seek reelection. More will undoubtedly take the same course in the months ahead as the political pot begins to simmer.

This is an unfortunate trend. It was foisted upon us by the DFL when that party had complete control of everything in Minnesota government, and now we're stuck with it.

The underlying reason for early retirement from the Legislature is obvious. Things have reached the point, with annual sessions, where a lawmaker simply can't hold a job or pursue a profession and respond to legislature demands at the same time.

In our judgment, there was far more citizen input in the Legislature when the lawmakers could return to the private sector as working people between sessions. We feel this was a healthy thing, but it now also appears to be a thing of the past. Nearly 10 per cent of the members of the house now have no other job, and the percentage is likely to rise in the years ahead. This is not a healthy thing. The lawmakers are no longer one of us — no longer the property of the man in the street.

We do not feel that annual sessions are necessary in this state. We cannot think of a single thing that has taken place in the Legislature in recent years that could not or would not have occurred if the Legislature had convened biennially as they did in the past.

If the Republicans, with their new-found muscle, are wise they will take a long look at what annual sessions are doing to the people of this state and change the procedure.

Keeping Perspective

Following comments were made recently in Forbes Magazine:

Iran is frighteningly unstable. Mexico's sore. China ignores our advice on Vietnam. Other Arab nations are angry over the Egyptian-Israeli peace pact. OPECers swiftly kick up their price of oil. Inflation's still climbing. Gold's oribiting into outer space. The dollar gets short-changed with every headline crisis.

You'd think from what you read and hear here and around the world that the United States of America was going to hell in a bucket.

If this is hell, then the devil's got a lot of customers anxious to get in.

In every other land, America from sea to shining sea remains the ultimate in stability, opportunity, individual liberty, freedom and the unwavering intention to provide justice for all.

Our money, in its paper form, seems pale next to the Swiss franc, the mark and yen. But, for the preservation of everything that money can buy, and for the freedom of mind and body that money can't buy, these United States are unequaled.

Let's keep our perspective as we wrestle with our problems and challenges.

NEWS OF SAFETY

Defensive Driving Saves Lives

"Panic is your enemy. It can kill you. That's why you should keep a cool head and a good grip on yourself and your wheel when you come up against a driving emergency.

To be a good defensive driver you must be alert. Beyond that technical knowledge and skill will lessen your chances of an accident.

One thing to remember, says the "Driving Skills Book," is that the speed limit isn't always safe.

"Speed limits," the book says, "are set for the best driving conditions. Slow down in heavy traffic, darkness and bad weather. But remember, if you're on a freeway, don't go too slowly. That can be very dangerous. Concentrate on staying within the speed limit and going with the flow."

Here are some other safety tips:

- Keep your body alert, sit straight, listen with your body as well as your ears.
- When making a turn, stay in the same lane, don't swing wide into a different lane.
- Stay at least two seconds behind the vehicle ahead.
- If another driver is "tailgating" you, slow down and give him every opportunity to pass you.

Stay in your lane when making a turn.

- When driving at night in a fog, use your low beams; brights shine directly into the fog, you see more glare, less road. In any fog, day or night, drive with lights on, windshield wipers on, defroster on to cut condensation inside the windshield.

Rediscover Sun As Replacement Energy Source

Search for alternative energy sources has been going on for a long time. Some researchers offer 2,500 years as a credible estimate. Greece and Rome, the birthplaces of Western civilization, had their share of energy shortages.

The main source of energy in those ancient times was wood, often in short supply because of the timber demands of ship and homebuilders and of merchants who sold wood and charcoal for cooking and heating. In response to the wood shortage, Greeks and Romans turned to the sun.

Records show the ancients made extensive use of solar energy to heat homes, baths and greenhouses. Solar-oriented architecture was widely adopted for individual houses and even for whole cities. A pioneer Roman architect, Vitruvius, wrote, "We must design houses according to climate." Pliny the Younger boasted that his villa to the north of Rome was a pleasant place to live because it "collects and increases the heat of the sun."

Now we, the 20th century descendants of the ancients, find ourselves on the verge of exhausting our classic energy resources. Ironically, like our antecedents, we're turning to the sun.

Solar energy has proven to be one way to conserve energy and save money. Using solar systems means less noise, less air pollution and significantly lower utility costs. Equally important, using the sun's energy means saving the earth's finite sources.

Home space heating by energy from the sun can be accomplished in two ways. The passive solar method is used often when designing and constructing a new building. But it is not necessary to build a new home to take advantage of solar heating. By opening drapes on south facing windows during the day to collect the sun's heat, and closing them at night to prevent heat escape, an individual is already utilizing passive solar energy.

Active method collects heat from the sun outside the building and brings it inside through ducts or pipes. This method often can be incorporated into a building without altering its original design. Both systems require a supplemental heat source for extreme cold weather and the periodic lengthy stretches of cloudy days we sometimes experience in Minnesota.

Solar water heating is becoming increasingly popular with homeowners. Since it takes a lot of energy to adequately heat all the water we need in our daily lives, a large chunk of our utility dollar goes to heating water. Preheating household water with the sun can substantially reduce that portion of the heating bill. Fact is, with the tax credits that are available today, the cost of installing a solar water heating system can be cut in half to bring the homeowner greater savings sooner.

Productive use of solar energy in the home is far from a futuristic ideal. It is being used successfully in communities across Minnesota today. In fact, we need only look at the history of Western civilization to realize the practice of utilizing energy from the sun has been around for some time.

For more information on putting the sun to work in your home, call the Minnesota energy agency at 296-5175 in the metro area or toll-free 800-652-9747. You can write to the Minnesota energy agency at 980 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Discipline Is Big Problem In Public Schools

"School discipline is the most important problem facing the public schools today," said a University of Minnesota professor at a St. Paul seminar on school discipline sponsored by the Minnesota federation of teachers, September 22.

Dr. Clifford Hooker joined teachers, parents, legislators, policemen and school administrators at the morning long seminar to discuss the problem of school discipline and possible solutions.

Hooker said four factors have contributed to the lack of discipline in the classroom:

—Courts have extended rights to youngsters.

—Limits have been placed on reasons for expulsion from the classroom.

—Court decisions and state laws require procedural due process.

—Blame has been depersonalized.

"Students invent reasons or excuses for their own behavior," said Hooker. "I suggest that disruptive behavior must be dealth with where it happens. We can't blame the parents for what happens at school."

Minnesota legislators agree that behavior must be handled in the classroom and have introduced a bill to that effect. House bill (H.F. 959) and its companion in the senate (S.F. 1130) "would not supercede principals or the courts, but would give teachers control in their classrooms," said Rep. Marlin Nelson of Aitkin. "In my own district, a teacher was beaten and a student's arm was broken. It costs about $5,000 to dismiss a student. I jumped at the chance to author this bill."

"The bill would give teachers the authority to remove a disruptive student from the classroom for up to three consecutive class periods," explained Roger Peterson, MFT attorney. "A student can be removed from the classroom if he violates a school board regulation, conducts himself in such a manner that he disrupts the rights of others or endangers others or the property of the school." Bill would apply only to grades 7-12.

"Teachers and principals need to communicate to solve discipline problems," said Dave Meade, executive secretary of the Minnesota association of secondary school principals. "We better quit passing the buck. A task force should have been formed 20 years ago. Every group of professional educators should get behind it," he said at the Saturday seminar.

Film Explores Home Care For Terminal Cases In Youngsters

by Paul Schurke
'U' M NEWS SERVICE

Each year thousands of American families face the numbing crisis of childhood cancer. While encouraging advances in treatment have been made, the crisis takes on new proportions for some 3,000 families annually when curative procedures are exhausted and efforts must turn from curing to providing comfort for the dying child.

Considering the vast array of medical and social support systems available for cancer patients, it is surprising to learn that the most effective setting for this care may be the most simple—the family home. This concept, backed by University of Minnesota research, is explored in a new documentary film, "A Time to Come Home."

Initiated and directed by Minneapolis-based film maker Ken Greer, the 26-minute film stems from the work of university nursing researcher Ida Martinson, the director of a pioneering home care program for children with terminal cancer.

Martinson's interest started with the death of her father-in-law, whose wish to die at home was honored by the family. Suspecting that death at home was more dignified and meaningful than an isolated, institutionalized death would have been, Martinson began studying the home care concept in 1972 to determine its application to families with dying children.

In 1976, with a national cancer institute grant, Martinson initiated an on-going home care program which has since involved about 60 families and three institutions—University hospitals, Minneapolis Children's hospital and the St. Louis Park medical center.

Two of these families whose sons have died of cancer are introduced in the film along with another family and their eight-year-old son Jeremy who is dying of cancer. Parents discuss their reactions to the prognosis of their cancer-stricken children as well as their experiences with caring for their child at home. Also instroduced are Martinson, her university colleague pediatrician John Kersey, and their objectives with the home care concept.

But the focus is on the feelings of the parents, feelings which Martinson hopes are positive enough to dispel doubts about death at home—an odd, uneasy notion to 20th century American culture.

None of the parents in the film, nor any others who have chosen the home care program, have regretted their decision, Martinson said. Home care, they say, allowed the child to receive the needed security and love stemming from the home while allowing the parents to derive inner satisfaction from fulfilling their child's wish to remain at home.

Strength of the home, Martinson said, is the interpersonal relationships that have already been established. A child in the final stages of a disease begins to cut off relationships with all but those closest to him. Despite their best efforts, hospital staff members may no longer be able to reach that child.

Feelings the child associates with separation from home and family have been likened to "little deaths," and are similar to the feelings anyone has when turning points are encountered and old connections broken.

Phenomena gives the film, primarily designed to acquaint doctors, nurses and parents with the home care concept, a more universal appearl, suggests director Greer. "If anyone close to you has ever spent time in a hospital, you can relate to it," he said.

One of Martinson's most satisfying discoveries in studying the home care concept is its feasibility. "It's fantastic how much parents are able to do in giving pain medication and handling the routine aspects of nursing care at home," she said.

Toward this end, parents in the program are assisted by home care nurses who make periodic visits to the home to help with medical matters and are always on call for phone consultations and emergency visits.

Although emotionally rewarding, home care places great stress on the family. The child, who may be moody and suffer bouts of intense pain, needs round-the-clock attention. Other children in the family may have difficulty understanding, and may feel that the attention given to their ill sibling is at their own expense.

Home care does offer some tangible rewards for the child and the parents, however. For parents, it may reduce the financial stress they face, since home care costs about a tenth of hospital care. For the child, it may improve eating habits. Some who will not eat at the hospital enjoy food again when they get back to home cooked favorites. They may also find themselves more relaxed in play with their siblings, who in turn can come to better understand their brother's or sister's plight.

Martinson feels that about 80 per cent of the 3,000 American youngsters who die each year of cancer are good canditates for such care. She is now helping to establish home care programs in other parts of the country, and is heartened by the growing interest given the concept by insurance companies, which have long been reluctant to cover home care costs.

"A Time to Come Home" will aid these efforts toward asserting the strength of the family, she said. Produced with a $5,000 grant from the General Mills foundation, the film is now being distributed nationally by the American journal of nursing and locally by the media resources division of the university's physical medicine and rehabilitation department. Rental fee is $35. For information contact Ed Monohan, 860 Mayo, Box 297, University of Minnesota Hospitals, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455.

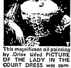
U.S. To See Priceless Hermitage Art Collection

Americans will soon have the opportunity to view more than 400 major works of art from the world famous Hermitage Museum in Leningrad, and never set foot off home soil. An exhibition, entitled The Hermitage of Leningrad: Doorway to World Art, will open in Washington, D.C., at the National Gallery of Art in May, 1980, and tour four other cities in the United States.

This priceless collection is the largest and perhaps the most valuable exhibition ever to leave the Soviet Union. The show has been negotiated with the Soviet Ministry of Culture by Control Data Corporation, a Minneapolis-based company. It is being organized by the Minneapolis Institute of Arts with the National Gallery of Art and the Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco.

Among the treasures spanning many centuries Americans will be seeing for the first time are paintings by Rembrandt, Titian, Rubens and other masters. There will be icons, rare drawings, tapestries, glass, furniture, and recently discovered arti*facts from ancient cultures.*

The Hermitage Museum in Leningrad is actually comprised of five separate buildings, the famous Winter Palace and four satellite buildings. If you wanted to see these works in their original settings, you'd have to take a seven-mile-walk through 1300 rooms and 300 halls. After the National Gallery opening in Washington, D.C., the Hermitage art collection will continue on its history-making tour through New York, Minneapolis, San Francisco and Detroit.



This magnificent oil painting by Orlov titled PICTURE OF THE LADY IN THE COURT DRESS was completed in 1835. It is included in the DOORWAY TO WORLD ART collection coming to America from The Hermitage Of Leningrad in 1980.

Dental Disease Is Fully Preventable

Dental disease is one of our most pervasive and persistent health problems. More people get it, and have it longer, than any other form of disease. And although it can be a life-long problem, it tends to begin very early in life.

Fully half of all American children have at least one cavity by the time they reach the age of two. The average child starts school with three decayed, filled or missing teeth. By the time a child graduates from high school, the average number of decayed, filled or missing teeth has risen to 12.

The remarkable thing about these statistics is that people really shouldn't have to suffer from dental disease at all. Health authorities say dental health problems are almost completely preventable, and they're currently placing a special emphasis on the importance of preventing dental disease in children, in connection with the United Nations' international year of the child (IYC) observance.

Dr. Bernard Flavhan, head of the state health department's dental health program, says tooth decay in particular is primarily a disease od childhood. Our teeth tend to be most vulnerable to decay early in life, he noted, and although decay can continue to be a problem for adults, gum disease tends to become a greater threat as we age.

Tooth decay is a recurring problem for many people, according to Dr. Flavha. The process can begin with single cavity, but the bad dental health habits that caused that first cavity will often lead to more decay, and may eventually lead to gum disease.

That, said Dr. Flavhan, is why some 12 per cent of all Americans have lost half of their teeth, and another 15 per cent have lost all of their teeth.

Dr. Flavhan placed much of the blame for this situation on what he called our "crisis approach" to dental disease. We tend to ignore our dental health until a serious problem develops, he said. By then all we can do is visit a dentist and have our teeth repaired, or replaced with an artificial substitute of some sort.

"Repairing or "replacing" your teeth can be expensive. Minnesotans spent some $200 million getting their teeth fixed during 1978, and Dr. Flavhan says much of that expense was unnecessary.

The emphasis, he said, should be on prevention. Both tooth decay and gum disease are "virtually 100 per cent preventable," according to Dr. Flavhan, and he has a number of suggestions for parents who want to protect their children against dental disease:

+ Make sure your children keep their teeth clean. Have them brush and floss their teeth regularly and frequently, to help remove any foot particles. If they're too young to do it themselves, do it for them.

+ Keep an eye on what your children eat. Try to avoid sugary snacks, and don't let them set a pattern of heavy sugar consumption. A hundred years ago, the average American ate 10 pounds of sugar a year. The average Minnesotan now consumes around 128 pounds of sugar a year.

Also remember that how often your children eat sugar is more important than how much the eat. The more often they eat sugar, the more likely it is that their teeth will decay.

+ Make sure your children have regular and frequent dental checkups. By age three, a child should be visiting the dentist regularly. Tooth decay is relatively simple and inexpensive to repair if it's increasing complex and difficult procedures may be necessary to fix the damage. The cost — and the amount of discomfort involved — can escalate dramatically.

+ Educate your children about dental health. Encourage your local schools to develop a good dental health education program, if they don't have one already. Continue the education process when your children are at home. Above all, encourage them to put what they've learned into practice.

+ Make sure your child enjoys the protective benefits of flouride. A flouridated water supply can prevent two out of every three cavaties. Follow your dentist's recommendation regarding supplemental fouride treatments for your children. Such treatments are especially important if you live in a rural area and get your water from a private source.

The secret to preventing dental disease, and Dr. Flavhan, is to teach children good dental health habits while they're young. The payoff, he said, can be a lifetime of dental health."

HAIR STYLES AND HISTORY

The three faces of a single perm.

At various times in history, hair has symbolized status, strength, virility, morality and fashionability. It has, accordingly, been braided, bobbed, teased, tormented, sheared and seared with curling irons to fit the fancies of each epoch.

In the Twenties, women announced their independence by bobbing their hair; in the Sixties, men and women made the same announcement by letting their hair grow.

A fashion-passion at the beginning of the Eighties is the new perm. With built-in body—but without frizz or an unnatural look—it's a far cry from the perms of the past.

Just introduced, ammonia-free Instant Styling Perm by Revlon even takes the guesswork out of choosing the proper size curler by means of a new feature called, "Predict-A-Curl." Predict-A-Curl virtually guarantees that you get just the amount of curl you want: a body wave, a gentle wave, soft curl or firm curl.

According to experts at Revlon, perms can help almost any type of hair look better. With fine hair, for instance, you can achieve the appearance of fullness with a body wave. By waving or curling thin hair, you can achieve the illusion of density because each hair will cover a larger scalp area. And for straight hair, a body wave not only imparts body, but it also lends a softer look.

In the past, when one style—such as the page boy or bouffant — was clearly "in," anything else was unmistakably "out." But for today's woman, who leads a more independent and active life, fashion is a matter of choice. You can pick the look you want—and get it—with the help of the Predict-A-Curl invention and Instant Styling Perm by Revlon.

"Cooperatives: Good for All Americans" is the theme of the 1979 Co-op Month proclamation signed by Governor Al Quie. His proclamation credited Minnesota's cooperatives with providing jobs, capital improvements, quality products and service while returning savings to local users. With Governor Quie at the ceremony were Edward E. Slettom, left, executive director of the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives (MAC), and Kenneth Helgeson, right, MAC president, Clarissa. Cooperatives in this area are sponsoring special Co-op Month promotional and educational activities during October.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

CETA — Can It be More Than a Four-Letter Word?

"It's a chance for a businessmen to give an honest guy an honest shot." That's the way Ron Webber of Benton Harbor, Michigan recently described his local chamber's on-the-job training program. His remarks could have been typical of any concerned businessman, except for one key difference: The Benton Harbor program is partially funded through CTA, a federal jobs program many businessmen distrust and oppose.

CETA's poor reputation is understandable. The program has spent huge sums of taxpayers' money with only minimal accomplishment . . . especially among the hard-core unemployed. Its disappointing record reminds me of Winston Churchill when he reportedly said of a political rival: "Clement Atlee is a very modest man. And with reason." But while Churchill was undoubtedly speaking in jest, CETA's failures are very real. I noted in an earlier column that the program has been a cruel diasppointment for the poor who dream of acquiring training skills, productive jobs and a better life, for taxpayers whose money has been frittered away and for our economy where billions of dollars have been diverted from tax-producing growth-oriented jobs, to tax-consuming activities which have striked the fires of inflation.

But now we're promised much of that will change. The people at CETA want to stop raking and turn over a new leaf. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall has acknowledged the problem of unemployment will not be solved unless CETA establishes a solid working relationship with the private economy. And so he is promoting a new effort known as the Private Sector Initiative Program (PSIP), which has Congressional funding of $400 million. Private industry is being paid to set up training programs for the unemployed.

PSIP is now operating in over 300 communities where Private Industry Councils, or PICs, have been set up. These PICs consist primarily of business people who plan job and training programs in their communities. Before this program got underway, the Labor Department commissioned a nationwide poll to confirm that business would cooperate. Business is justifiably apprehensive about any new federal program that might involve more bureaucracy, paperwork and controls. But what the Opinion Research Corporation found was that while only 12 per cent of business had heard of the new program, 84 per cent reacted favorably to the new idea.

The attitude of Ron Webber and his fellow chamber members in Benton Harbor is an example of this willingness to cooperate and lead. In their area, people have been trained by private business as mold makers, machine operators and aluminum die-cast operators to cite a few examples. These are skills individuals can transfer to other companies, or even other areas. Because of public funding, local business does not have to bear the entire cost of this training, but it does have the opportunity to train people its own way, and then hire them at the end of the contract.

The U.S. Chamber is a strong supporter of this private-sector approach because it's the only way CETA will ever become a viable program that serves the needs of the nation. Forecasts indicate that industry's needs for skills in the coming decades will far outstrip the competence level of its existing work force, which means we face a severe shortage of skilled workers. We can no longer afford, as is now the case, to spend only one-tenth of all CETA funds for private-sector job training.

I want to urge business leaders everywhere to get involved in this program in your own communities and make it work. To help you, the U.S. Chamber has published a booklet, "The New Private Sector Initiative Program," that explains the background of PSIP, how it will be administered, and how employers can use funds for training within their own establishments. The booklet also lists directories of federal officials' offices that will be in charge of the program, regional Chamber officials who can assist and technical assistance staff available through the Nation Alliance of Business.

If America is to move forward and resolve many of its serious problems during the next decade, increased business leadership will be essential. One very good demonstration of that leadership would be to make the PSIP program a big success. And if we do, it will be thanks to the business community that CETA will have finally become more than a four-letter word.

Keeping Fit

"Western International suggests you plan to stay fit while on the road."

On a trip, it's easy to "let go" by exercising too little and eating too much. Western International Hotels has some suggestions to help travelers stay in shape, whether they are on a hectic business trip or a traveling vacation.

Many hotels have swimming pools or sauna facilities. If you pack a swimsuit, you'll be prepared to relax at the end of the day. If you are a jogger, you may want to ask about friendly routes near the hotel.

Of course, resort hotels are usually chock-full of swimming, tennis, and golfing opportunities, but downtown hotels also can have health clubs or exercise rooms for their guests. Even hotels geared to business travelers may have access to tennis or racquetball facilities. If you ask before you make your reservation, you can come prepared with the proper clothes and equipment.

In addition to keeping physically active, you may want to keep an eye on the calories. A trip is not a good excuse for three, three - course meals a day. Even airlines will prepare a low calorie dinner if you request it in advance.

If you are serious, but not too athletic, you can always do a few toe touches in your hotel room . . . or even bring your own jump rope!

The Worm King from Eddyville Takes On New York's Tax Collectors

"I don't make jokes," Will Rogers once said. "I just watch the government and report the facts." The great American humorist made that comment years ago. But what about today? What if he were with us now and had to report, for example, what just happened to Jody Gerard, a 12-year-old entrepreneur from Eddyville, New York? Could Will Rogers still keep a straight face while reporting everything the state's tax authorities have done to keep this young worm grower from wiggling off their hook?

You be the judge. Jody Gerard is no ordinary young man. He raises, digs and sells backyard worms—lots of the. And at 35 cents a dozen for Red Wigglers (a dozen of his prize Glass Worms will cost you 55 cents), he has established a growing business and a solid reputation as a hard worker.

But one day this summer, Jody received a letter from the Department of Taxation that put the bite into his worm business. The authorities had learned Jody had not been collecting sales taxes on his worm deals. They wanted their money . . . and they threatened to get tough and haul Master Gerard into court if he did not promptly contact them.

So he did. Frightened out of his wits, he telephoned a tax official and explained he was only 12 years old and had no intention of breaking any laws—especially those he knew nothing about. There was a pause. The bureaucrats huddled, then told him to await their instructions. They would consult further than get back to him with their decision.

About a week later, the answer came. Like it or not, Jody would have to pay the tax. New York State had decided his worms were tangible legal property. But about that same time, the story got out that a very enterprising young man felt he was being treated badly by his state government. Letters, supporting Jody, began pouring into Eddyville's post office—some from as far away as Switzerland. To date, well-wishers have mailed Jody more than $80 to cover his first quarter tax bill of 64 cents.

Confronted with a rash of negative publicity, the bureaucracy began to bend . . . slightly. One official who was reportedly "proud" of the way the whole affair had been handled, later claimed to have been misquoted. Promises were made to seek legislative relief so that minors with small businesses would be exempt from paying sales taxes. And in one majestically expensive gesture of sweet reasonableness, a state official was sent all the way to Jody's home just to help him fill out his tax forms.

What's been accomplished? Government, so reluctant, so incapable of spending less and living within its means, has once again proved it will spare almost no time, effort or expense in defending its power to reap the rewards of someone else's risks.

Yet look at the price we must all pay. As soon as Jody learned he had a problem with the tax department, he closed down his worm stand. Then the other kids in town, fearing they too might be violating the law and might be slapped with heavy fines, began taking down their signs and closing their stands. Today, the worm business in Eddyville has dried up. Gone too is a small spark of that vital spirit of self-initiative, and not just now—not just for the bait business—but perhaps for later in life, for more ambitious pursuits.

Eddyville is just one small mountain town. But what happened there is an important microcosm of the kind of bureaucratic overkill that is doing so much to destroy business initiative and growth all across America. Government doesn't create progress, people do—millions of people like Jody Gerard who latch onto an idea to provide a product or a service others want or need. When will we wake up and have the intelligence and faith to place America's future back in their hands?

"FREEZING TIPS FOR 'WINTER PICNIC' "

Nothing may lift winter-dulled palates and spirits more than an indoor "picnic" of fresh salads, vegetables and fruits. And, it can be a snap to serve an out-of-season garden-fresh repast if you do a little summer harvesting and freezing.

Admiral, makers of upright and chest freezers know from years of experience the importance of proper food freezing. Here are a few tips from the experts:

Whatever quantity you freeze, the quality of the food is of first importance. Be aware that food quality is largely determined by the time and condition of the harvest. If fruits and vegetables are picked at the peak of ripeness and then frozen, the result can be more nutritious than food that has spent days in transit and storage to the supermarket.

One of the most important things to remember about freezing is packaging. How well you package food today will determine the quality of your frozen food several weeks or months later.

When selecting a package, be sure to choose the one that will insure an absolutely moisture-and vapor-proof seal, both to protect food from drying out and to keep odors from penetrating into the freezer and causing off-flavors in the food.

There are three different kinds of packages you can use to store frozen foods — nonrigid, and rigid containers, and heat-in pouches or heat-sealing pouches. Each keeps a particular kind of food better than the others, so be sure to do your "freezing" home work.

Problems in freezing occur when the wrong package or container is used to store food. Improper packaging usually results in "freezer burn." This is a dry, flaky appearance on the surface of food caused by moisture loss. With moisture loss comes a loss in nutrients, taste, and texture.

Planning a winter "picnic" during the summer months is a great way to please the family, so be sure to consider Admiral's tips for the best packaging and freezing results.

LOLITA C. GONZALES, a Philippines student currently studying in the cooperative program at the University of Wisconsin, spent the last two days of her one-week visit at Consumer's Co-op association in Thief River Falls. Duane Putz, manager of Consumer's Co-op, informed Gonzales of cooperative aspects and operations.

Lolita Gonzales Studies Co-ops

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Lolita C. Gonzales, a student from the Philippines, recently worked at Consumer's Co-op association in Thief River Falls, receiving graining from Duane Putz, manager of the business.

Gonzales began work in the area September 30 and continued her stay in Thief River Falls until the following Wednesday. During her work at Consumers, she interviewed Putz to learn different aspects of cooperatives, and she also observed operations of the cooperative business.

Her job became available to her through a training program at the University of Wisconsin, in the university's center for cooperatives, where she currently attends school. Students apply for admission at the cooperative center, she said. Once the student is accepted for admission he or she is assigned a sponsor. Currently, Gonzales is sponsored by Kansas state university.

Students are to have three weeks of field training through the cooperative program at the school, she said. She visited Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Roseau for her first week of training, and visited various cooperatives until she was stationed for a limited period at Consumer's Co-op.

In St. Hilaire, Gonzales visited St. Hilaire Co-op elevator, and in Roseau she obtained information on cooperatives at Town and Country Cooperative. Another cooperative she visited in Thief River Falls was Farmer's Co-op Grain and Seed association, she said. This week Gonzales returned to Madison, Wis., where she will attend school for five weeks before going on another two-week training session.

The training program runs for 16 weeks, she said. It began August 27 and will end December 14. Gonzales stated that she will be visiting California for five days at the end of her training session December 14.

"I am just going visiting for a while there," she said.

She will then travel to South Korea for further study on cooperatives before returning to her home in the Philippines where she will hopefully be placed in a cooperative association.

August 21, Gonzales arrived in Madison, Wis. She has enjoyed her month's stay in the United States so far, she said.

"I like it very much," she added. "The people are basically very helpful."

Fire Drill For Families Set On Wednesday

Operation EDITH (exit drill in the home) will be conducted Wednesday in Thief River Falls as a project of the local chapter of Jaycee Women in cooperation with the Thief River Falls fire department.

The city fire siren will sound at 7 p.m., at which time families are encouraged to practice with all family members the methods of vacating their homes in the event of a fire.

"Always the first priority in case of a fire is the necessity for people to get out of the burning building," stated Thief River Falls fire chief Duane Noel. "Families should arrange a place to meet outside the home and once outside should not re-enter.

"With the increasing use of wood burning for home heating, providing the potential for chimney fires and over-heated stoves, fire danger in the home is an ever present danger," he said.

Proclaim School Bus Safety Week

Police chief Ken Froschheiser and county sheriff Chuck Richards announce that the week of October 7-13 has been proclaimed school bus safety week in Minnesota. Primary purpose of school bus safety week is to improve safety to pupil transportation.

Nationally, school buses transport over 22 million students per day and travel over 2.6 billion miles per year. In Minnesota, over 600,000 students are transported each day and the buses travel over 110 million miles each year.

"School buses have an outstanding safety record, but are not immune from accidents. Nationally, statistics indicate that most accidents occur during the loading and unloading process. Many accidents occur when motorists fail to observe the school bus stop law," said Sheriff Richards.

Many motorists are not aware of the provisions of the law regarding the loading and unloading of school buses. "In Minnesota, we use an 8 lamp lighting system on school buses," Chief Froschheiser added.

"It works as follows. As a school bus approaches a loading or unloading zone, alternately flashing yellow lights will be displayed at the top of the bus. As in other traffic situations, flashing yellow lamps should alert motorists to be cautious of a potential hazard. When a school bus is stopped to load or unload students, alternately flashing red lights will be displayed and a stop arm will

Stolen Vehicles Damaged; One Youth Charged

Theft and damage to a number of vehicles was noted by the Thief River Falls police department in a series of incidents which resulted in the apprehension of two male juveniles.

One youth, who is charged with several of the thefts, was apprehended after officers spotted a vehicle driving without its lights on and gave chase when it failed to stop. The chase ended when the driver abandoned the vehicle and fled on foot, being apprehended by an officer a short time later.

The vehicle was found to have been stolen from Verna Lunke of Middle River about two miles from where a car stolen earlier from Arthur James Paulson of Greendale Manor had gone into a ditch when pursued by the state patrol southeast of Middle River. The Paulson car had been stolen from the Best Western parking lot, and when abandoned by the driver contained beer reported stolen earlier in the evening from a pickup owned by Dale Holtan of Newfolden and also parked in the Best Western lot.

The previous evening police had received a call about an accident in the 200 block of Kendall av. S. where they found an abandoned pickup owned by Dale Brown of Countryside trailer court. Investigation revealed the pickup to have been stolen.

The driver of the pickup had apparently been going south on Kendall when the vehicle struck a car owned by William Penning, went over the curb, struck two street signs, a fence, a hedge and another vehicle owned by Tad Foley. The driver could not be located and damage was estimated at $800 to the stolen pickup and the Penning car and $200 to the Foley car.

Clyde Shumway of Countryside trailer court also reported a pickup stolen from his home and it was found in the Thygeson Construction yard near the city where it had been driven onto a gravel pile. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

On September 28 a report of a car burning south of Thief River Falls about nine miles was received and investigation revealed it had been stolen from Hal Harbott of Countryside trailer court. A male juvenile was arrested a short distance from the scene, questioned and released to his parents. Loss of the car was estimated at $500.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Matthews-Engelstad Vows Spoken in Illinois

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Donald Engelstad are at home in Bemidji following an exchange of marriage vows at the Bonnie Brook Baptist church in Waukegan, Ill., and a wedding trip to northern Wisconsin and across to Oregon.

The bride, the former Laura Marie Matthews is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wedekind of Lake Villa, Ill. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Engelstad of this city.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Rev. Frank Russell, pastor of Oak Hills Bible Institute, Bemidji, and Rev. Oriel Hansen, pastor of the church. Mrs. Philip Wright was the organist. Vocalists were Teresa Nygard and Steve Hjelle, college classmates of the couple. Selections sung were "Jesus Loves Me, Oh, How He Loves Me," "The Gift of Love," and "Eternal Life."

Serving as acolytes were the groom's sisters: Pam Engelstad and Mary Frances Engelstad, both of this city. They wore matching gowns of a pale green qiana.

For the two-o'clock ceremony, witnessed by approximately 150 relatives and friends, the chancel was graced with candelabra trimmed with a spray of daisies and apricot colored bows.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white organza over taffeta featuring an empire bodice with stand-up collar and long illusion lace-trimmed sleeves with lace cuffs. The bodice was styled with an over-the-shoulder Venice lace yoke edged with ruffles. Her full skirt was complemented by a chapel-length train. To complete her attire, a beaded headpiece held her walking-length veil edged in matching Venice lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and carnations accented with babies' breath and apricot colored stephanotis.

Sharon Emanuelson of Zion, Ill., was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Denise Davey of St. Paul. Jan Giese of Appleton and Ginny Shaka of Park City, Ill., were bridesmaids. All are college classmates of the couple. Their gowns of apricot colored organza, lined with matching acetate, featured ruffled necklines that dipped to a V in back and front, capelet sleeves, set-in waistbands and flare skirts with flounced hems. They carried spring nosegays featuring roses, carnations and babies' breath in shades of orange, yellow, purple, green and white.

Attending the groom as best man was a college classmate, Danny Hodgson of Bemidji. Groomsmen were Rod Kastner, Solway, another classmate, and Tim Engelstad, Thief River Falls, a brother of the groom. Ushers were Neal Matthews, Lake Villa, Ill., and Rick Engelstad, Thief River Falls, brothers of the bride and groom. All wore dark green tuxedos with satin vests and bow ties, mint green shirts and apricot colored carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wedekind selected an A-line princess styled dress in a floral apricot, tan and white print topped with a matching sheer, long-sleeved jacket. The mother of the groom was attired in a pale peach polyester gown designed in A-line fashion with cap sleeves. Their corsages were of roses and daisies, in white, peach and yellow.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Serving as hostesses were Marge and Stacy Naffziger of Zion, Ill. At the guest book was Dawn-Marie Engelstad of this city, a sister of the groom. Chelley Naffziger, Zion, served the punch, Cindy Hoppe, Zion, poured the coffee; and Cathy Krapf, Zion, cut and served the four tiered wedding cake topped with two beaded bells crocheted by Effie Coninx, a friend of the couple.

Loyland Reunion Held at Church In North Dakota

Between 50-60 grandsons, granddaughters and relatives of the Loyland brothers and sister gathered recently at the East Walle church and dining hall, Thompson, N.D. for a traditional reunion of relatives and friends.

Due to the number of relatives, too many for the average home to accodate in case of inclement weather, the reunion was held at the East Walle Lutheran church. It was noted that land for the church and cemetery, for both the East and West Waale churches, had been donated by the Loyland brothers.

The reunion began with a potluck dinner at noon. The afternoon was spent in visiting self introductions of themselves and their families, and in taking pictures.

Relatives and friends attending were from Washington and California; Klaten, Grand Forks and Thompson, N.D., and Oklee, Goodridge, Pengilly, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls and Crookston.

For the seven o'clock ceremony bouquets of blue carnations and yellow daisies graced the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor-length, Victorian styled gown with lace trimmed, full-length sleeves. The empire bodice featured a Venice lace yoke, outlined in front and back by a ruffle. Her full skirt flowed into a chapel-length train. A headpiece of Venice lace with simulated seed pearl trim held her walking length veil, edged with scalloped lace. She carried a cascade of daisies, roses and orchids accented with straw flowers. Her attire, which included the old, new, borrowed and blue theme, featured her grandmother's cameo necklace.

Marilyn Gunnarson of Virginia attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Wendy Ulrich, Anaheim, Calif., Roxane Ulrich, city, sisters of the bride, and Mary Wayne, Thief River Falls, a friend of the couple. All wore gowns of a rust, coral and peach floral print, styled with sweetheart necklines, short puffy sleeves and floor-length skirts with a ruffled hemline. To complete their attire, they wore straw hats with rust ribbon; and they carried bouquets of daisies and mums, accented with straw flowers. Their hand-painted china necklaces were gifts from the bride.

At the guest book were Brenda Busse, sister of the bride, and Yvette Nerguson, a friend of the couple. Lynette Hoard and Vicki Thompson, friends of the couple, served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a pillared three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with coral and rust colored roses. Two white doves topped the cake and a flowing water fountain graced the base. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Tim Fuller and was cut and served by Deb Wold and Edith Wold, aunts of the bride. Anna Magnuson was also honored when a number of relatives and friends gathered at the home on Saturday, September 29, to help her celebrate her birthday. Lunch was served. In honor of the occasion, Mrs. Magnuson served ice cream to all the residents. Other birthday honorees serving ice cream to the residents in September were Joe Pletchett, Mildred Brekke and Mrs. Vernon Malberg.

As a special event, an open house was held at the home on Sunday, September 9 in observance of Grandparents day. A program was given by the Kenneth Sandland family and the Valley Home choir. Among the selections sung was the "Valley Home song" written by Robert Robarge. Doughnuts and coffee followed. Pouring during the reception were Hilda H. Johnson, Olga Christianson, Milda Christianson, Julia Alexander, Pauline Culver, Belle Erickson and Adele Olson.

Activities during the month included Bible study every Tuesday morning with Mrs. Knute Jore in charge, and devotional programs by Rev. J. L. Hagemeister of the Assemblies of God Tabernacle; Rev. Mass was also offered every Saturday at 9 a.m.

A number of residents also participated in the painting lessons held weekly with Margaret Johnson in charge; and the majority of the residents were busy in the craft room preparing for the second Valley Home bazaar set for November 17. Olive Lunke is the craft director. All participated in a fire drill on Tuesday, September 25.

Other activities included a sing-along with CAP students Jeff Poole, Julie Johnson and Susie Olson in charge; slides shown by the Gene Beitos of their recent trip to Norway and other countries; a visit from the members of Lois circle of Trinity Lutheran church who served doughnuts with the afternoon coffee; use of the paratransit bus for shopping in downtown Thief River Falls and the Northland shopping center; attendance at the Public Library open house, viewing of two movies shown by Tammy Rude, and bowling at Oakland Park Nursing home with the Valley Home team victorious.

New Post Card Issue To Honor Iolani Palace

A 10-cent 1979 commemorative postal card in the historic preservation series honors America's only royal residence, the Iolani palace. The palace served the Hawaiian monarchy and later was the legislative and governmental building of the republic of Hawaii, the territory of Hawaii and the state of Hawaii.

Construction of the palace began in 1879, and was completed in 1882. In 1962, the palace was designated a national historical landmark.

The multi-color postal card is the third issue in the historic preservation servies which features historically significant American buildings. The series began in July, 1977, with the issuance of the Galveston, Texas, courthouse card and continued in 1978 with the issuance of the Cincinnati, Ohio, music hall card.

Customers desiring first day cancellations should address orders to "Iolani Palace Postal Card, Postmaster, Honolulu, HI 96820." The cost will be 10 cents per card. Personal checks in the exact amount will be accepted for orders up to the limit of 50 cards. Postage stamps and cash are unacceptable as payment. Orders must be postmarked by October 16.

To eliminate the requirement for postal service personnel to apply return addresses, customers are requested to send self-addressed envelopes of an appropriate size or return address labels with their orders.

Urge Public To Be Immunized Against Flu

As this year's influenza season approaches, health authorities are again recommending that certain groups of people be immunized against that disease.

Immunization is recommended for the elderly and for those with chronic illnesses, who are "at high risk" of developing a severe case of influenza or experiencing serious complications like pneumonia. Specifically, those being urged to get the shots are people over age 65, and people with heart disease; chronic lung disease; chronic kidney disease; diabetes; severe chronic anemia (an example would be sickle cell disease); or lowered resistance to infection, caused by a disease or some type of medical treatment. Examples would be drugs designed to suppress the body's immune system, and some forms of cancer.

Severity of an influenza infection can vary greatly, according to Denton Peterson of the state Health Department's immunization unit. For some people, it may be no more serious than a cold, he noted. But for people in the high risk category, it can lead to severe complications, and it can even be fatal.

It's important that people at high risk be re-immunized every year, said Peterson. New strains of influenza virus appear all the time, he said, so the vaccine has to be changed accordingly. This year's vaccine is designed to protect against three different types of influenza.

Peterson urged anyone who might be at high risk to ask a physician about being immunized. At least a few people can be expected to get influenza every year, he said, but there's no way to predict where or when outbreaks will occur, or how widespread they'll be.

Recycled Buildings Fulfill New Needs

by David Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

A brewery in Texas is now a museum; a dairy barn in Missouri, a shopping center. A torpedo factory in Virginia is today a prosperous arts' center; an old slaughter house in Manhattan, a spacious studio-residence. Throughout the nation, new uses are being found for old buildings once threatened by the wrecker's ball.

The trend which spread rapidly through cities and town in the 1970's is firmly rooted in the American preservation tradition, but the development differs dramatically from the earlier emphasis on restoring buildings to who how they once looked and were used.

"Preservation does not, and emphatically should not mean merely restoration," according to Barbaralee Diamonstein, creator of an exhibit about reborn buildings prepared by the Smithsonian institution traveling exhibition service. "Probably the single most important aspect of the preservation movement is the recycling of old buildings — adapting them to uses different from the ones for which they were originally intended."

The recycling phenomenon is viewed as an outgrowth of a number of factors: disenchantment with urban renewal programs that bulldozed entire neighborhoods and replaced them with housing projects lacking any sense of community, the march of social activists against indiscriminate leveling of landmark buildings, a broad-based interest in preservation and displeasure with modern architecture's often impersonal, brutal new buildings.

Despite the successes of the recycling movement, there are several dangers on the horizon spotted by Diamonstein and other critics.

Some preservation projects, to their eyes, have become too chic or too cute, burdened by too many curio shops that quickly tarnish an area's historic appeal. Other projects are misdirected: "We have to fight constantly against the desire to make a lovely 1890's town look like a 17th century New England village," says James Biddle, director of the national trust for historic preservation. "And as property values and taxes rise in still other areas following restoration, the poor and elderly who have lived in the neighborhoods often are forced out."

A third concern is the possibility of over-preserving, protecting a building no matter what its value. Related to this is the matter of preservation costs. According to the American institute of architects, renovation "can often be carried out at lower cost than tearing down existing structures."

But it cannot be assumed, one planner for a large Washington, D.C. developer cautions, that either new construction or rehabilitation is cheaper because land values, materials and labor costs vary so widely. "Preservation by adaptive use is not always the answer," this planner states, "although it always should be considered."

Projects across the nation where preservation was chosen include these examples:

One of the nation's earliest redevelopment projects, San Francisco's Ghirardelli square, a former chocolate factory converted over a decade ago to shops, offices and restaurants, has inspired new adaptations in other American cities.

In Alexandria, Va., a dreary, wartime torpedo factory located in the heart of the town's historic district has been given new life as a successful arts center, where 200 painters, sculptors, photographers and other artists maintain studios visited each year by 350,000 shoppers and tourists. In Brooklyn, N.Y., an ugly foundry was converted to a 532-bed teaching hospital, believed to be the first hospital recycled from an industrial plant.

New York City's Soho district, the largest concentration of 19th century cast-iron front buildings, also has taken on new life as the former factories, warehouses and showrooms are turned into contemporary studios, residential lofts, apartments and businesses. This area, according to Diamonstein, has become a model of adaptive re-use for sturdy but underused warehouses across the country.

Just north of Soho, in Greenwich Village, artist Lowell Nesbitt found the spaciousness of an old slaughterhouse ideal for his studio and home. In the West, the San Antonio Museum of Art is transforming the old Lone Star brewery into exhibition galleries and offices.

Converting churches to preservation headquarters or private residences are unique adaptive uses for old structures. For sheer surprise there is the one-time synagogue in Salt Lake City, now a restaurant specializing in food from six nations. These are the unique details: tables are located in the nave and the arched balcony, the latter once used a classrooms; a bar is found in the former choir loft; the altar backdrop remains in place, but a three-foot state was built for nightly chamber music.

OSHA Viewed By US Chamber Of Commerce

Since its inception in 1971, the occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) has cost American taxpayers almost $1 billion, and American business and industry have spent an additional $25 billion to comply with its regulations, according to the chamber of commerce of the United States.

Congress gave the agency an immense and incredibly difficult task — to regulate safety and health conditions in millions of U.S. workplaces, none exactly alike, ranging from huge steel mills and refineries to computerized offices and small machine shops. Virtually all employers are affected.

In essence, Congress asked OSHA to dispense wisdom — to create a workplace utopia where no one was supposed to slip and fall, get hurt or get sick.

OSHA ran into early criticism. . .over rules requiring U-shaped toilet seats and no ice in drinking water, for example. Then came a long string of regulatory bloopers. An entire booklet was devoted to instructing farmers on such perils as barn manure.

It got so bad that when Eula Bingham became administrator she made headlines by claiming the elimination of nearly 1,000 "nonsensical" and "nit-picking" regulations.

Now comes a new study and statistical analysis of the chamber of commerce of the United States which shows — as suspected all along — that while OSHA tinkered, it lost sight of its main purpose of reducing serious job accidents and sickness. Instead, sharp increases have occurred.

Although the total injury and illness rates show declines since 1972, when the bureau of labor statistics first gathered the data, the rate for serious injury and illness — those that cause lost of days of work — rose 15 per cent from 1972 to 1977.

Days lost due to sickness and accidents rose 29.1 per cent.

Fatalities rose by over a 1,000 or 24.1 per cent, from 1976 to 1977.

Although OSHA stopped counting worker fatalities of small employers (11 or fewer) in 1977, these deaths can be reliably estimated. For large companies, worker fatalities rose by 20.8 per cent in 1977, far overshadowing earlier declines.

OSHA now is plunging into an uncharted area of federal regulation — an attempt to identify, catalogue and regulate the use of thousands of carcinogens — substances alleged to cause cancer — in the work environment. OSHA's regulatory plan, according to a reliable estimate, could require industry to spend upwards of $88 billion.

Mrs. Orlando Chervestad and mother Signe drove down to Grand Forks Monday on a business trip and also motored down to Hillsboro bowling lanes and brought some carrots to manager Steve Collins, formerly from California. Steve, a young man, was crippled with rheumatism, unable to do much walking. Steve's diet consists of lots of carrot juice and food supplements for a balance diet of natural foods. Steve is back to normal in good health and ready to start bowling.

Employment Of Handicapped Is Promoted

This week serves to focus attention on activities which are carried on by many organizations throughout the year to help handicapped workers return to gainful employment. Its purpose is to call the attention of the employers and the nation to the valuable contributions being made by handicapped workers and to encourage employers to hire on the basis of ability to do the job.

Special emphasis this year during national employ the handicapped week will be the referral and placement of the disabled veteran. Any handicapped veteran who is looking for work and has not registered for work is urged to contact the nearest job service and register. Any employer who could use a handicapped person, especially a veteran, is also encouraged to contact the nearest job service. You will be assisted in filling your opening with a capable, qualified applicant.

Handicapped persons want to work and take a place in society. All they ask is the employer consider them on the basis of ability, not disability.

director. Total enrollment for the 1949-50 school year was 18 students. In 1957 an addition was built to Lincoln high school to accommodate increasing enrollment. Added programs and growing student load resulted in passage of a bond issue in 1966 to construct new facilities on school-acquired land east of Thief River Falls on highway 1.

In October of 1976 a bond issue was passed to construct the present 50,000 square foot addition to the complex on highway 1 east and consolidate all AVTI programs on the site with the exception of aviation mechanics which operates at the regional airport. Farm equipment mechanics will be an added program in the new facilities.

Enrollment in all AVTI programs is approximately 450 students. Present board of education includes McDowell as chairman; Harry Sjulson, vice chairman; Ken Murphy, clerk; Bob Sorvig, treasurer; Wally Grovum, Maynard Wedul and Ken Weibolt, directors.

be extended from the left side of the bus. Again, as in other traffic situations, red flashing lights mean stop. Motorists approaching a stopped school bus which is displaying flashing red lamps and a stop arm are required to stop at least 20 feet from the stopped bus and remain stopped until the red lights are extinguished and the stop arm is retracted."

"The citizens of Pennington county should also be aware that the penalty for violating the school bus stop law was recently increased to a misdemeanor by the 1978 Legislature. The penalty for a misdemeanor is up to 90 days in jail, a fine of up to $500, or both," Sheriff Richards said.

"The 1979 Legislature made another change in the school bus stop law. The owner of a motor vehicle may now be fined up to $100 if the vehicle is involved in a school bus stop law violation. This most recent change in the law was intended to provide additional safety to students in our county as well as throughout Minnesota."

Marshall Co. Central Holds Homecoming

Marshall county central talent show and queen coronation for 1979 featured a variety of activities Friday evening. Opening the ceremony was the presentation of homecoming royalty, which was followed by skits performed by faculty and students.

Seniors won first prize for their "Saturday Night Live" skit. Jazz band performed for the audience as they played "Crystal" and "Live". Presentation of varsity football players included a surprise song sung by all football players to the three queen candidates. Selected song was "You are My Sunshine."

Crown was presented to Karen Kjensrud, as she was named homecoming queen for 1979. A snake dance and bonfire followed the program.

SPECIAL SERVICES are planned at Bethesda Lutheran Brethren church, in rural Grygla October 14-18. Sunday services will be at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. Rev. Arnold Windahl (pictured) and William Windahl, natives of Newfolden and now of Fergus Falls, will sing and speak. Public is cordially invited to attend the services.

David Frost To Open MEA Convention

David Frost, Emmy award-winning television personality, will keynote the 94th convention of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) October 18 in the Minneapolis auditorium arena.

The two-day convention, expected to attract more than 20,000 educators from throughout the state, is open to the public, free.

Others on the opening program (10 a.m. Thursday) include Jerry Brown, governor of California; Minnesota Lt. Gov. Lou Wangberg; Sen. Jerry Hughes and Rep. Carl Johnson, heads of the state senate and house of representatives education committees, and MEA president Donald C. Hill.

Thursday afternoon and Friday are filled with hundreds of sessions in the Minneapolis auditorium and in schools and hotels throughout the Twin Cities area. All these also are free and open to the public.

Hill explains that the convention and the exhibits — with more than 300 exhibitors, it is one of the nation's largest education-related displays — is being opened to the public because "all of us, especially parents, are educators and we want to share with the people."

Performances include drama, music and opera, dance and art. Most is designed to be attractive to school children as well as adults.

Opening the convention will be the launching of a sky sculpture (of hot air balloons) from the roof of the Minneapolis auditorium and convention hall.

Doing What Can Be Done

Editor Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review takes a dim view of the commentators who dissect political figures such as the President of the United States. Here is what he wrote after President Carter's message to the nation on Soviet troops in Cuba:

Oh, if we could only give the major TV network analysts, the big city syndicated columnists and a few politicians an opportunity to run this country!

Moments after President Carter's speech on the problem of Soviet troops in Cuba, they were pick-pick-picking away, questioning his leadership, wondering why he hadn't been more forceful and doubting that the public will stand for much more. What is really amazing is that the public stands for the inane ranting of some self-styled experts whose chief qualifications are well-modulated voices or an interesting writing style.

All of us wish that the President had been able to say that Russia had accepted his request to withdraw any trace of combat troops from Cuba. Nobody likes that situation. It would be exciting to see a President stand in righteous anger and demand action from Soviet Russia which seems determined to maintain tension whenever and wherever possible.

But who among the tough-talking politicians and media representatives wishes to go to war, personally, with Russia? Short of threatening that, what can a President say that might compel a big, aggressive nation to get its troops out of a smaller but equally aggressive country?

"I don't think the President is doing anything to show that we mean business," says Sen. John Tower of Texas. Idaho Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, thinks that that combat status of the Soviet troops has to be altered."

Fine, Senator. How would you do it?

Cuba's Fidel Castro is amused by it all. He wonders why there is suddenly an uproar, pointing out that Russian troops have been in Cuba for 17 years.

"Why is it now a problem?" asks Castro who charges the U.S. with alarmist tactics which are "dishonest, insincere and immoral."

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev is equally unimpressed. He contends that Russian troops are not a combat brigade, that they have been there for years and that there are no plans to expand the unit or use it in any other capacity than for training.

Citing the assurances from Brezhnev, Carter also outlines specific actions which should make it clear to Russia and Cuba that the United States is concerned, alert and prepared to react swiftly if the need arises. Military maneuvers will be expanded and conducted more frequently in that region. Surveillance of Cuba will be increased. A permanent, full time Caribbean Joint Task Force headquarters will be established at Key West, Florida, to "substantially improve our capability to monitor and respond rapidly to any attempted military encroachment in the region."

We must agree with those who say that President Carter has not been a strong leader. But neither Congress nor the American public has shown any great interest in following proposals for action or leadership of any kind. Considerable progress could have been made in some areas where leadership has been offered.

In this instance, President Carter has quite properly sought to put the issue of Russian troops in Cuba in the proper perspective.

More On Roads

Jake Crandall, general counsel for the Minnesota chapter of the American Automobile association (AAA), commented in the October issue of "Minnesota Motorist" magazine about current road problems in the state.

"Metropolitan freeways are scarred by potholes and daily commuter traffic is slowed by bridge deck and road resurface projects," he writes. "Rural roads are rapidly deteriorating and the farm community is becoming increasingly vocal about the inability to move the harvest to market. Minnesota department of transportation tells us that Minnesota's roads and bridges are in trouble and that the only solution is an increase in the state motor fuel tax."

Crandall believes that the increase in truck traffic in recent years has been the main factor in road deterioration.

"Truck weight has always been recognized as an important element in figuring road damage. Truck weight maximums were first established for Minnesota roads as early as 1921. The federal government set a uniform weight of 73,280 pounds for the interstate system in 1956 and that was not changed until it was increased to 80,000 pounds in 1975. It is generally through that the increase was a compromise between congress and the trucking industry when the nation's speed limit was reduced to 55 mph," he said.

The increase in allowable truck weights from 18,000 to 20,000 pounds on a single axle and 32,000 to 34,000 pounds on a tandem axle has resulted in 50 per cent and 25 per cent more damage respectively by these increased axle loadings," Crandall added.

"The number of commercial vehicles registered in Minnesota has increased from 166,756 in 1960 to 490,863 in 1977. State weight law enforcement has not kept pace. There has been no significant increase in money appropriated for weight law enforcement since 1967."

Crandall said he cannot support an increase in motor fuel tax unless all that can be reasonably done is done to enforce weight restrictions. "The Minnesota Motor Transport association has publicly expressed its support for rigorous weight enforcement and shares our view that no truck should be allowed to operate illegally and further endanger the tremendous investment in highways which we all share," he wrote.

"In addition to a strong weight enforcement program, we believe the Minnesota department of transportation should fully explore the relative advantages of truck, train and barge transportation in the movement of agricultural commodities and develop policies designed to maximize these advantages and reduce the demands being placed on highways wherever possible."

What Press Freedom Means

Following editorial is from the Warren Sheaf:

Walsh County Judge of Increased Jurisdiction Ted Weisenburger sounded like a modern day Thomas Jefferson when he protected the right of the public to know several weeks ago in Grafton. Freedom of the press, guaranteed by the first amendment, has come under increasing attack by the courts of the land the last 10 years. Increasingly they are ruling that when the right of the accused to a free trial and the right of the press are at loggerheads the press loses and the accused wins.

The Sheaf has consistently maintained that the reason the courts over the years have racked up a large body of law in defense of freedom of the press is not that the press has special privileges for itself but rather that the people have a right to know. This is really what freedom of the press is all about.

Next week is National Newspaper Week and Judge Weisenburger's comments on refusing to close his court room for a pre-trial hearing have a nice ring to them, echoing Thomas Jefferson's sentiments.

The attorney for four men accused of robbery asked for closing a pre-trial hearing, citing the Supreme Court's ruling that individual judges could determine if a preliminary hearing could harm the chances of a fair trial.

Judge Weisenburger said, "The rights of a defendant are protected by a free press generally. I'd prefer to have the press present at all times. It keeps everyone honest.

"I didn't feel the freedom of the press was the main issue here. The right of the public to know what's going on in the courts was. I'm a strong believer in freedom of the press. Because without that right, we have no way to insure the other rights," said Judge Weisenburger.

Thomas Jefferson, that outspoken early advocate of freedom of the press, couldn't have said it any better. Certainly we could not have put our thoughts down more clearly. Philosophical values such as espoused by Judge Weisenburger are tried and true and have helped build our country to pinnacle of democratic self rule in the world. Let's not tamper with success. Most of our difficulties have revolved around an uninformed public. The press may not be perfect. But very little news or information of a negative nature would see the light of day if those who govern had their way.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Energy Action in Congress

Everywhere I go in Minnesota people ask me why Congress isn't taking some action on our country's energy problems. They expect a government plan that will ease all our troubles. Why? Because too many politicians have made too many promises for too long.

The truth is, the federal government can't and won't solve the energy crisis. The people will provide the solutions; government will only provide the means for those solutions to be successful.

The promises we've heard to create synthetic fuels and the other cure-all schemes won't produce a drop of energy for more than a decade. Obviously, we can't wait that long for answers.

In the past few weeks, the mood in Congress seems to have changed. Instead of looking for a single, catch-all program, the goal now is to encourage conservation and more production from renewable sources.

Congress is taking positive and responsible action in theses areas. In the past few weeks we've developed the following programs:

+ The Finance Committee has developed a tax credit incentive for producing energy from unconventional sources ranging from solar to geothermal. This credit will encourage private citizens and businesses to explore and develop the use of renewable sources of energy.

+ Last week the committee agreed to a proposal I cosponsored with Senator Bob Packwood of Oregon to increase the tax credit for individuals who install solar, wind or geothermal equipment in their principal residences. The new credit will be 50 per cent of the cost of equipment, up to a maximum of $10,000. This credit will encourage a lot of Minnesotans to install oil-saving equipment. In fact, estimates show that this credit could result in the savings of 33,000 barrles of oil per day within about 10 years. For the country, that means less reliance on imported oil; for the individual, it means a huge savings in energy costs.

+ The Senate recently agreed to my proposal to earmark $1.1 billion for immediate assistance to people who cannot meet the high cost of heating their homes this winter. In addition, several bills have been introduced which will provide long-term help for the poor and those on fixed incomes.

+ The Finance Committee has accepted my amendment to the windfall profits tax to encourage the development and use of small hydroelectic plants on existing dams. Granting tax credits to those plants will be an incentive for them to again generate power from water. Dams throughout the state will be affected, including major dams in Coon Rapids, St. Cloud, Byllesby and Rapidan. These and other dams were formerly used for power generation, but gave way to recreational use with the advent of cheap oil. Now that the price of oil keeps increasing, my tax credits will make the dams economically feasible.

I've also sent a letter to President Carter urging him to take quick action on a pipeline between the West Coast and Minnesota. This pipeline, along with acompanion line from Illinois to Minnesota, will assure our state of an adequate supply of crude oil when Canada shuts off its imports.

Also, last week I joined Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut on cosponsoring a bill to create an energy mobilization board. This panel will have the authority to cut through the red tape on energy projects. Because of the work done in Minnesota by my citizen task force, the mobilization board will be designed to be responsible for protecting the environment and will not have the power to circumvent state and local laws. However, it will be able to make quick decisions on energy projects and get the necessary programs through the sea os government red tape.

Congress will pass a windfall profits tax this fall. The revenue from the tax will help finance some of our energy projects, including some of the tax credits I've outlined. However, the windfall profits tax will not be the answer to all our problems. That answer will come only through a concerned and dedicated effort by government, business and private citizens.

DWIGHT W. LOGIE (right), assistant Minneapolis zone manager of the Pontiac motor division, General Motors Corporation, was here recently to present Tom Kenville of Thomas Motors and his entire dealership in Thief River Falls the R.C. Stempel award for sales achievement during the 1979 swing into summer sales campaign. Award was given to Thomas Motors for exceeding its objective during the summer sales campaign.

Blind Persons Seek Support For Board Post

National federation of the blind of Minnesota has begin soliciting proxy support in its attempt to place elected members of the blind community on the board of directors of the Minneapolis society for the blind at a special election November 14.

Special election is in connection with a 1977 ruling by Hennepin county district court Judge Richard Kantorowicz in which he ordered the society to allow blind persons to run for board membership and to reopen its membership to any and all interested persons, sighted and blind, upon payment of $1.00 in dues. That ruling was upheld in 1979 by the Minnesota Supreme Court. Both courts ruled that the society had acted illegally in blocking the attempts of blind members to have a voice in the decision-making processes of the society.

"At issue here," said Joyce Scanlan, president of the national federation of the blind of Minnesota, "is an underlying attitude toward the blind. We believe the age of custodialism and pity toward the blind must come to an end."

"Minneapolis society for the blind is the only comprehensive rehabilitation facility for the blind in Minnesota. Therefore, it's vitally important that the society receive and respond to the inputs of all segments of the blind community," Scanlan continued.

"We are appealing to the society to recognize the qualifications of the blind and to let us have a voice in shaping our future: And we are appealing to the public to pay $1 to join the society and to send us their proxy to help us in obtaining this voice," said Scanlan.

Court To Hear Study Report By Commission

Minnesota supreme court has announced a special hearing to receive the final report of the supreme court study commission on the mentally disabled and the courts. At the hearing, set for October 12 at 10 a.m., commission chairperson Dean Richard Allen, assisted by commission members, will report to all supreme court justices on the commission's findings and recommendations for changes in the system of civil commitment in Minnesota.

An oral hearing on a report of this type is a unique procedure for the supreme court. At the hearing, the justices will have an opportunity to question commission members about the study. Public is invited to attend.

The 30-member commission, composed of lawyers, judges, psychiatrists, institution officials, advocates, public officers and representatives from a number of concerned organizations, was established in late 1977 at the urging of Chief Justice Robert J. Sheran and others who were concerned about the legal rights of mentally disabled persons. Associate Justice Rosalie E. Wahl was named the court's liaison to the study commission.

After its year and a half study of the way in which those alleged to be mentally ill or disabled are treated, the commission will make 24 recommendations to the court. Commission's proposals contain significant changes in the ways in which persons are presently committed in Minnesota, and they relate to all aspects of the commitment process, from the initial petition and medical examination, to the role of the attorney in commitment proceedings and the treatment of patients in state hospitals.

Recommendations were formulated after the commission and its staff, headed by attorney Lisabeth Nudell, conducted six public hearings, surveyed all counties and completed an in-depth study of the proceedings of 12 representative counties. Study was funded by a grant from the law enforcement assistance administration (LEAA), through the crime control planning board.

Boradcasting of the hearing on the mental disabilities study commission can be arranged by contacting Ruth Harris, Administrative assistant to the Supreme Court, 48 hours in advance, at (612) 297-2241. Copies of the final report of the commission will be available at the hearing, or can be obtained in limited amounts by contacting Cindy Cooper, Court Information Office, at (612) 296-5006. The hearing will be followed by a reception in the conference room of the Supreme Court.

Frosty Bridges Pose Hazard For Motorists

Motorists should be alert to the danger of frost-covered bridges at this time of year, warns the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Frost — sometimes not visible — can form any time that the bridge deck temperature is below freezing.

Drivers should cautiously approach bridges, particularly when they look wet or frosty. Slowing down immediately without applying brakes is advised.

If one bridge is slippery, the rest are probably slippery too, frequently when the roadway is not.

Slow down and live.

Legion Notes Largest Ever Membership

Minnesota American legion recorded a 1979 membership of 123,305 to establish the largest membership the state organization has ever had, according to Charles W. Ferguson, adjutant of the Minnesota American Legion.

"This represents our fifteenth year of gain in membership as we continue to grow and maintain our record as the leader among the states in the number of years we have been able to increase our total membership," Ferguson remarked.

Surveys of our membership indicate that approximately 30 per cent are Vietnam Era veterans, with the balance being World War I, World War II and Korean Era veterans. World War I veterans, the men who started the American Legion, continue to decline in numbers and their ranks represent about 5 per cent of the total Minnesota American Legion membership.

There are 485,000 "Wartime Veterans" as defined by the Veterans administration eligible for American Legion membership in Minnesota, so approximately 1 in 4 belong to the largest veterans' organization in Minnesota and with 2,670,000 members nationwide, it is the largest veterans' organization in the United States.

Early membership enrollment for the 1980 year, running well ahead of 1979, would seem to indicate another banner year in membership for the Minnesota Legion.

Inflation price you out of a new building? Take a look at Stran.

And reconsider.

As your Authorized Stran Builder, we're very much aware of how inflation has affected the cost of building new facilities.

Costs have risen dramatically for both materials, and construction labor. That's why it makes good building sense to take a look at Stran's building systems approach. Why?

- Most of the building is fabricated in a modern manufacturing plant to take advantage of automation and more productive man-hour utilization.
- The system is designed and produced to go together fast at your job site. Saving valuable man-hours in on-site construction costs.

Prowlers Talking Playoffs

Exuberant members of the Lincoln high school football team, caught up in the excitement of Friday's thrilling 22-21 upset win over a heavily favored Bemidji team that was unbeaten and ranked second in the Associated Press Class A power poll, were talking in terms of state playoffs in the lockerroom after the game. And the coaching staff didn't dissuade them.

"The kids were talking playoffs," mentioned Thief River Falls head coach Gene Jurgens. "We figured, what the heck, let them think about it. We've got a long ways to go, but it looks a lot brighter now than it did before the game."

What Thief River Falls' stunning victory did was to turn the Northwest Athletic Conference into a four-way scramble between the Prowlers, Lumberjacks, Crookston and East Grand Forks. Only Fergus Falls, 0-2 in the NWAC, is out of title contention.

That conference football crown is all-important because conference champion compete in the Minnesota State High School League state football playoffs. The NWAC champion will start Class A post-season play Nov. 2 or 3 against either the Iron Range Seaway or Mid-State conferences. Those two leagues will match champions in a preliminary qualifying game to earn a berth in the playoff quarterfinals.

"We have just as good a chance as anybody else," said Jurgens when he talked about the possibility of the first Thief River Falls Northwest Athletic Conference championship since 1972. "I think we'll match up better the rest of the way than we did against Bemidji."

Thief River Falls faces a tough season-ending NWAC schedule that will find the Prowlers at Fergus Falls Friday and at East Grand Forks Wed., Oct. 17, before returning home to close out the season Fri., Oct. 26, against Crookston. And despite their impressive victory over Bemidji, the Prowlers will rank no better than even in any of them. But even that's an improvement because Thief River Falls figured to be an underdog in all four NWAC starts before shocking the Lumberjacks, a near-unanimous choice to repeat its 1978 championship performance.

"Everyone in the conference is smiling now," smiled Jurgens, "Everybody but Bemidji."

Crookston ran its first place NWAC record to 2-0 Friday with a 22-6 win over East Grand Forks. It was the conference opener for the Green Wave who will be at Bemidji Friday. The Lumberjacks are 1-1 in league play.

A key Crookston-Bemidji confrontation will be staged Fri., Oct. 19, at Crookston. The Pirates will make what might be the state's longest road trip this week when they journey all the way to St. Peter for a rugged nonconference game.

The real key for the Prowlers' championship hopes will be Friday at Fergus Falls where Thief River Falls has won just once since the Otters became NWAC members in 1973. A Fergus Falls win Friday would quickly deflate Thief River Falls' sudden confidence. A Thief River Falls win, though, would make the enthused Prowlers tough to beat at East Grand Forks. And then what would be a better way to end the season than have ancient athletic rivals Thief River Falls and Crookston squaring off in a title-deciding game at the end.

"We just have to take them one at a time," warned Jurgens. "Each one gets more important from now on."

Miscellaneous

+Crookston Hockey Boosters Club has stepped up efforts to fund completion of the city's new civic arena. Joe French, the club's major gift chairman, said that the latest fund-raising effort — designed to finance a concrete floor, to go towards completion of the facility and to retire the group's bank debt — is $390,000. The club raised about $430,000 in 1977 to finance construction of a multi-purpose recreational facility adjacent to the winter sports arena. The arena was opened in November 1978 but unanticipated costs forced the group to temporarily abandon plays to install a concrete floor that would have permitted year-round activities such as indoor tennis, roller skating and dancing. Now the group wants to add that floor. "The first priority is installing the floor," French told a recent banquet crowd. "We estimate its cost at about $100,000. The rest of the funds will be used to retire a $290,000 indebtedness still outstanding on the new facility."

+Thief River Falls' Friday night 22-21 win over Bemidji was only the Prowlers' 16th victory over the Lumberjacks in 65 meetings, according to information posted by Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer. It's Bemidji's oldest football series.

+Writing in Friday's Bemidji Pioneer, columnist Cliff Morlan said, "Bemidji's Lumberjacks tonight should be able to handle Thief River Falls, but I've seen so many of these so-called favorite teams hit the dust that I wait until my team has a 20-point lead before breathing easier. Coach Ray Kavanagh felt his team had a good week of practice and he expects to bring home a Northwest Conference victory tonight."

+If you don't see the results of your team's games in today's Times, remind your coach to call in the scores.

Prowlers Upset Lumberjacks 22-21

Statistics can be misleading. Take Friday's Thief River Falls vs. Bemidji high school football game, for example. On paper the Prowlers didn't have a passing attack, with just a single pass — an incompletion — showing up on the stat sheet. However, those figures don't include point-after-touchdown conversions and that's where quarterback Jeff Ulrich confined his throwing as he connected on a pair of two-point tosses to end Jim Thompson and halfback Bill Jury; plays that enabled the underdog Prowlers to shock the unbeaten Lumberjacks 22-21.

The Lincoln high school homecoming game, a wind-swept affair that was a nail-biter to the very end, ended a season-long five-game winning streak for the Lumberjacks who were rated No. 2 in the Associated Press Class A power poll. The loss also dropped the defending Northwest Athletic Conference champions into third place in the NWAC race behind Crookston (2-0 and Thief River Falls (1-0). The Prowlers climbed to 3-3 with the win and became instant conference title contenders.

"That's got to be one of the best," is the way a grinning Gene Jurgens rated the stunning upset. The Thief River Falls coach said, "We played a super game; one helluva ball game."

There were several big plays that developed throughout the emotional contest, but Jurgens said the biggest was Ulrich's second conversion pass, a simple flare toss to Jury who came out of the backfield and was left unattended on the left side after linebacker Steve Jorstad and defensive end Mitch Muzzy combined on a momentum-breaking interception and touchdown.

"That last two-point play was a big one," stressed Jurgens. "It was a good play." What it did was provide Thief River Falls with a 22-13 advantage, forcing Bemidji to come up with two scores in the game's final 8:44. And what made the play even more remarkable was the fact that Thief River Falls ran it with only ten men on the field.

Muzzy's 37-yard touchdown return with an interception of a John Herath pass was the real shocker, though. Bemidji had rebounded from a flat first half performance that produced a 14-0 deficit with an inspired second half effort that netted two touchdowns on the Lumberjacks' first two possessions. They clearly had the momentum.

However, on the third Bemidji possession of the second half after a 60-yard Tom Bjorkman punt with the wind, Jorstad blitzed and hit Herath just as the junior quarterback was throwing the football. It floated into Muzzy's hands at the 37 and he lumbered toward the end zone with two Lumberjacks hot on his trail. They caught him, but not until he crossed the goal line.

Bemidji answered quickly, moving 71 yards in nine plays to pull within 22-21. Brilliant tailback Dale Leonard, as the second man through, broke off runs of 14, 12 and 14 yards on the drive that ended with fullback Nelson Rotto plowing through the middle from the six with 5:40 remaining. Herath passed to flanker Craig Erhart for the conversion points.

It was tense from there on in. Thief River Falls picked up a key first down with 3:49 to go when wide receiver Brian Culkins went 15 yards to the Bemidji 49 on a third-and seven call, but the Prowlers gambled and lost when Jury came up six inches short on a fourth-and-two try for a first down at the Bemidji 39 with 1:48 on the clock.

"That was a big measurement," noted Jurgens. "It's a game of inches. We were going to punt, but the kids talked me out of it."

Bemidji, by using its three time-outs and the pass, got off ten breath-holding plays in final 128 seconds. The Lumberjacks reached the Thief River Falls 22 with 35 seconds left. But Herath threw two incompletions and Rotto was stopped at the 18 when Bemidji tried to sneak a running play through the middle on the final snap.

It was almost like two different games in the first and second half. Thief River Falls rushed for 136 yards in the first half en route to a startling two-touchdown lead, but scraped up just 56 yards and two first downs after intermission. Bemidji, on the other hand, accumulated 194 of its 278 yards in the second half after being held to just 84 yards and one first down in the first 24 minutes.

"We played one half of football," said dejected Bemidji coach Ray Kavanagh. He gave credit to Thief River Falls' fine performance, but said his team's first half problems were "mental."

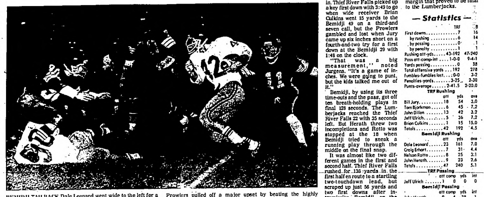
A roughing-the-kicker penalty assessed Bemidji led to the first Thief River Falls touchdown when the Prowlers were given the ball at the Bemidji 25 after punting from the 40. Jury scored from there on a sensational run up the middle. He bounced off a pair of would-be tacklers, somehow maintaining his balance on one leg after spinning off a solid blow by Erhart at the 15. The conversion pitch by Ulrich was thrown away, but the Prowlers had themselves a 6-0 lead with 6:23 remaining in the first half.

Three plays later Thief River Falls was in business again when the Prowlers were awarded possession at the Bemidji 34 after an Erhart fumble created a wild scramble for the bouncing ball. Herath was lying on the ball when the huge pile of players got up, but the officials gave the ball to the Prowlers amid howls from the Bemidji bench.

Six plays later Bjorkman, playing halfback in place of injured Dave Odegaard, cut off left tackle, turned the corner and sprinted 14 yards, just reaching the corner of the end zone with 2:09 left. Ulrich then came up with his first "unofficial" pass completion when he hit Thompson over the middle for the two points and a 14-0 cushion.

It took Bemidji just six plays and 2:26 to score in the second half after Erhart grabbed a bouncing squib kickoff at his 20 and dashed 40 yards into Thief River Falls territory. Leonard went through the middle from the two for the touchdown and Pat Erhart's stront conversion kick was perfect.

Thief River Falls failed to come up with a short yard on a fourth down quarterback sneak from the Bemidji 41 on the next series, and the fired-up Lumberjacks followed with a 12-play scoring drive that ended with Herath passing 10 yards to end Tony Murphy who stood between three Thief River Falls defenders in the end zone with 2:03 left in the third quarter. But this time Pat Erhart's kick into the wind was nothing more than a pop-up that fell far short of the crossbar, leaving a one-point margin that proved to be fatal to the Lumberjacks.



BEMIDJI TAILBACK Dale Leonard went wide to the left for a nine-yard gain before Thief River Falls defenders Brian Culkins (90), Dan Cullen (70) and Jeff Ulrich (11) closed in for the tackle in the second quarter of Friday's high school football game. Leonard was superb in a 151-yard rushing performance, but the Prowlers pulled off a major upset by beating the highly regarded Lumberjacks 22-21 in the 1979 Lincoln high school homecoming game. The outcome knocked Bemidji, ranked No. 2 in the Associated Press Class A power poll, out of the unbeaten ranks and evened Thief River Falls' record at 3-3.

Skippers Become Title Threat With 20-14 Win Over Scots

Middle River became an honest-to-goodness North Tri County Conference title threat Friday afternoon with an attention-grabbing 20-14 victory over highly regarded McIntosh-Winger in a nine-man high school football game played at Middle River.

"It was a big day for us," acknowledged Middle River coach Eldon Sparby whose youthful Skippers raised their record to 5-1 at the expense of the previously unbeaten Scots. "The kids played a real good defensive game," he explained. "We altered our defense to mess up their blocking and it worked. We switched it again in the second half and kept them off balance."

Trailing 14-8 in the third quarter, Middle River tied things when DelRay Ness hit Scott McKeever with an 18-yard touchdown pass.

Things then took a big turn in the Skippers' favor when the ensuing kickoff into a stiff wind ended up being blown right back to Middle River, with Mike Peterson recovering the unusual and uncalled onside kick.

Middle River moved into score the game-winning touchdown as Monty Peterson reached the end zone from three.

An insurance touchdown scored by the Skippers in the final four minutes was called back because of a penalty, but McIntosh-Winger did not threaten at the end.

"The difference was the wind," explained Sparby. "There was no kicking game at all." Indeed, Sparby passed up several punting situations because of the wind and the Skippers, while trying three punts, had two blocked and got off a very short kick on the third try.

It was the fifth straight win for the Skippers who lost their season opener to defending North Tri County Conference champion Gonvick 22-6. McIntosh-Winger was considered the Bulldogs' top title threat this fall — until Friday.

"We're playing pretty good ball right now," confirmed Sparby. "I wish we were playing them (Gonvick) now. Oklee (Oct. 16) is obviously the big one now, but first we have to get by Grygla Friday."

Semanko, Dicken Dragon Teammates

Thief River Falls products Don Dicken and Murray Semanko are contributing members to the latest football success story at Moorhead State University this fall, according to Larry Scott, MSU sports information director.

Both Dicken, a 6-2, 224-pound junior defensive tackle, and Semanko, a 5-9, 184-pound junior tight end, have been used in reserve roles so far.

A service veteran, Dicken has been bothered by assorted injuries this fall after challenging for a starting spot during spring practice.

A 1973 graduate of Lincoln high school, Dicken competed in football, basketball and track in high school and was a two-year football regular. He was named to the NWAC all-conference team as a senior.

Semanko participated in football, basketball and track in high school and won special citations in track and basketball.

Both Dicken and Semanko also played at Northland community college. Semanko was named the most valuable player at Northland last fall.

Dicken plans a major in criminal justice at Moorhead State while Semanko is pursuing a degree in industrial illustration.

Gonvick 30
Plummer 14

Unbeaten North Tri County Conference leader Gonvick rolled up a 27-0 halftime lead and coasted to a 30-14 win over visiting Plummer Friday afternoon.

Rock Hopperstad broke lose on a 40-yard touchdown run on the first offensive series of the game as the Bulldogs quickly began their quest for victory number six. Hopperstad also closed out the Gonvick scoring with a 12-yard third quarter field goal.

"They're just a better football team than we are," acknowledged Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "Our line got beat. We just couldn't handle them."

Alan Mattison did all the Plummer scoring in the fourth quarter, getting into the end zone from the four and three-yard lines and adding a two-point conversion.

Brantl was grateful to Gonvick coach Ron Johnson who substituted freely in the second half. "Mr. Johnson was very kind. He could have rolled up the score if he wanted to," said Brantl.

The Cardinals racked up 198 yards on the ground, but much of that was against Gonvick reserves. Blair Gustafson led the ground attack with 88 yards and Mattison had 78.

Plummer, 1-5, will host Goodridge Friday.

LHS Sophomore Team Defeats Red River 24-14

Coaches said it was an "excellent" performance Thursday as Thief River Falls defeated Grand Forks Red River 24-14 in a sophomore high school football game played here.

An 8-0 first quarter Red River lead disappeared when touchdowns by Dan Odegaard and Jeff Imgrund gave Thief River Falls a 12-8 halftime edge. Odegaard capped a long drive with a nine-yard touchdown run and Imgrund broke free on a 40-yard reverse, reaching the end zone with just three seconds on the clock.

Thief River Falls added two second half touchdowns as a defensive tackle Mark Harder stepped in front of a Red River screen pass over the middle and returned the interception 40 yards for a score and Odegaard sprinted 20 yards up the middle in the final minute.

It was the third win in three starts for the Thief River Falls sophomores who will play a 4 p.m. game at Crookston Thursday. Thief River Falls junior varsity, 0-2, will be at Grand Forks Central tonight (Monday).

Freshmen Lose To South By 22-0 Margin

South junior high school of Grand Forks shut out injury-plagued Thief River Falls 22-0 Thursday in a freshman football game played on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

The loss was the fifth straight setback for the Thief River Falls freshmen who will close out the 1979 season with road games Thursday at Grand Forks Valley junior high and Tues., Oct. 16, at Crookston. Both games start at 4 p.m.

FRESHMAN TAILBACK Mike Cowart of Northland community college broke loose on a 26-yard run on this play as the Itasca defense gave chase in the fourth quarter of Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division football game played here. Jim Bailey (25) and Russ Moran (39) tried to catch Cowart in the secondary. Cowart enjoyed a banner afternoon by rushing for 193 yards, but the Northmen lost their 1979 homecoming game 14-13.

Northland Defense Fails In 14-13 Loss To Itasca

A Northland defense that hadn't given up a touchdown in three games failed to protect a 13-point lead Saturday and the Northmen lost a 14-13 community college football game to Itasca on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Northland's much maligned offense came up with its biggest output of the 1979 season, but the highly acclaimed defense did not match its past success and the Northmen watched their two-game mini winning streak come to an end with the homecoming loss that dropped them to 2-3 in the MJCAA Northern Division.

"They moved the ball a lot better against us than we thought they would," confessed Northland coach Irv Smith. "They moved the ball with that outside veer in the second half and that was the ball game. We didn't defend it very well."

What it really amounted to was a dual track meet between Northland freshman Mike Cowart and Itasca sophomore Wayne Bohn. Those two runningbacks combined for 74 carries, 309 yards and three touchdowns. Cowart came out a winner in the head-to-head competition with an outstanding 193-yard day. Northland's one-back offense fed the ball to Cowart 39 times out of 47 running plays, a total that included a scramble, a fumble-recovery and a sack by quarterback Tony Smith. Bohn finished with 116 yards in 35 carries, but the Vikings rattled off 70 running plays.

A new offensive wrinkle for the Northmen — the I formation — paid immediate dividends when Cowart burst through the middle and sprinted 48 yards for a touchdown on the game's fifth play. But on a play that ultimately decided the issue, Randy Ellis of the Vikings broke through to block Jeff Gobell's extra point kick.

Lest anyone think Northland's defense had a complete breakdown, it should be pointed out that the Northmen did have a few bright spots as they held Blain Senn to no gain on a fourth-and-one quarterback sneak from the Northland 14 on Itasca's first possession, and then held off the Vikings at the Northland 19 on their second trip downfield as Dave Salminen missed a 39-yard field goal atteptm.

Northland punted the ball away on the ensuing possession, but not for long because officials ruled that a Duane Kjono punt, which took a crazy backward bounce, was touched by return man Darryl Meyer and subsequently recovered by the Northman at the Itasca 27. Meyer argued that he never touched the ball.

Six plays later a hard Cowart charge up the middle from the eight gave the Northmen at two-touchdown advantage. This time Gobell split the uprights for a 13-0 lead with 2:56 gone in the second quarter.

"Northland surprised us with that I," admitted Itasca coach Dave Hrouda. "We hadn't expected that. That No. 3 (Cowart) is a hard runner."

Itasca needed 18 plays to cover 66 yards, but the time-consuming drive after the Northland kickoff led to the Vikings' first touchdown, a seven-yard option run off the left side by Senn, one of eight Cass Lake ball players on the Itasca squad. Salminen's placement was perfect and it was a 13-7 game with 5:24 remaining in the first half.

Kjono, who had three 40 yarders punting with the wind in the second quarter, got off just a 16-yarder into the breeze in the third period to set Itasca up at the Northland 38.

The Vikings scored in eight plays. Senn kept the option for a 13-yard carry off the right side to the Northland one and Bohn, one of those Cass Lakers dived through the middle with 8:25 on the clock. Salminen broke the tie with the extra point kick.

Hrouda was pleased with his team's comeback, but he wasn't happy with the way they got themselves in the hole in the first place. "We didn't play very well at the beginning," he noted. "We were flat. Northland did a heck of a job taking out outside running game away from us at the start, but at halftime we made some adjustments and they worked."

Northland threatened at the end. Beginning at their own 24 following a punt, the Northmen gobbled up 65 yards in six plays to reach the Itasca 11. Tony Smith, starting his first game since the season

Game Birds Are Using Unmowed Roadside Cover

Farmers who usually take advantage of the free hay crop on roadsides, but didn't this year, may notice more ring-neck pheasants around the area.

Pheasants, Hungarian partridge and many other game birds nest and rear their young on grasslands. In heavily agricultural areas, these ground-nesters use roadsides.

"Our statewide pheasant population has declined nearly 90 per cent since the 1950s," says Jim Kitts, University of Minnesota extension wildlife specialist. "What was grassland or small grain fields back then is now predominantly planted to row crops. That makes the roadside virtually our last hope for the ring-neck, the Hun and many other species."

That last hope could be a strong one if what happened this year becomes a permanent trend. A survey of two important game bird and agricultural counties showed an unusually low rate of roadside mowing.

Ground-nesters need to be undisturbed until the end of July in order to produce their young. A July, 1979, survey of Lincoln and Lyon county roadsides showed that only about 26 per cent of these areas had been mowed for hay. Kitts estimates that in a "normal" year, about 40-50 per cent would have been harvested.

What made this year abnormal? Probably a combination of wet, cold weather and the fuel crisis.

"Fuel prices jumped sky-high, adding to the cost of cutting that grass," he says. "The weather delayed planting, so many farmers did not have time to harvest the roadsides when the grass was at its best forage quality."

Wildlife surveys show an increase in pheasant populations in west central Minnesota this year, but Kitts is not ready to give low mowing rates the credit. "We can't expect immediate results. But if there is a trend toward less early summer mowing, we will see benefits to wildlife populations in a few years."

Studies conducted by researchers throughout the midwest show that at least 20 per cent of pheasant chicks are reared on roadsides. Minnesota natural resource experts estimate this roadside production to be 40-50 per cent of the total crop in this state. "With less of the before-August hay harvesting, the percentage of chicks, and the total population, could be even higher," Kitts says.

Waterfowl are also somewhat dependent on roadsides. North Dakota researchers found eight duck nests per mile along unmowed sections of an interstate highway.

An agricultural advantage of undisturbed roadsides could be better weed control. Kitts says that with minimal mowing, a sod of native prairie grasses will usually develop.

"Noxious weeds are literally crowded out by these prairie grasses," he explains. "Most noxious weeds are not native and cannot compete in undisturbed grasslands."

Native grasses also provide a source of high quality hay, which could be used as a reserve in drought years and other times of hay shortage. The crop is only available after July, however, insuring habitat for ground-nesters.

"Our roadsides must be considered a natural resource to be used wisely," Kitts says. "Farmers and others who enjoy seeing wildlife or benefit from a good hunting season may want to stop mowing roadsides from April 1 through July 20."

ITASCA QUARTERBACK Blain Senn stepped out of the grasp of a would-be Northland tackler and scored on an option run from the three-yard line in the second quarter of Saturday's community college football game played in Thief River Falls. Northland's Jim McCue (16) wasn't able to reach Senn on the play. The Vikings bounced back from a 13-0 deficit to beat the Northmen 14-13.

Lincoln Tennis Team Begins Tournament Matches Today

Post-season play was scheduled to begin today (Monday) for the girls on the Lincoln high school tennis team who were scheduled to face Moorhead in a 2 p.m. opening round match of the 1979 North Half Region 8AA tournament at Detroit Lakes.

Winner of the Prowlers-Spuds match was to meet Detroit Lakes at 4 this afternoon on the Lakers' courts.

Rest of today's North Half Region 8AA competition was scheduled to be played at Crookston where Bemidji faced East Grand Forks at 2 p.m. and the winner met Crookston at 4.

Today's survivors will square off in the North Half Region 8AA championship match Tuesday at 4 p.m. at a neutral site.

Thief River Falls' post-season line-up was expected to have junior Pam Wassink at number one singles; sophomore Nancy Swanson, number two singles; junior Cindy Liden, number three singles; senior Patty Langlie and seventh grader Michelle Olson, number one doubles; junior Leslie Williamson and sophomore Marsha Erickson, number two doubles.

That line-up closed out the 1979 regular season Thursday in a triangular meet at Moorhead where a strong Staples team came up with a perfect 10-point day, followed by the Prowlers with three and Moorhead two.

Breaking down three triangulars into their dual meet scores, Thief River Falls finished the season with a 6-8 overall record, a near .500 finish expected by coach Whitey Olson.

"I can think of only one match (EGF) that we lost when we should have won," explained Olson. "Other than that match we were where we should have been with the inexperienced team we had at the start of the year."

North Half Region 8AA individual tournament will be played Friday at the Southgate indoor facilities in Fargo.

Lund Sets Record . . .

Bruins Defeat Prowlers 95-77

Fargo South won nine of 11 events Thursday in a 95-77 high school swimming meet victory over Thief River Falls in the Bruins' pool.

Thief River Falls performances generally did not match the strong showing the Prowlers made in an 87-85 loss to a strong Moorhead team two days earlier. However, Brenda Lund, who missed the Moorhead meet because of illness, was outstanding for the Prowlers as he set a new Fargo South pool record with a 226.6-point diving performance. In the process, Lund beat the Bruins' Jane Vanyo, one of North Dakota's top divers.

Only other Thief River Falls win was a 2:13.0 clocking in the 200-yard freestyle by Kathy Dillon.

Jamie Huguelet (200 I.M., 100 breaststroke) and Trish Cole (50 freestyle, 100 freestyle) were double winners for the Bruins. They also swam on the South 200-yard medley relay.

Lincoln Second At Fergus Falls

Thief River Falls swimmers came up with four first place finishes — twice as many as anybody else — but had to settle for second place Saturday in the Otter invitational high school swimming meet at Fergus Falls.

Moorhead won the day-long event with 302 points, followed by Thief River Falls 271, Bismarck 217, Fergus Falls 167, Bismarck Century 129 and Montevideo 107.

"We swam very well," said Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "I'm not at all unhappy. It was a good meet. We had a lot of good performances from our kids."

Thief River Falls winners included the 200-yard medley relay unit of Franki Kuyath, Joan Glauque, Betsie Hallstrom and Shari McGann in 2:05.5; Hallstrom in the 50-yard freestyle in 26.8; Kuyath in the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:19.0; and Brenda Lund in the diving competition.

Breaststroke and diving were Thief River Falls strong suits. The Prowlers went 1-2-3 in the breaststroke where Johanna Desrocher and Mary Ness finished behind Kuyath, and went 1-3-4 in diving where Lisa Desrocher and Lori Swanson trailed Lund and Bismarck Century's Shelly Beauclair.

Fergus Falls and Moorhead came up with two wins each, with the Otters' Barb Hefte becoming the meet's only individual double winner with top times in the 100 and 200-yard freestyle races. Bismarck, Montevideo and Bismarck Century all won one race.

Thief River Falls will be involved in another invitational meet saturday when the Prowlers travel to Brainerd for a multiple team event that begins at 12 noon.

ONE OF THREE fourth down Thief River Falls gambles during Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference football game against Bemidji produced a 13-yard first down sweep around the left side by quarterback Jeff Ulrich on this first quarter play. Ulrich reached the Bemidji 27-yard line before being brought down by the Lumberjacks' Dale Leonard (42). The Prowlers stunned the defending NWAC champion Lumberjacks 22-21 for a perfect 1979 homecoming.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE linebacker Albert Padron (32) came up to make the stop on Itasca halfback Wayne Bohn (20) at the Northland eight-yard line in the third quarter Saturday. Bohn picked up eight yards on the play. The Vikings from Grand Rapids defeated the Northmen from Thief River Falls 14-13 in the MJCAA Northern Division football game played here.

President Carter Supports 1979 National Hunting, Fishing Day

In an unprecedented show of support for the nation's sportsmen and conservationists, President Carter has recently signed two White House documents supporting a national hunting and fishing day in recognition of the sportsman's role in conservation.

After having earlier signed a White House statement in support of national hunting and fishing day, the president elected to further recognize the day by officially proclaiming Saturday, September 22, 1979, and the fourth Saturday of September in succeeding years, as national hunting and fishing day. This move has added significance in that a president will normally "proclaim" a special day only after it has been approved and requested by Congress. The White House cited the long and successful history of the program as one reason for the special recognition.

In his official statement, the president said, "Hunters and fishermen have formed the foundation of practical conservation work in our country. Their efforts have resulted in the preservation of thousands of acres of woods and wetlands and the improvement of countless lakes, streams and waterways. To date, our nation's sportsmen have contributed more than $5 billion for conservation, through license fees and special taxes on their equipment. Those funds have paid for land acquisitions, research and management of habitat for fish and wildlife."

An occasional quail hunter himself, President Carter summed up the purpose of a national hunting and fishing day in saying, "In recognition of the historic role our nation's public-minded sportsmen have played in conservation, it is most fitting to designate a special national hunting and fishing day on Saturday, September 22, 1979. On this day throughout the country, sportsmen will organize activities that will further the conservation effort on local, state and national levels. I commend the leadership of America's fifty million sportsmen and call upon all Americans to join with hunters and fishermen to ensure the wise use and protection of our nation's precious natural resources."

September 22, 1979, will mark the eighth annual observance of national hunting and fishing day. Since the first observance in 1972, the day has grown steadily in its size and impact. Millions of Americans now participate in an estimated 2,500 separate NHF day activities at sportsmen's clubs, schools, shopping centers and wildlife management areas each year.

Northmen Lose To Itasca 14-13

opener, threw a strike to Ray Barnett that covered 45 yards and Cowart stepped through the right side on a 14-yard spring on the very next play that he very nearly broke all the way before begin tripped up at the 15. Faced with a fourth-and-six situation from the 11, Northland coaches opted for a Luis Delahoz field goal attempt from the 18. But the sidewinder attept was very low and very short with 5:07 left.

Irv Smith defended the play selection at the end even though it looked disastrous on the field. "That's well within his range," he said. "He kicks those all the time in practice."

Northland finished with 255 yards on offense, most of course, from Cowart. "Cowart is a strong kid," acknowledged Smith who also gave credit to the offensive line, subject of criticism in the past. "Our offensive line played well today. We just couldn't stop their outside veer on defense."

Northland will be at Brainerd Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game. Itasca, 3-2 in MJCAA play, will break from league competition this week to face the Bemidji State University junior varsity

In Memoriam

In memory of Stuart's 22nd birthday, who passed away April 19, 1979 of viral and bacterial pneumonia.

Love is the word for expressing feelings, and feelings like love have special meanings.
I love people because I am loved.
That's how I express my feelings.
By using the wonderful word of love.
Let the loved be loved and
Those who never love — shall never be loved.
This is one verse taken from Stuart's many writings of poetry.
Missed by all!

LEGAL NOTICE

October 8, 1979
Notice of Location
& Design Approval

Notice is hereby given that on October 2, 1979 the Minnesota Department of Transportation Division of Field Operations, received approval from the Federal Highway Administration of the location and design features for the upgrading of Trunk Highway 32 from St. Hilaire to Thief River Falls in Pennington County.

This proposal calls for the widening of the existing deficient roadway by providing two 12 foot driving lanes and 10 foot bituminous shoulders. Bituminous overlays will be provided in the urban areas of St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. Additional right-of-way will be required on each side of the roadway in the rural areas to provide the necessary slope flattening and reconstruction of the ditches for drainage purposes.

TOTAL OF HIGHWAY REVENUE SOURCES AND HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION COST INDEX FOR MINNESOTA 1967—1981

COMMISSIONER RICHARD BRAUN of the Minnesota department of transportation spoke to a group of citizens concerned with Minnesota highways Tuesday evening at the Minnesota wheat growers council building near Red Lake Falls. The commissioner re-emphasized problems of the department in declining revenues and increasing costs, resulting in severe curtailment of scheduled projects. Several suggestions were presented as possibilities to increase funding, including increases in gas tax and motor vehicle registration fees, transfer of funds from general revenue, elimination of sales tax exemption on gasoline sales, divert the sales tax on motor vehicle sales from general revenue into highways or sell bonds.

Highway Situation Again Reviewed By Commissioner

Commissioner Richard Braun of the Minnesota department of transportation re-stated the department's tale of woe Tuesday to concerned listeners at a meeting held at the Minnesota wheat council offices in Red Lake Falls.

Among the listeners — and later among the discussion participants — were four state legislators: Sen. Marvin Hanson, Hallock; Sen. Roger Moe, Ada; Rep. Myron Nysether, Ross; and Rep. Willis Eken, Twin Valley. Chairing the meeting was Bob Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc.

Commissioner Braun outlined the funding difficulties of the department which have resulted in cancellation of a number of highway projects that had been programmed for the near future. Two major contributing factors leading to the financial crush are the increase of 7 to 14 per cent in construction costs and reduction in revenue from gas tax due to fewer gallons of gas being sold.

Braun said the average decrease in fuel consumption for the past three months was 7.3 per cent. Approximately 60 per cent of the department's state revenue has come from the gas tax of nine cents per gallon.

The commissioner pointed out that the investment in Minnesota roads now totals $10 billion and that additional funding is necessary to provide even minimum protection of that investment. He said that $900 million in work remains to be done on the Interstates in Minnesota with the state needing $90 million for its 10 per cent cost

Council Denies Home For Battered Women Location

Following an hour of debate to resolve the recommendation by the planning commission to deny the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance request for a special use permit for a home for battered women at 201 S. Crocker Ave., Thief River Falls city council members voted to deny the request for the home at the selected site.

Roll call vote was needed to determine final action on the recommendation. Alderman Bill Penning introduced a resolution to accept the planning commission recommendation to deny the home at its present site. The resolution, seconded by alderman Ambrose Wysoski, included seven "yes" notes, and one "no" vote cast by Mayor Bob Carlson, which finalized the decision.

Both opponents and proponents were allotted time to speak out on the issue, with those opposing the site using only a minimum amount of their time, and those proposing the issue extending their time limit. Various neighborhood residents spoke out in favor of the planning commission's recommendation, saying that, "we are not against the idea that the home is needed, but we are opposed to placing it at the requested site."

Others said that there would be the problems of parking, commotion and noise. One resident, agreeing that a home was needed but that it should not be located at the Crocker site, argued that the problems of drinking and drugs could arise, both of which could have an influence on other children in the neighborhood.

"It would add confusion," Mrs. Gerald Young said. "The house is not large enough to accommodate all the battered women."

Julie Chase, a member of the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance board, and a speaker for the proposition to locate the home at 201 S. Crocker Ave., stated that all aspects of pros and cons for the home should be examined carefully. She then informed council members of the petitions that had been previously signed in favor or against the home at its designated site. It was discovered that five people had signed both petitions, while others were not in the immediate 350 feet of the site (the area directly concerned with the home's location at 201 Crocker av. S.)

Mrs. Donald Laidley, a resident living across from the house in question, stated that, because the house is a duplex, it could accommodate two families, thus probably four cars would need parking space — perhaps more cars than if the house was used for a home for battered women.

"The alliance," she said, "would be compelled to furnish parking for residents if the home became one for battered women."

She referred to a home for

Trapeze Artist's Life Not The Greatest Of Ease

CAROL, "THE SATIN DOLL," a trapeze artist who was featured in the Jose Cole's circus in the Thief River Falls arena at two shows Sunday afternoon, spends a great portion of her time 32 to 35 feet in the air during performances.

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

She lives in a travel trailer, works for 70 days and gets four or five days off, sews in her spare time, and is usually found 32 to 35 feet in the air when performing. Who is she?

Her chosen name is Carol "The Satin Doll," but her family knows her as Carol Wainwright or "mom." Carol is a trapeze artist who performed in the Jose Cole's circus in the Thief River Falls sports arena at two showings Sunday afternoon. She chose the name, "The Satin Doll" because she likes the music, she said.

Carol, who has been with circuses and "on the road" since 1964, is an international performer. She began her career doing trampoline acts and trapeze acts in fairs and shrine circuses throughout the United States. She also appeared in various dining date acts, where she performed for clubs and organizations.

Carol has performed in shrine circuses in almost every state but Alaska, she said. She and her family just completed a year tour with the Harlem Globe-trotters, in which they traveled through 24 states from December to April, appearing in such places as Texas, Arizona, Mexico, Washington, D.C., Pittsburgh and other cities in Pennsylvania, Kansas, Colorado, Utah and California.

"During that four-month tour we had eight days off," she said.

They also traveled to Europe for three months during the tour, she said. Normal hours were to work for 70 days with four or five days off, she said.

"There is never a day to relax the body no matter how tired you are," she said. "And trapeze work means a lot of wear and tear on the hands but you have to keep performing no matter how sore your hands are."

There are complications sometimes, too, she said.

"We missed Denver completely on that tour because of a bad snow storm that wouldn't let us travel," she said. "But people are good about things like that. They understand."

The Globe-trotters were flown to their destinations, she said, but "the Wainwrights carry and set up their own trampoline on their tours. They even purchased a broken-down trampoline in Europe and restored it to use in their acts."

"The Globe-trotters' tour was a hard one," she said. "It was scary, too, to hear that many people applaud or laugh. Yet, it was stimulating."

One of the most difficult things of her career is the depression that follows a full day of performances, she said.

"You wake up, and there is nothing to do. But you learn to handle that."

Europe was one of her favorite sites to visit, according to the young trapeze artist. It was different to see how the people there live, she said. The Wainwrights were there for three months, from April to June, 1979. During most of the family's acts today, they perform together on a trampoline, besides Carol's regular trapeze act. Their son, Shane, now 18, usually acts as the clown in their act. So, while his mother and father do various stunts, he appears in a clown's suit to make the audience laugh. He'll come before the audience dressed in a black hat and patched jacket, and proceed to fall flat on the floor, while his parents stare at him in amazement. But in Europe, the comedian didn't wear the clown suit, Carol said.

"That's one way the people are different between here

CAROL WAINWRIGHT, or Carol "The Satin Doll" as she is known in her circus act, spends a large portion of her non-performing time with her husband and son in a travel trailer — their second home. The family's permanent home is in Bloomington, Ill., although they seldom get to spend time there. Carol and her family performed in the Jose Cole's circus at the Thief River Falls sports arena Sunday afternoon.

Shawn Oen-Steve Muzzy Vows Spoken at Trinity

Trinity Lutheran church was the scene of the recent wedding of Miss Shuan Oen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Oen of Thief River Falls, and Steven Muzzy, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Erwin Muzzy, also of Thief River Falls.

Rev. J. Hovland officiated at the double ring ceremony. Vocal selections were provided by Steve Zachar, who sang, "Wedding Song," and the "Lord's Prayer," and Kathy Sheller, who sang, "Evergreen."

Forming the chancel setting for the evening ceremony were candelabra and baskets of mixed flowers on either side of the altar. Two vases of peach carnations and white gladioli graced the alter and bows marked the pews along the center aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white silesta knit gown with Valenciennes lace at the Victorian neckline, on the cumberbund styled-waistline and on the fitted cuffs of the long, full sleeves. Her princess camp and walking length veil were trimmed with matching lace and seed pearls. She carried a Rosemary bouquet of fresh peach Sonia roses, babies' breath and English ivy. Her Black Hills gold earrings were from a set which included a ring and necklace, her gift from the groom.

The bride's personal attendant was Mrs. Gary Heaton, a friend.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Jerry (Marcie) Sandahl, a friend of the couple. Bridesmaids were Karen Muzzy, Grand Forks, N.D., Shari Muzzy, Argyle, sisters of the groom, and Alison Moore, Boise, Idaho, a cousin of the bride. They wore empire fashion spaghetti strapped, A-line gown os peach qiana topped by loose fitting, long-sleeved jackets of a matching floral print. To accent their attire, they wore sheer white hats with peach ribbon, and they carried colonial bouquets of peach silk roses, white silk carnations, babies' breath and greenery with peach and white ribbon streamers. Their gold and pearl necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Serving as flower girl was Keri Knutsen, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Knutsen of Thief River Falls. Her dress of matching peach qiana was styled, with layered bell sleeves, a set-in waistline and a short gathered skirt trimmed with white lace. She carried a Princess Anne styled basket of silk peach roses and white carnations with babies' breath and white streamers. Her gold butterfly necklace was a gift from the bride.

The rings were carried on a heart pillow by Chris Oen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Oen, Argyle. He wore a tan three-piece suit with a white shirt and a peach Sonia rose boutonniere. His ID bracelet was a gift from the groom.

The groom was attired in a mint-green tuxedo with tails and cummerbund, a white shirt and a Sonia rose boutonniere. His pocket watch was a gift from the bride.

Best man was Dan Reed, a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Norman Muzzy, Waterloo, Iowa, a brother of the groom, and Spencer and Scott Oen, brothers of the bride. They wore matching mint green dinner jackets and trousers with peek-a-boo boutonnieres featuring white silk carnations centered with a peach rose. Ushers were Jerry, Kert and Darrel Muzzy, cousins of the groom, and Rick Kezar, a friend. They and the fathers wore mint green dinner jackets, dark green vests and trousers and white silk carnation boutonnieres. Their engraved key chains were gifts from the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a pink qiana floor-length gown with sheer, long sleeves topped by a sleeveless, floor-length lace coat. The mother of the groom wore a sleeveless, mint-green qiana floor-length gown with a matching long-sleeved mid-length jacket. Their corsages were of white roses and babies breath.

Special guests were Mrs. N.E. Muzzy, Thief River Falls and Mrs. Bessie Madison, Blackduck, grandmothers of the groom.

Serving as host and hostess at the reception and dance that followed were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Muzzy, uncle and aunt of the groom. Approximately 300 guests attended the reception held in the church parlors. At the guest book was Janice Kotok, Middle River, friend of the couple.

The serving table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake decorated with peach roses and topped with a triple wedding bell ornament. At the base was a miniature bride and groom. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Don Rupprecht and was cut and served by Mrs. Jesse Bakke, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Lester Muzzy, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Anthony Mallunich, a friend of the bride. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Harry Oen, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Jim Muzzy, aunt of the groom.

At the gift table were Pam Prichard, a friend of the bride, and Mrs. Norman Muzzy, Waterloo, Iowa, sister-in-law of the groom. Laurie Haycraft served the punch, Kimberly Moen, Grand Forks, distributed the rice packets, and Carl and Jane Regar of Williamsville, N.Y., and Dorothy Moore, Boise, Idaho, were in charge of the tables. All are cousins of the bride. Others assisting with the baking and preparations for the wedding were Mrs. Dennis Hallstrom, Mrs. Dean Syverson and Mrs. Senora Skay.

The groom's parents hosted the lunch served at the wedding dance held at the Thief River Falls Country club.

Wilson-Srnsky Vows Spoken at St. Hilaire

Maria L. Wilson and Michael R. Srnsky exchanged marriage vows recently at the Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Diane M. Wilson of Grand Rapids. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Srnsky, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Lloyd Heroff officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by about 100 relatives and friends. Forming the chancel setting were arrangements of carnations, mums and gladioli in yellow, blue and green. Matching ribbon bows with greenery marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle Daryl Beckenbach of Anoka, was attired in a gown of white chiffon over satin. Lace trimmed the sheer sleeves and edged the belled cuffs and gracefully flared skirt that flowed into a chapel-length train. A headpiece of coordinating lace held her triple tiered veil of bridal illusion, edged with lace. She carried a silk bouquet featuring white roses, daisies and babies' breath, accented with carnations tipped in blue, yellow and green.

Maid of honor was a friend of the bride, Renee Tanner of Owatonna, and formerly of Grand Rapids. She wore a yellow V-necked gown with a full, flared skirt, complemented by a yellow hat with matching ribbon and flower. She carried a silk bouquet of yellow-tipped carnations, white daisies and babies breath with yellow ribbon streamers.

Wearing similar attire, only in blue and green, respectively, were the bridesmaids, Jackie Root and Anita Burns of Grand Rapids, friends of the bride.

Bonnie and Della Srnsky were the bride's personal attendants.

Flower girl was Jennifer Wilson, Grand Rapids, a sister of the bride. She wore a gown of floral print in yellow, blue and green and carried a basket of yellow silk rosebuds with white daisies. The rings were carried by Darrin Beckenbach of Anoka, a cousin of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a tax tuxedo with a white silk carnation boutonniere centered with a yellow rose.

Best man was Verner Wold, Thief River Falls, a friend of the groom. Steve Appel, Thief River Falls, and Tim Pahlen, Red Lake Falls, friends of the groom, were groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Dave Srnsky, Grand Forks, and Dennis Srnsky, Thief River Falls, brothers of the groom. They wore dark brown tuxedos with silk carnation boutonnieres, tip-dyed to match the colors of the bridesmaids' gowns.

The mother of the bride wore a blue floor-length gown with a corsage of light blue silk roses. The mother of the groom was attired in a green floor-length gown with a matching rose corsage.

A reception followed with Tom and Sandy Ratliff as host and hostess. Sandy Hagen registered the guests, Jodi Beckenbach served the punch, Robin Beckenbach distributed the thank-you scrolls, Debbie Helm and Marilyn Dahl arranged the gifts, and Angie Steiger and Sonia Wold served as waitresses.

The serving table was centered with a three-tiered, marble wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with yellow roses and white daisies. At the base was a fountain with blue water. The cake was cut and served by Linda Torgerson and Linda Srnsky. Dorothy Harrington and Judy Beckenbach poured the coffee.

Following a wedding trip to the Iron Range and Fort Francis, Canada, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls, where both are employed. The bride, a graduate of the Grand Rapids senior high school and a 1979 graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, is employed by First Federal Savings and Loan. The groom, who served in the U.S. Army, is employed by Hydra-Mac, Inc.

Local Jaycees, Chapter Earn State Awards

Two Thief River Falls Jaycees received individual awards and two projects were recognized as exceptional in the state during the Minnesota Jaycees fall all-state convention held recently in Duluth convention center.

Gary Hamness, program manager for the north region of the Minnesota Jaycees, received a presidential medallion from state president Jim Jurek, one of the most prestigious awards which can be given to an individual for chapter, district, regional or state projects.

John V. Anderson, vice president for community development in the Thief River Falls chapter, was selected as outstanding vice president in community development for the north region, comprised of about 35 Jaycee chapters in northwestern Minnesota. Projects under Anderson's responsibility during the past summer included sandbox fill, painting of the occupational development center, horse show, Aquacade and demolition derby.

"Both Gary and John are excellent people to represent our chapter as community leaders," stated president Randy Adamson about the award recipients. "Both are examples of the quality leadership that Jaycees can produce by those individuals who seek an active role in their community."

A first place state award was presented to the Thief River Falls chapter for work by the members in painting the interior of the occupational development center. A second place state award was made by president Jurek for the sandbox fill project.

The fall all-state is the first of three state conventions held by the organization throughout the year. Training during the two and one-half day event included forums on public relations, chapter newsletters, individual development programming, shooter education programs, awards preparation training, community development programming and others. Among the approximately 2,000 attending were Tim Wang, Gerry Paulson, Will Essig, Gary Hamness and Randy Adamson of Thief River Falls.

Minn. Project Focuses On Farm Future

Future of American farmers is the focus of a cooperative effort by two Minnesota organizations.

Minnesota project, a public policy research and community development organization, and the Minnesota Farmers union, an organization of 24,000 farmers, have established the farm structure project. The project, which began operation in May, is designed primarily to respond to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland's call for a national dialogue on farm structure and government farm programs.

In March, Bergland made what many consider the most important speech made by any secretary of agriculture since the "New Deal". He said that, "I, for one, do not want to see an America where a handful of giant operators own, manage and control the entire food production system, yet that is where we are headed, if we don't act now."

As a result Bergland has asked the nation to discuss whether or not the farm policy decisions made by government and the private sector are in the best long-term interests of agriculture and the country.

The farm structure project, a one year effort, is responding by involving farmers in a series of focus-group research discussions on farm policies and by drawing up recommendations for changes in state and national agricultural policy.

The two sponsoring organizations have employed Gene Wenstrom, a farmer from Elbow Lake, as project director. Wenstrom raises hogs, cattle and grain, and is a former state representative.

"We're taking this project directly to farmers," Wenstrom said. "We are involving farmers in every age, income and geographic grouping we can to discuss not just the problems in farming, but we are challenging them to help us come up with realistic solutions."

Cy Carpenter, president of the Minnesota Farmers union, and Mark Dayton, president of The Minnesota project, said that they are cooperating to utilize expertise of each organization, research capabilities of the Minnesota project, and the farm policy experience of the Farmers union.

UM Regents Convene Oct. 11 At Crookston

Several agenda items on the docket of the University of Minnesota board of regents will pertain directly to the Crookston campus (UMC) when the regents and central administration convene their monthly meeting at UMC on Thursday and Friday, October 11 and 12. It will mark the first time regents have returned for a formal meeting in Crookston since September of 1975.

The four standing committees of the board will hold discussions on Thursday afternoon. Two of these sessions will center on topics relevant to UMC. The educational policy and long-range planning committee, meeting at 3:15 p.m. in the Selvig hall conference room, will hear academic administrators present an update on technical programs at the two-year college.

At the same time, the rest of the regents will gather at the student concerns committee in Room 114 of the agricultural research center for a report from student affairs officials on campus life projects and special support services offered to UMC students. This presentation will also incorporate slides showing facilities on the Crookston campus, such as the student housing units, and offices, such as job placement, that are used extensively by students throughout the school year.

Before adjourning, the student concerns committee will provide students in the audience with an opportunity to voice comments or issue statements on matters within the Regents' jurisdiction. Students wishing to speak are asked to notify the UMC student affairs office of their desire to address the regents in advance of the meeting in order to ensure a place on the agenda.

Four subjects will command the attention of regents at their committee of the whole meeting on Friday morning in Rooms 204-5 of Dowell hall. Regents chairman Wenda Moore will deliver a report summarizing her recent trip to many metropolitan centers in China for the purpose of establishing educational exchange agreements with Chinese universities. Moore headed a 12-member delegation composed of faculty members and administrators from the university who spent 21 days in China last month. In their conferences with high-level Chinese government officials and educators, the visitors from Minnesota managed to culminate four agreements, which were signed by representatives on both sides, laying the groundwork for future exchanges of faculty, research scientists and graduate students between the U of M and four specialized educational institutions in China.

Also slated for further discussion by the Committee of the whole is UM President C. Peter Magrath's proposal to revise the comprehensive mission statement that articulates the philosophical foundations of the total institution.

President Magrath will also lead the committee in a continued review of the University's planning and budgeting processes. He will explain at greater length changes now under study that could alter the ways in which long-range planning and decision-making on budgetary allocations are transacted.

Itasca Hosts Fund Raising Conference

Trustees and executives of several foundations and corporations will describe the grants-making process and their interests in the northern region of Minnesota. An open question period from the audience will follow the presentation.

A series of workshops designed to provide information to non-profit organizations and community groups will be part of the program to provide various aspects of philanthropy, including proposal writing, organizational development, financial management and program evaluation.

Registrations will be accepted until October 10. Send your name, address and phone number to the Minnesota council on foundations, 413 Foshay tower, Minneapolis, MN 55402, along with a $5 registration fee. UMC Offers Natural Food Cooking Class

Natural foods and vegetarian cooking will be offered through the office of continuing education at the University of Minnesota at Crookston (UMC) from 7 to 10 p.m. on Tuesdays beginning October 16 in Dowell hall, room 212.

First session will emphasize breakfasts, discussing new ideas for breakfast other than the traditional cereal, pancakes or eggs. Other sessions will include salads, with special emphasis on sprouting; care and cooking of vegetables; and simple desserts.

Depending on the class size, students will have the opportunity to actually bake bread the easy way in the session dealing with bread-making.

The course will end with a potluck dinner. Everyone in the course will bring something that has been demonstrated, and guests will be invited.

Vegetarian cooking is not just cooking with vegetables, according to Beverly Cranfill, one of the course instructors. "The course is really for people who want to learn how to cut their food budget by cooking with less meat."

Helen Juhl is the other instructor. She and her husband operate the Natural Way mills east of Middle River. There will be a film or guest lecturer at each session.

Fee for the six classes is $25. For more information, interested persons may contact UMC at 281-6510, extension 241.

Reward Paid, Stewart Bank Robber Tried

Minnesota bankers association (MBA) paid two more rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the robber of the First Bank of Stewart. This brings the total number to eight rewards paid by MBA since the program began last February.

MBA executive vice President Truman L. Jeffers said two men in the area of the bank during the July 11 robbery followed the getaway car for over 20 miles at speeds exceeding 80 mph until the robber evaded them. FBI officials said the two men obtained the license number and description of the car and its occupants before going back to Stewart.

"While we're grateful that we have public minded citizens such as these men from Stewart, we by no means expect people to risk their lives in pursuit of a bank robbery suspect", Jeffers said. "However, these men are to be commended for the courage they displayed related to this incident".

Jeffers said the Stewart robber received an 18-year prison sentence. He reiterated that MBA's all-out-war on robbery will continue until the robbery trend reverses.

Jeffers said anyone with information which could lead to an arrest and indictment in a bank crime is encouraged to call the Minneapolis office of the FBI at (612) 339-7861.

Advise Caution Driving Near School Buses

"Pennington county motorists are reminded that they must be extra alert and cautious when near a school bus," said Sheriff Charles R. Richards.

"The 1978 legislature passed a bill which increased the penalty for a school bus stop law violation to a misdemeanor," he added. "The penalty for a misdemeanor is up to 90 days in jail, up to $500 fine, or both the fine and jail sentence. That seems like a pretty stiff penalty, but our children need all the protection we can provide them."

"The 1979 Legislature made another change in the school bus stop law. The owner of a motor vehicle may now be fined up to $100 if the vehicle is involved in a school bus stop law violation," Thief River Falls police chief Ken Froschheiser added.

"This most recent change is intended to further protect students who ride school buses. The police department and county sheriff's office will strictly enforce school bus stop laws."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I would like to comment on bus safety week and please for obvious reasons (I work for the district), I would rather not have my name published.

Does safety week mean drivers, the public or the buses? Anyone knowing how bad the Thief River Falls buses did in last week's inspection must be getting a good laugh out of it.

U-M Athletic Conference Set For Crookston

Role of intercollegiate athletics at the University of Minnesota will be discussed by the board of regents when it meets Thursday and Friday in Crookston.

At the meeting of the committee of the whole Friday at 8:30 a.m., the regents will discuss the place intercollegiate athletics should occupy at a university in general, and will give specific attention to the athletic task force report.

The report, prepared more than a year ago, recommends that legislative support be sought for men's intercollegiate athletics on the Twin Cities campus. Men's athletics are currently self-supporting, while the athletic programs on the co-ordinate campuses and the women's program on the Twin Cities campus receive some legislative funds.

At the same committee meeting, President C. Peter Magrath will continue his description, begun last month, of the planning, budgeting and legislative request process. The regents will also vote on a proposal to reserve a certain amount of University business for minority-owned and small businesses at this meeting.

Times, locations and agenda items of other committee meetings are:

Faculty and staff affairs committee, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Selvig Hall conference room. A description of the "E" class, an academic-professional class of University employees, and the relationship of this classification to other categories of University employment.

Physical plant and investments committee, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, 114 agricultural research center. Discussion of the need to seek more money for the remodeling of Nicholson Hall, the Twin Cities campus building that houses general college; legislative appropriations for the project will cover only about half of the cost. The need for more student housing on the Waseca campus will also be discussed.

Educational policy and long-range planning committee, 3:15 p.m. Thursday, Selvig Hall converence room. Discussion of the University mission statement, and a description of academic programs at the Crookston campus.

Student concerns committee, 3:15 p.m. Thursday, 114 agricultural research center. An overview of facilities and programs for students at Crookston, and a discussion with Crookston students.

Committee of the whole, 8:30 a.m. Friday, 204 Dowell Hall. Planning, budgeting and legislative request process, purchasing policy revision, and athletics discussion.

Full board meeting, 10:30 a.m. Friday, 204 Dowell Hall. A brief report from regents' chairman Wenda Moore on the University delegation's trip to China, and action on committee reports.

Board members will tour the American Crystal Sugar plant Thursday at noon. On Friday, they will have breakfast with Crookston faculty members and lunch with Crookston students.

Maintenance Of Furnace Can Cut Fuel

Keeping the cold outside is the only part of the Minnesota home energy story. Periodic furnace checkup and maintenance can go a long way toward cutting fuel consumption. In fact, a yearly professional inspection and tune-up may reduce home fuel consumption by as much as ten per cent.

Locating a good heating-cooling specialist and sticking with him is a good way to ensure that equipment stays in top fuel-saving condition. Local fuel suppliers or heating-cooling system repair specialists are the people to call.

Although professional heating system inspections usually cost less in summer, it is still a wise idea to take advantage of this opportunity now before the home heating season begins. Repairs and adjustments that can be made before fuel oil goes to an average 95 cents per gallon will mean critical savings.

On routine inspection it may be found that heating equipment is badly worn or outmoded. In that case, it may pay to replace it now and recover the money in a few years. Always ask for written estimates on repairs or installation of a new system. Estimates on payback periods should also be helpful on deciding what to do.

Sometimes a new furnace is desireable, particularly in the case of aging furnaces. One thing to consider when buying a new furnace is whether to switch to a new fuel source like solar, wood, or even natural gas.

Check the cost of replacing your old furance and weigh that against the cost of converting to a new fuel. Don't just think about installation costs, look at fuel costs and payback periods. Solar heating, for example, may cost a lot to install but the fuel is free.

Upon inspection, if a new furnace is found to be necessary, sizing is an important issue. In some cases older furnaces are over-sized for the home. Years ago homes were not as well-insulated as they are today and a larger furnace may have been required to keep them warm.

If you are in the position of buying a new furnace, don't proceed until you have tighened up your home. Add wall and ceiling insulation if necessary, and make sure the caulking and weather-stripping is adequate and effective. A tighter home can reduce the size of furnace required to heat it.

More detailed information on furnace maintenance and servicing is available from the Minnesota energy agency. Call 296-5175 in the Twin Cities metropolitan area or if you live outstate, call toll-free 800-652-9747. You can write the Minnesota energy agency at 980 American center building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Recycling Of Clothing Topic Of Homemakers

Pennington county homemakers will learn how to stretch their wardrobes at a leader training meeting on "Recycling Clothing" Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

With styles changing fast and drastically over the past few seasons, the task of being in style and staying in style seems almost impossible. Few can afford to discard an entire wardrobe every six months, nor can one find the time to make up everything new each season, states Deborah Matero, county extension agent.

Miss Matero will show ways of making minor alternations on garments to make them wearable for another season. Other ideas to be shared during the training session include making caps, mittens and slippers from sweaters. Patterns for these items will be available to lesson leaders.

Anyone wanting more information about this lesson can contact the Pennington county extension office at 681-2116.

Trapeze Artist Tells About Circus Life

and there," she said. "Shane didn't wear a clown suit there and he got just as many laughs as when he wears it here," she said. "People admire circus performers more there than they do here," she added. "In the United States, people seem to admire television performers and comedians more. People in Europe seemed to realize the difficulty in actually trying to make people laugh."

Carol met her husband, Wayne, in Denver, Co., during a trampoline act, she said. Before this, and during practice sessions, there was a boys' troupe and a girls' troupe, and performers did hand trumbling stunts, she said. Since the two of them had the same teacher, they would practice and perform in shows together.

Wayne, her husband, performed on the trapeze at the UMCA. The Wainwright's number one act in the very beginning of their careers was "the Wainwrights on the trampoline," she said. They chose the name Wainwrights because of her husband's name, Wayne.

"We just had to change the spelling a little bit," she said, smiling.

Then, for five years, they performed in the Mundo Zacchini acts, where they acted as human rocket cannonballs. They began these stunts in St. Louis, before traveling to larger places and for larger crowds in Denver, Des Moines, and Little Rock, Ark. In 1973 they quit the double cannonball shot, she said. That was in Evansville, Ind. Wayne was knocked unconscious in one of the acts, she said. The problem was he was shot out of the cannon too far.

Carol has had a couple of close calls herself, she said. One of the biggest problems is to land and slide wrong after completing a stunt, and much of this has to do with the wind.

"Once I fell from the trapeze while practicing an act, but Wayne caught me," she said. "It was my stupid mistake," she added. "I was just trying to do the stunt with good form and was working too hard at it. I hurried and did the same stunt seven or eight times right, but I didn't do that particular trick in front of audiences after that," she added, laughing.

Their son, Shane, began performing professionally when he was three. Somewhere between the ages of eight and 12 he didn't want to perform anymore, she said.

"He wanted to go to school like all the other kids."

Children of circus performers don't go to schools like other children, she said. They are instructed to take the Calvert Correspondence course, in which correspondence tests are done at home and then sent to an advisory council to be graded. The tests were sent to Baltimore, MD. and are used by diplomats all over the world, she said. Students are one year advanced to those in ordinary schools, so if a child was to be put in eighth grade in an ordinary school, he would be able to do ninth grade work.

"Shane graduated top boy in his class," she said. "He likes to read a lot. He reads much on the road, but then reading and driving are about the only two things one can do when traveling in a trailer," she said.

Performers get an education on the road, too, she said, just by meeting different people and by traveling all over the world.

What makes a person want to become a circus performer? Well, for Carol, the decision was quite easy.

"I loved the circus as a little girl," she said. "I would always walk on my hands and hang from the bars on the swing sets at school. My father sold programs at shrine circuses so he always took me along with him. Being a performer in a circus is something I've always wanted to do. You often hear kids say, 'when I grow up I want to be a nurse or a teacher,' and whenever I said, 'I want to be in a circus' I never thought I would. But here I am."

In 1958, Carol began doing acrobatics in Denver, where she did hand balancing acts. She then began performing on the flying trapeze. She usually works at heights of from 32 to 35 feet, she said.

"The arena here is only about 25 feet," she said, confidently, "so that isn't very high."

"You have to be a little bit cautious when you're up there, but you can't be over confident. The times performers fall is when they quit thinking of where they are — and it's happened to people many times," she said. "All you need is good 'mental discipline."

The trapeze artist sat calmly in her small trailer home, dressed in the common blue jeans and sweater, answering questions, with only an hour before show time, when the family's two pet poodles — Freddie and Bullet (the second one named because of his birth while Carol and Wayne were doing their cannon acts) rested beside her.

"Sometimes you have lights and water where you park your trailer for a performance, and sometimes you don't," she said. "So, that means sometimes you take a shower and sometimes you don't. It's hard traveling and living in a camper sometimes because everything is not convenient."

The Wainwright's permanent home is in Bloomington, Il., although they don't visit it very often.

In her spare time, which is not very often, Carol makes the family's costumes for their acts. She usually has to make two or three sets a year because all the bending and moving in their wardrobes while performing causes the clothes to wear out quickly, she said. She also makes the costumes for other performers who don't like to sew.

"I know my time is important," she said, "and I know I should ask the performers for money for doing these things, but I can't bring myself to ask them for $300 for a costume."

The first time Carol worked with Jose Cole in his circus, he was doing a hand balancing act, she said. He then went into booking shows, so he is now a performer-trained agent. His job consists of selecting different acts from various parts of the world and putting them together. Some years performers work with shows and sometimes they book independently, she said.

There are at least one and one-half dozen circuses in the United States, that are permanent, she said, and all the others are independent. Basically, people get hired to perform in circus acts at various places, but the Wainwright family is more independent, she said. One of her favorite circus performances was at Circus Circus in Las Vegas, she said.

"We try and do the same routine each time," she said, "but they seem to change from year to year."

The family all works together in their acts, she said, and currently their son is learning to handle his mom's weight so he can sometimes take the place of his dad on the trampoline acts. He learned three new tricks one time, and while trying one of them, he twisted his ankle, so he quit them altogether, she said. He is just developing the clown act. Their most miraculous stunt seems to be a triple somersault, in which all three family members rotate in the air at the same time. Next year the family plans to have more humorous acts in the performance, she said.

Carol feels that the most rewarding experience in her line of work (although she said there are "so many rewarding things") is that she loves to see little children laugh.

"I love to hear their responses," she said. "The most rewarding moment any time is to make someone laugh. It excites me to see someone laugh, whether they are young or old, because laughter is one of the hardest things to do in life. Laughing is something that comes from within. People applaud sometimes because they think 'it's time to do this' but laughter is different — it's spontaneous.

"I also enjoy it when adult men want their picture taken with me," she said. "You have to be flattered by something like that. I really enjoy my work," she added. "Working in a circus helps you forget your troubles."

Each performer in a circus develops his own act, she said. And, each act develops its own style. Performing in a circus takes much creativity, she said. Ideas for acts are also obtained from seeing other people perform on television and in person, she added.

When asked if she planned to continue her present career, Carol said that she would like to, but because of a small touch of arthritis, she may not be able to continue.

"There are many performers that are older than I am," she said, "and they're still performing. You've just got to keep thinking 'You're never too old'. Our son wants us to continue, so I believe I will — for as long as I can."

"You get used to this kind of life," she said. "I don't mind living in a small place. It's enjoyable, free and the world's at your front door. It's free living, although sometimes you're not always free."

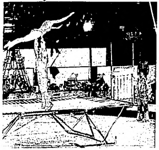
At 1:15 p.m., and 45 minutes before showtime, Carol had to get ready for her performance. Quickly cleaning off the breakfast dishes from the Sunday morning meal, she hurried to her tiny bathroom — her dressing room.

"It takes me at least an hour to get ready," she said, smiling.

CAROL AND HER HUSBAND, Wayne, met during practice sessions for trampoline acts in Denver, Colo. Their number one act during the beginning of their careers was "the Wainwrights on the trampoline." The Wainwrights, along with their son, Shane, 18, performed with the Jose Cole's circus Sunday afternoon during two performances.

INCLUDED IN the Jose Cole's circus Sunday afternoon in the Thief River Falls arena, was this family of skaters. The act was one of many featured throughout two showings. Other acts included acrobats, chimpanzees, a dog show, sword balancing, juggling and the traditional elephants, besides many others.

CHIMPANZEES WERE performers too, during the Jose Cole's circus conducted Sunday afternoon in the Thief River Falls arena. The act included three chimpanzees, a St. Bernard and a surprise guest — a chihuahua.



"A FAMILY OF CIRCUS PERFORMERS" summarizes the lives and work of Carol and Wayne Wainwright, and their son, Shane. The family performs together in a trampoline act, in which Shane acts as the clown. Carol also does various trapeze performances. The family appeared in two showings of the Jose Cole's circus Sunday afternoon in the Thief River Falls arena.

November 4 Is Bowl-For-Breath Day In State

Governor Quie has proclaimed November 4 as bowl-for-breath day in Minnesota. He called Cystic Fibrosis the most common genetic disease in America and the number one genetic killer of children. Quie praised the work of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the aid it has brought to Minnesota youth.

Ron Magers, state campaign chairman for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation; Mary K. Verkennes, state programming vice president for the Jaycee Women; and state poster child, Melissa Sheldon witnessed the signing.

Last year, the Jaycee Women raised over $150,000 for cystic fibrosis research, care, and treatment in 48 centers across Minnesota. This year the Jaycee Women will hold bowl-for-breaths in 72 centers across Minnesota and expect to raise over $200,000 for cystic fibrosis.

Bowlers will raise money by securing sponsors who will pledge a penny for each point scored in a three game series. They will receive prizes ranging from a pin-patch to an AM-FM radio cassette recorder depending on the number of sponsors they recruit.

Since this program meets the guidelines of the American Junior bowling congress, everyone in Minnesota will be eligible to participate in the bowl-for-breath.

More information is available from the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation by calling 612-871-0462.

Cystic Fibrosis affects approximately one in 1,600 live births. Today only 50 per cent of the patients suffering from cystic fibrosis can expect to live up to age 20.

But advances in research, care and treatment have increased the life expectancy of children who suffer from CF. Almost one year for every year of research funded by the CF Foundation.

Cystic Fibrosis is a genetic disease which affects the lungs and digestive systems of its victims. In Cystic Fibrosis, a thick sticky mucus blocks the lungs, making breathing difficult, and plugs the pancreas, making it almost impossible for food to be properly digested.

U of M Needs Volunteers For Medical Study

Volunteers are urgently needed to help combat America's number one killer, atherosclerosis. This disease is primarily responsible for heart attacks, strokes and related fatal diseases that account annually for some one million deaths or 53 per cent of all deaths in the United States.

National heart, lung and blood institute is conducting a program at three participating medical institutions, including the University of Minnesota, to determine whether lowering blood cholesterol levels will reduce the risk of heart attacks.

The university is seeking persons aged 25-59 who have had only one heart attack in the past five years. All such persons are asked to call the University of Minnesota Hyperlipidemia study collect at 612-376-4494 for more information.

NWAC Race Is Wide Open

Who is the favorite in the Northwest Athletic Conference football race now that Thief River Falls has thrown the thing into a four-team scramble with that 22-21 upset victory over Bemidji last week? Crookston, Thief River Falls, Bemidji and East Grand Forks are all in the suddenly expanded title picture that eliminates only Fergus Falls.

Would you pick the Prowlers who are 1-0 in the NWAC with a win over the preseason favorites? Or the Pirates who are off to a 2-0 start but still must face Bemidji? Maybe you figure the Lumberjacks are still the favorites since they can come back and win it by combining wins over East Grand Forks this week and Crookston next week with a pair of Thief River Falls losses over the next three weeks. East Grand Forks is a long-shot at this point after losing to Crookston 22-6 in its NWAC start last week and drawing a Bemidji team this week that will surely be anxious to get back on the winning track.

Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens would not be pinned down for an answer when he was asked what was better, a 1-0 record and a win over Bemidji like the Prowlers have; or a 2-0 record with Bemidji coming up like the Pirates have. "That's a good question," he laughed. "How about a 2-0 record, with one of them a win over Bemidji."

And that's the enviable position the Prowlers could be in with a win at Fergus Falls Friday.

"Everybody is in it at this point except Fergus Falls," said Jurgens. "You just have to go out and play everybody hard. If you're not ready to play, anything can happen; last Friday proved that."

Lincoln Offense Clicking

Thief River Falls' offense struggled at the start of the 1979 football season when the Prowlers netted less than 100 yards in losing to Grand Forks Red River 30-8 and Detroit Lakes 13-6. But over the last four weeks Thief River Falls has been averaging 304 yards on offense while beating Crosby-Ironton 26-14, Staples 37-0 and Bemidji 22-21 while losing to Moorhead 41-14.

Most of the yards have come on the ground. The Prowlers netted 354 yards against the Rangers, 270 on the ground; 390 against Staples, 366 on the ground; 283 against Moorhead, 272 on the ground; and 192 against Bemidji, all on the ground.

"Offensively we're doing some awfully good things on the ground," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens.

And Thief River Falls' offensive success has Fergus Falls coach Don Stueve worried.

"Their speed in their backfield concerns us," said Stueve about the Prowlers. "Their speed will be the fastest we've faced all year. We played Bemidji and they have Dale Leonard, but I don't think he's as fast as Thief River's Bill Jury. And one of our problems this year is that we don't have the quickness we've had in the past. If somebody gets by us we can't catch them."

Miscellaneous

+Bemidji Pioneer columnist Cliff Morlan, who rated Bemidji a two-touchdown favorite going into Friday's Northwest Athletic Conference football game against Thief River Falls, wrote, "Too many defensive lapses cost the Jacks the 22-21 victory to the Prowlers. One can say the cold weather may have hurt the Jacks as they fumbled the ball and turned the ball over three times while TRF didn't give us the ball once. The Jacks started out well but fumbled on the 14-yard line. Had we held control of the ball I'm sure we'd have gone on to win." Morlan also said, "Looking at the Northwest Conference race, I'd have to say that Thief River Falls has the best chance right now since they beat our fine squad."

+Lincoln high school principal Frank Hamerlinck has been appointed to serve as a member of the hockey section realignment committee by the Minnesota State High School League, succeeding Bun Fortier of Bemidji who resigned.

+Vermilion community college linebacker Joel Zamzow said, "Nobody is gonna touch them," after his team lost a recent 28-15 MJCAA Northern Division football game to highly regarded Golden Valley Lutheran. The Royals, ranked among the top ten teams in the national junior college football poll, will be in Thief River Falls Sat., Oct. 27, to face Northland.

Spuds Defeat Prowlers 3-2 In 8AA Play

Moorhead edged Thief River Falls 3-2 Monday in first round North Half Region 8AA tennis tournament match that was moved from Detroit Lakes to Moorhead because of rain.

The Spuds came up with straight-set victories in first singles and second doubles while Sue Stefferson produced a key come-from-behind 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 decision over Cindy Liden at third singles.

Closeness of the match was reflected in the total games figures where the Spuds finished with a mere 50-49 edge.

While the loss ended the Prowlers season with a 6-9 overall dual meet record, six Thief River Falls players will be competing in the North Half Region 8AA individual tournament Friday in the Fargo-Moorhead area. Pam Wassink and Nancy Swanson will play singles for the Prowlers whose doubles tandems will include Patty Langlie and Michelle Olson, along with Leslie Williamson and Cindy Liden.

The matches, which start at 9:30 a.m., will be played in the Fargo Southgate indoor facility and in the Moorhead arena.

Detroit Lakes won the North Half champion, pulling out an unexpectedly tough 3-2 decision over Bemidji in Tuesday's finals played in the Nymore arena at Bemidji. The Lakers will face St. Cloud Apollo, the South Half champion, in the Region 8AA finals Monday in St. Cloud's Augusta tennis facility.

1. Deb Hjelmquist (Moorhead) def. Pam Wassink 6-1, 6-4.
2. Nancy Swanson (TRF) def. Chris Nelson 6-1, 6-2.
3. Sue Stefferson (Moorhead) def. Cindy Liden 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.
1. Patty Langlie, Michelle Olson (TRF) def. Beth Kosen, Nancy Everet 6-3, 6-4.
2. Cindy Larsen, Beth Holten (Moorhead) def. Leslie Williamson, Marsha Erickson 6-2, 6-4.

Thief River Falls is the defending Northern Lights champion.

Prowlers Face Challenge At Fergus Falls Friday

A surprise 22-21 winner over Northwest Athletic Conference favorite Bemidji last week, the Lincoln high school football team finds that it must prove itself once again Friday in an important 7:30 p.m. NWAC game at Fergus Falls. A victory over the Otters would lift the Prowlers into a title tie with Crookston at 2-0. A loss would likely drop Thief River Falls to third behind the Pirates, who play a nonconference game at St. Peter Friday, and Bemidji, a favorite over East Grand Forks that night.

"We have to prove last week wasn't a fluke," said Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens. "But we also have to be very, very careful that the one game doesn't get blown out of proportion. It was one of four conference games. The game this week now becomes very important to us and we would like, of course, to have the (season-ending) Crookston game be the most important one of the season."

Despite a sub-par 2-4 record for the traditionally strong Otters, Jurgens isn't expecting an easy time of it Friday. "Hey, they're 2-4 and we're 3-3. Obviously there's not much difference in the records," he noted. The difference is, however, that the Otters have already been eliminated from the NWAC race with losses to Crookston 26-7 and Bemidji 32-7. They also lost to Alexandria 7-6 and to Moorhead 15-6 last week. Fergus Falls beat Detroit Lakes 36-0 and Montevideo 21-18.

"They're a good football team," warned Jurgens. "They're a long ways from being a poor team. We'll have to play as well as we have been playing to beat them down there. Just because they're out of it (NWAC) will make very little difference. They'll come out ready to play football, no doubt about it."

Thief River Falls hasn't beaten Fergus Falls since registering a 21-12 win here in 1974. The Otters have taken the last four meetings by scores of 33-18 in 1975, 22-6 in 1976, 20-0 in 1977 and 35-6 a year ago. The Prowlers have won just once at Fergus Falls since the Otters joined the Northwest Athletic Conference in 1973, with the Prowlers taking that first meeting 30-19.

However, instead of the big linemen and quick backs that have been Fergus Falls trademarks in the past, this year's Otters are smaller and slower, Jurgens is quick to point out, though, that those smaller, slower Otters handled a Detroit Lakes team that beat Thief River Falls 13-6 and last week held a 6-0 lead for three quarters over a Moorhead team that whipped the Prowlers 41-14 the week before.

"We're struggling," admitted Fergus Falls coach Don Stueve. "We've been playing pretty consistent football and our kids are giving 100 per cent, but we're just making too many mistakes that are killing us."

Fergus Falls, after keeping the Spuds penned up in their own territory for the entire third quarter last week, maintained that 6-0 lead until fumbling twice in the final eight minutes; fumbles that Moorhead turned into scores. "I feel we would have won the game if we wouldn't have fumbled the ball away," Stueve said.

"We expect a real battle Friday," mentioned Stueve. "I know that the scores maybe haven't always shown it, but Thief River Falls has always given us problems. They play us as well as anybody."

TRF Cross Country Invitational . . .

Riders, Indians, Rams, Green Wave Win Titles

Four different teams went home with trophies Tuesday at the conclusion of the 1979 Thief River Falls invitational cross country meet as Grand Forks Red River won the boys varsity race, Fort Totten took the boys junior varsity event, East Grand Forks claimed the girls title and Roseau emerged the winner in the junior high school event. The meet, annually the only home appearance for the Prowlers, was run on the Thief River Country Club golf course.

Grand Forks Red River edged rival Grand Forks Central 41-54 in the boys race, followed by Roseau 68, East Grand Forks 81, Thief River Falls 100 and Crookston 155. Grafton did not field a complete five-man team.

Jim Herberg of Grand Forks Central was the individual winner with a 15:44 clocking over the chilly three-mile course. Dave Larson of Roseau was a close second at 15:50.

Fort Totten's long drive from North Dakota proved productive with a first place 48-point performance in the junior varsity race, followed by Grafton 71, Grand Forks Central 72, East Grand Forks 93, Thief River Falls 97 and Grand Forks Red River 123.

Terry Iceman of Fort Totten was the junior varsity winner with a 17:06 on the same three-mile course used by the varsity.

East Grand Forks defeated Grand Forks Central 27-44 in a dual meet that represented the girls competition because of several incomplete teams.

Mary Dunlevy of East Grand Forks won the girls race with a 13:41 clocking over a shorter two-mile course.

In another dual, Roseau was a 22-64 winner over Fort Totten in the junior high school competition.

Perry Anderson of Roseau won the junior high school race with a 12:06 two-mile run.

Huskies, Cards Play For Pride

Goodridge and Plummer, two struggling high school football teams who have managed to win just one game apiece this fall, will be trying to climb out of the North Tri County Conference basement Friday when the Huskies and Cardinals meet at 7:30 p.m. at Plummer.

Both teams have 1-5 records and both were beaten badly last week when Goodridge lost to Grygla 24-0 and Plummer was pounded by Gonvick 30-14.

In other Friday North Tri County Conference games, Middle River will be at Grygla, Oklee at McIntosh-Winger, Mentor at Clearbrook and Erskine at Gonvick.

A pair of surprises highlighted last week's North Tri County Conference play as Middle River upset McIntosh-Winger 20-14 and Mentor stunned Oklee 26-14. Those results eliminated the Bobcats from title contention and put added pressure on the Scots who have been eyeing a season-ending showdown against defending champion Gonvick.

Clearbrook beat Erskine 22-14 to complete last week's games.

Top of the State Conference championship is expected to be decided Friday when once-beaten Argyle plays at undefeated Stephen. Elsewhere, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart will be at Warroad, Hallock at Roseau and Marshall County Central begins a string of three season-ending road games at Karlstad.

Last week Stephen ran its record to 6-0 with a 34-14 nonconference win over Walhalla, N.D. while Marshall County Central defeated Lake of the Woods 20-6, Argyle edged East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 6-0, Karlstad blanked Hallock 21-0 and Roseau knocked Warroad from the Top of the State unbeaten ranks 14-13.

THIEF RIVER FALLS invitational cross country meet was held Tuesday on the Thief River Country Club golf course. Bob Fitzgerald of the Prowlers led this group of runners across the bridge spanning the river that cut through the three-mile course. Team titles went to Grand Forks Red River, boys varsity; Fort Totten, boys junior varsity; East Grand Forks, girls varsity; and Roseau, junior high school. It was the only home meet appearance of the 1979 season for the Prowlers.

Northmen Become Full-Fledged I-Formation Football Squad

A firm believer in the triple option offense, Northland community college football coach Irv Smith finds himself going against his own principles this week as he converts the Northmen into a full-fledged I-formation ball club heading into a 1:30 p.m. MJCAA Northern Division game at Brainerd Saturday.

After beginning the 1979 season with the triple option veer and scoring just 19 points in four games, Northland was forced into the I last week against Itasca and enjoyed — for them, at least — an offensive bonanza as tailback Mike Cowart carried 39 times for 193 yards and two touchdowns. And although it wasn't enough as the Vikings won 14-13, the success of the I has outdated the veer for the Northmen.

"I'm not a firm believer in the I," admitted Smith, "but it turned out better than we expected. I guess we'll stay with it."

Benefiting most from the switch will be Cowart, a talented 5-8, 172-pounder from Norland high school in Miami, Fla.

"Cowart likes the I because he can see so much better," explained Smith. "He knows where to cut." It was his second 100-yard game of the season, but his 127-yard performance on 27 carries in a 7-0 victory over Hibbing in the rain three weeks ago came out of the veer. "Cowart is a strong runner," noted Smith. "He changes speed really well, he runs under control and he runs well laterally."

Still, the plans hadn't called for Cowart to be a one-man attack last week. "We had no intention of running him 39 times," mentioned Smith who was forced into the situation when sophomore Morice Hendricks, Cowart's replacement, was injured during the game. In addition, freshman Andy Arango, a converted linebacker was playing fullback for the first time in place of Howard Belto who is lost to the team for the season because of a knee injury.

"Cowart got really tired at the end of the game," pointed out Smith. "It would have made a difference if he would have been fresh. He almost broke one at the end that he would have scored on if he wouldn't have been so tired."

And Hendricks, a 5-9, 165-pounder from Inkster, Mich., is more than capable as a replacement for Cowart said Smith. "Morice is a screamer. He's at full speed on the second step," Smith said. "He doesn't read the hole as well as Cowart, but he's quicker."

Hendricks, taken from the field after a jarring tackle that left him dazed and with a bruised shoulder, will play against Brainerd. And Arango, a 5-10, 190-pounder from Miami, may become more of an offensive weapon, too. "We plan to have the fullback carry the football more," mentioned Smith. "Arango did a super job blocking all day, but we want to get the ball to him. He's a good, strong athlete. I think he's a better fullback than linebacker."

All that leaves Northland with an I-formation. "I like the quickness of the veer attack," offered Smith, "but I can see now that if you're not going to run the true triple option you might as well not run it at all. And we haven't been running it well. Itasca was a prime example of the outside veer. We literally had no way to defend against it."

Northland is not alone in switching offenses in midstream. Brainerd went to the I last week, as did Crookston, coached by former Lincoln high school mentor Jim Sims, a die-hard option disciple.

Brainerd is 1-4 in the Northern Division, beating Fergus Falls 8-0 but losing to Golden Valley Lutheran, Crookston 34-9, Itasca 16-0 and Mesabi 23-13 last week.

Northland is one step ahead of the Red Raiders at 2-3 following last week's setback that ended a brief two-game winning streak for the Northmen. "We think we played well enough to win," said Smith, "but we just didn't do the things we needed to do to win the football game. Our defensive line and linebacker play was not too good, but that's that best offensive line we've faced all year."

It's TRF vs. Fergus Falls; EGF vs. Bemidji In NWAC

East Grand Forks will be at Bemidji and Thief River Falls travels to Fergus Falls this week in a pair of important Northwest Athletic Conference high school football games. Current NWAC leader Crookston will be at St. Peter for a tough nonconference assignment against the South Central Conference power Saints.

Crookston ran its conference record to 2-0 last week with a 22-6 victory over East Grand Forks, but the real news was made by Thief River Falls, a 22-21 winner over defending NWAC champion Bemidji. Fergus Falls lost a 15-6 nonconference decision to Moorhead.

+Dale Leonard is the NWAC scoring leader with 18 points, four more than Mark Berg of Crookston and six more than the Pirates' Steve Johnson. Leonard is a runaway overall scoring leader with 66 points in six games. Dave Swanberg of East Grand Forks has 42.

+Leonard is also the NWAC rushing leader with 245 yards. Brent Weiss of Crookston has 168 and Johnson has 117. In all games Leonard has rushed for 649 yards; Bill Jury of Thief River Falls has 475 and Weiss has 442.

+Phil Hatchner of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in passing yardage with 127 on a poor 6-for-34 completion performance. John Herath of Bemidji is 8-for-19 with 126 yards. In all games Hatchner is 17-for-79 for 315 yards.

+Rob Egersdorf of Bemidji has five catches in NWAC play for 67 yards, but teammate Craig Erhart has matched his eight catches overall for a 185-to-111 edge in yardage.

+John Roche of East Grand Forks is the league's top punter with a 32.6-yard average on 18 punts in all games. Tom Bjorkman of Thief River Falls has punted 24 times for a 32.4-yard average.

+John Gervais of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in punt return yardage with five returns for 53 yards and a 10.6-yard average. Leonard is the overall leader with five returns for 141 yards and a 28.2-yard average.

+Erhart is the NWAC leader in kickoff return yardage with five returns for 103 yards and a 20.6-yard average. Swanberg is the overall leader with nine returns for 295 yards and a 32.8-yard average.

+Leonard is the leader in the overall individual offensive charts with 922 yards on rushing, receiving and kick returns. Erhart has 739 yards and Jury has 671.

Central 14-12 Winner Over LHS JV Team

Grand Forks Central bounced back from a 12-0 halftime deficit to edge Thief River Falls 14-12 Monday in a junior varsity high school football game played at Grand Forks.

Short touchdown runs by Dan Odegaard in the first quarter and Scott Kezar in the second period gave Thief River Falls an early lead, but the visitors lost a chance at a win by fumbling the ball at the Grand Forks three-yard line with less than two minutes remaining in the game.

It was the third loss in three starts for the Lincoln high school junior varsity.

Thief River Falls sophomores will be at Crookston Thursday.

Olympic Team Faces Lakers In Warroad

Final arrangements to bring the United States Olympic team to the hockey fans of northwestern Minnesota have been completed and Uncle Sam's representatives in World Hockey will play the Warroad Lakers in the Gardens in Warroad on Sunday afternoon, January 27, announced Cal Marvin of the Lakers.

Warroad is no stranger to the U.S. Olympic and National teams. The Lakers have met them every year but one since 1956 and have furnished 30 players to the U.S. international teams since 1955. The results have found five Olympic medals brought home to this town of 1,100 people situated on the Canadian border:

+1956—Dan McKinnon and Gordon Christian, both former Lakers, were part of the silver medal winners.

+1960—Roger and Billy Christian helped the USA win its only gold medal in ice hockey at Squaw Valley.

+1972—Henry Boucha, played with the silver medal winners.

Roger, Billy and Henry all played at one time or another with the Lakers. Billy Christian is captain of the Lakers and has been an active player since joining the team in 1956.

When the Olympic team plays in Warroad January 27, just days before leaving for Lake Placid, N.Y. and the 1980 Winter Olympics, Billy will be playing against son, David, a member of the 1980 team. Herb Brooks, the coach of the U.S. team, and Billy Christian have played together on past U.S. teams. Ken Johannson, the Olympic manager, played for the Lakers in years gone by.

Hockey fans of northern Minnesota are looking forward to the appearance of the 1980 United States Olympic hockey team in Warroad with Neal Broten and Gary Ross of Roseau and Dave Christian of Warroad, all members of the team. Area hockey fans are expected to fill the Warroad memorial arena which has a seating capacity bigger than the population of the town.

Bowling Event Nov. 4th For Cystic Fibrosis

Joe Salem, University of Minnesota's head football coach, and Georgene Cordes, professional woman bowler, are co-chairing the third annual statewide cystic fibrosis "Bowl-for-breath", being held at Family Bowl on Sunday, November 4 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Salem and Cordes, when announcing the formation of their team said, 'There are no try outs; everyone, regardless of bowling skill, is eligible. If you want to help kids who have trouble breathing, or if you're interested in winning prizes, pick up a pledge from and ask your friends and neighbors to pledge a penny a point for your score in a three-game series.

"Prizes are awarded according to the number of sponsors recruited," states Judy Evenson, local project co-chairman. Forms may be obtained from her (681-6631), Vicki Schimke (681-6430) or Family Bowl.

Everyone with five or more sponsors will win prizes according to the number of sponsors they recruit. Each bowler with 100 sponsors or more will win a portable radio cassette; with 65 sponsors a choice of either a bowling ball, a bowling bag, bowling shoes or electronic game; with 45 sponsors, an electronic calculator with metric converter; with 30 sponsors, a lined windbreaker; with 15 sponsors, a T-shirt; with 10 sponsors, a coupon for a free game of bowling; and with five, a free pin or patch. Each bowler with more than 16 sponsors will win the pin or patch, the coupon for a free game, and the T-shirt plus one of the other prizes.

Funds raised will be used by scientists to find a cure or control of cystic fibrosis and by physicians who treat those born with our country's number one genetic killer of children.

Cystic fibrosis is a genetic disease which affects the lungs and digestive systems of its victims. In cystic fibrosis, a thick sticky mucus blocks the lungs, making breathing difficult, and plugs the pancreas, making it almost impossible for food to be properly digested.

UND To Face Canadian Team On October 16

University of North Dakota season hockey ticket holders and UND students will have through Oct. 12 to claim regular season seats and after that the seats go on sale (Oct. 15) to the general public on a first come, first served basis for the season-opening hockey game Oct. 16 between the Fighting Sioux and the Canadian Olympic hockey team, according to athletic business manager Jerry Kvidt.

The Oct. 16 UND-Canada tickets are priced at $6 for reserved seats and $3 per student.

Kvidt emphasized the Oct. 16 game, and also the Jan. 28 contest against the U.S. Olympic team and the Feb. 6 game against the Japan Olympic team are not part of the season ticket plan

"We have a good supply of tickets remaining, but we urge regular season ticket holders and UND students to purchase their tickets before the end of their priority period Oct. 12," Kvidt said.

Council Denies Location For Alliance Home

battered women in Minneapolis, in which people near the home witnessed no extraordinary commotion at the house.

"Studies have shown," she said, "that few husbands stop at these homes once they have beat their wives."

She suggested a compromise with the Ripley Alliance and the city council to construct the home on a two-year basis. The home would be governed by rules, she said, and there would be 24-hour supervision. She reminded council members and visitors that the seniors in the immediate neighborhood were entitled to peace and quiet — just as everyone is.

Neil McEwen, speaking in behalf of the Alliance and himself and not as an attorney, stated that, "the home is an extremely necessary service in the community." He believed, he said, that the fears of residents in the vicinity of the house are unwarranted, since husbands of battered wives are not of genuine concern and it is the children who come from battered homes that suffer, and should be considered in the issue.

Alderman Dr. Don Goodrich, the first council member to speak at the table, stated that a better location for the home where there would be less impact on citizens could be considered, but that more time would be needed before action could be taken on the recommendation. Majority of other council members, agreeing with the decision, also question the legality of a two-year trial basis for the home. Alderman Penning said he would vote to sustain the planning commission's recommendation for denial, while stating that the deterioration of lifestyles and property values should be considered.

Alderman Milan Borsheim suggested to entertain the motion to allow the home to be used for one year and then, if any complaints arose, the house could be eliminated for that purpose.

"We do have to listen to the people," alderman Wysoski, said.

Mayor Bob Carlson presented his views on the issue by stating his feelings on the "emotional and controversial situation the city of Thief River Falls is faced with.

"Many things need to be answered by proponents of the decision, as far as the city council is concerned," he said. "It will happen somewhere, sometime, that a council will take action against the wishes of its people. But the city council is acting in the best interests of its people with its decision," he added.

He stated that people can be led to believe the worst at times but that he sympathized with the people in the immediate area of the recommended location of the home, and also those within the fringes of the 350 feet.

"I stand alone on my decision as far as the council is concerned," he said.

First item discussed following the debate, and not on the regular agenda, was that of the proposed $300 or more as the cost for insulating pipes in freeze-up areas in Thief River Falls. Opposition from various residents came concerning the proposed dollar figure, and not the insulating of pipes. It was decided by the council members that freeze-up areas would have to be re-evaluated, and that there were no definite dollar signs as of yet. A public meeting, it was decided, would be considered after bid openings on the project, with the assessment committee to meet prior to bid openings.

Area residents left the meeting at this time to return to the second meeting concerning pipe insulation, for which no definite date had been set.

Council members proceeded with the regular agenda Tuesday evening, with a discussion of McQueen equipment purchasing a snow blower for use at the Thief River Falls regional airport, that the street department is currently housing. The snow blower needs much repair, it was decided, and the machine possesses too much power to be used in Thief River Falls. The proposed $5,000 for selling the snow blower would then be used to purchase a new one. The item was left for further debate by council members.

Council members carried the request of Dave NyBakken, Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) aeronautics division, to pass the resolution authorizing the mayor and clerk to execute the amendment of the state aid agreement between the city and MnDOT for the installation of a radio controller at the Thief River Falls regional airport, with Rude electric acting as the contractor. The motion was made by alderman Wysoski and seconded by alderman Clayton Restad.

In airport committee recommendations, council members debated over a letter that had been received concerning Carol Muckala, who is currently in charge of car rental services at the Thief River Falls regional airport, and her desire to have a rental agency at the airport. The question arose as to whether a second car rental agency should be encouraged. Alderman Goodrich stated that "the committee should review the rental situation and update current prices, before a definite decision be made." Hertz Corporation, it was stated, was offering to authorize the rental service. Presently, the two rental services now connected with the airport are Thomas Motors and Tunberg Motor company, both of Thief River Falls.

"Rental space and rental requirements should be justified first," alderman Goodrich said, "and then it can be determined if the Hertz Corporation is still interested."

"Standards would have to be established," stated Robert Wurst, city attorney, "and then licenses could be issued to those who meet those standards."

Council voted to refer the issue to the airport committee, where service standards could be set, and criteria for licenses could be established.

Council members resolved to suggest 80 per cent of monies from the state loan fund and 20 per cent from Ken Kreuter to be used to meet the request from Kreuter regarding interest in establishing a hangar rental at the Thief River Falls regional airport.

"It would have to be decided if Kreuter is financially responsible to pay rental for the hangar," attorney Robert Wurst stated.

Further recommendation concerned the status of rural fire protection, and the city's desire to change present contracts with notice to be given of such action by October 13. If not done, the contracts would extend for an additional year.

"The $20,000 figure for rural fire protection would lose two townships," Mayor Carlson said. "The constituents from the townships wouldn't go along with the protection."

Townships presently concerned in the issue are Rocksbury, North, Smiley, Norden and Silverton.

Alderman Penning made a resolution to notify the townships in proper time (30-day written notice) that the city won't be servicing them on the old contract based on the $2,000 figure, and that a new contract would be established after November 13.

"Townships should contribute 50 per cent of their full share of the operating budget," alderman Penning stated.

A roll call vote finalized this decision, with seven "yes" votes and one "no" vote from Mayor Carlson.

Site and cost estimates were left standing by council members on the liquor committee meeting discussion to revise preliminary cost estimates. Space for the suggested site for a new liquor store, to be situated behind the present one, would be reduced from 9,000 square feet to 7,000 square feet for storage and merchandising space. A definite figure would be obtained when all specifications were set, it was agreed.

Resolution made by alderman Penning to hire Stewart and Walker to continue engineering on the liquor site was carried.

It was decided that alderman Penning would represent the city at Monday's meeting with the school board, following a request from Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of schools, in regard to possible interest in the school district service center property, as well as other vehicle maintenance possibilities.

Finance committee recommendations were resolved by the city council to set the recommended tax levy in the amount of $633,601 for the 1980 collection. The dollar amount paid by the individual would not go up by raising the tax levy, Doug Stewart, city engineer, said. Also recommended was that the $29,494.42 from the medical office building in Thief River Falls be placed in the debt service fund and be used toward the coming year's payment on principal and interest. Money from the project would not be taxpayers' money, but money from the project itself, Stewart reminded council members. Both recommendations were carried by majority council votes.

Commissioner Reviews State Road Problems

share. Work on the Interstates is scheduled to be completed by Sept. 30, 1986.

"Right now we don't have the funds to match federal monies available," he said. "It would appear that about $3.4 million in federal aids would have to be deferred in our $335.9 million total budget."

Funding alternatives projected by Braun included per gallon gas tax increase, elimination of the sales tax exemption on gasoline sales, movement of the sales tax on motor vehicle sales into the highway department budget from general revenue, revise the department of public safety funding, increase motor vehicle registration fees, sell bonds or secure an appropriation from the general fund.

Bob Wolfe, district engineer from Bemidji, brought the problem closer to home in commenting on affects of cutbacks in this district. Overlay of highways (resurfacing) has been cut back 55 per cent, he said, with 400 miles of highway in the district needing work. Only two projects for upgrading load carrying capacity remain on schedule — highway 2 from Erskine to Fosston and highway 9 from Ada to the south Norman county line to provide an outlet to highways 10 and I-94.

For the biennium the $25 million programmed for use in this district has been cut to $4 million, he said, and of the $48 million programmed for after 1981, none is programmed at his time.

Development of criteria to determine where funding will go was discussed. Wolfe contended that it is extremely difficult in this low population and low mileage area to get back into the program, despite the extremely heavy weight traffic which uses highways in this area.

Sev. Hanson knocked Gov. Quie's proposal during the last session to tie the gas tax to the consumer price index, a move which would provide an automatic increase in user taxes. He said criteria for funding should place more emphasis on movement of product in relation to passenger miles.

Rep. Nysether noted that we have a lot at state in the rural area in that roads are our lifeline. He suggested looking at a combination of alternatives being used to increase funding to spread the load, and said it would be necessary to be bi-partisan as legislators attempt to work for overall benefit fof the state.

Rep. Eken said it has always been a struggle to get anything for highways through the legislative process with urban legislators being a major hurdle on the way. A selling job is needed, he said, and he felt that more options were open at the last session than will be open at this one.

Sen. Roger Moe, chairman of the senate finance committee, flatly stated that highway funding would be a partisan issue during the session and gave no indication he would prefer to have it any other way. Not only will there be a rural and urban split, he said, but there will be a split down party lines. He reminded that there were few Republican votes in favor of the last gas tax increase of two cents per gallon in 1975 and said he believes "the jury is still out" on any gas tax increase at the next session.

Beef, Dairy Demands Boost Herd Values

Consumer demand for ground beef has helped increase the asset value of Minnesota's dairy herd to a new all time high of nearly $855 million, Agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin said recently.

In mid-September the average Minnesota milk cow had a market value of $1,030, according to the latest monthly farm prices survey by the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service.

That topped the prior high of $1,010 set last May when Minnesota milk cows approached their peak annual production of milk, and it reflected an increase of $35 per cow during the previous month.

Commissioner Seetin said that dairy farmers have been culling their herds continually and intensively for the past several years in the wake of the drought cycle that sent feed costs soaring, and for the past year due to consumer demand and favorable market prices for all cattle, particularly "hamburger cows."

The $35 per cow increase in value in just one month boosted the Minnesota dairy herd value by an estimated $29 million, to a new all time gross market value for the estimated 830,000 milk cows of $854.9 million.

In addition to helping increase the herd value and production efficiency, the culling out of the lower producing milk cows for beef slaughter also had had an impact on farm milk prices. Culling has helped stabilize national milk production, while consumer demand for dairy products continues to increase.

Minnesota's preliminary average mid-September farm milk price was estimated at a new high of $11.60 per 100 pounds, or a quarter cent under $1 per gallon. That was an increase of slightly over two cents per gallon for the month.

U.S. farmers planted 71.2 million acres in wheat this year, 71.7 million in soybeans, and 61.3 million in hay, according to Sperry New Holland.

Polaris Announces Contingency Program For Independent Racers

A full contingency program is being offered by Polaris Textron in the coming race season to emphasize the snowmobile manufacturer's comprehensive support of its independent cross country drivers.

Polaris has announced that it will award a 1981 Polaris model to the Polaris independents who might win the Winnipeg-to-St. Paul 500, W.S.R.F. cross country series and the high point driver in the international cross country snowmobile federation. Each winner may have his choice among three models designed for cross country competition: TX-L, TX-C or TX-L Indy.

The TX-L is Polaris' machine that won more major cross country races than any other model last season. It is powered by a 340cc liquid cooled engine. The TX-C, which was introduced last season, has a 340cc fan cooled power plant. The TX-L Indy is the company's most recent offering for cross country drivers. Along with a 340cc liquid cooled engine, its claim to fame is the independent front suspension that was pioneered on the ovals and adapted for trail use on this consumer sled.

In addition to awarding machines to its leading independents, Polaris will also continue its financial contingency plan of last season. Jomar Bernat, Polaris' only factory racer, will again turn over his purses at the end of the season to leading Polaris independents in the ICCSF, the Winnipeg-to-St. Paul 500 and W.S.R.F. cross country races.

"Polaris has pledged its full support to its independent racers, and this promise includes financial help as well as manpower, machinery and special discounts on replacement parts at the race sites. We want to do everything we can to broaden the base of snowmobile competition, and we believe that financial reward is another approach to reaching this objective," according to Donald L. Erickson, manager of engineering services.

Expanded support for independent drivers who race the ovals and the cross country and enduro circuit has been promised by Polaris Textron for the 1979-80 race season.

The Roseau, Minnesota-based snowmobile manufacturer, which announced support programs for their independents last season, will put even more emphasis on helping their customers who race in the coming year. This season, four support vehicles, staffed with technicians, sophisticated machinery and replacement parts, will appear at selected races on the oval, cross country and enduro schedules. The 40-foot van used previously at Sno Pro races by the Midnight Blue Express factory team, will expand its efforts by attending some races this season that are limited to masters and competition classes.

"By traveling to some of these important races where Sno Pro teams are not competing, we'll be able to broaden the base of our support and assist drivers who have not yet had the opportunity to work with factory technicians. Some of the racers on the masters and competition circuits may well be the top racers of the future. By sharing our knowledge and technology with them, we hope to help them attain their full potential," according to Erickson. Leading the technical support will be Jim Bernat, who will be assisted by Greg Hedlund, race coordinator.

The philosophy of sharing expertise will take another support vehicle to the enduros. "We plan to have a support unit available at the prominent races in Michigan," Erickson said. "The enduros have always been a classic area of snowmobile race competition, and Polaris has two of the most knowledgeable men in racing to help these drivers: Greg Hedlund, who will divide his time between the ovals and the enduros, and Leroy Lindblad, who was on the winning team at Saulte Ste. Marie in 1974. Between them, we believe they will furnish the highest caliber of support for our enduro independents," Erickson said.

Cross country drivers will be supported by two vehicles: one that will be staffed by Raynold Monsrud, cross country coordinator, and a separate unit that will offer replacement parts to registered racers at a special discount.

Polaris will also continue its "testing-on-the-trail" concept with Jomar Bernat. Last season Bernat raced in cross country competition for research and development. His winnings in races sponsored by the international cross country snowmobile federation were turned over to that circuit's leading Polaris driver, Guy Useldinger, E. Grand Forks. His purses in the World Series 600 races were awarded to Polaris independent Lee Falck, Anoka, who won two of the races and a 1979 Ford Thunderbird. In the Winnipeg-to-St. Paul 500, his winnings went to Paul Metejka, Welcome, who won that prestigious race.

Leading Polaris' full scale technical support on the ovals is captain Jim Bernat, who served as assistant manager of the Polaris professional race team for two years, and who won nearly every major race on the USSA circuit in his nine years as a professional racer. He will be assisted by Hedlund, technical coordinator of both the oval and enduro independent support programs. Hedlund's credentials were earned over a nine-year period in engineering and as a mechanic for the factory race team.

Monsrud heads up Polaris' technical support efforts on the cross country circuit. Coordinator of lake and trail racing for the past three years, Monsrud has nine years as a cross country competitor to his credit. He is joined by Jomar Bernat, the factory's only racer, who competes for research and development. At 25, Bernat has five years experience in snowmobile racing. He was a mechanic for the factory's Sno Pro team for two seasons, and has assisted in plant engineering for three. In his first year of professional competition, he won close to $5,000.

Hedlund will be joined by Lindblad, one of the most prominent names in enduro racing, to spearhead Polaris' efforts on this demanding circuit and a leading competitor on the enduros during his years as a professional racer. On the cross country circuit, he won the Winnipeg-to-St. Paul race twice, in 1970 and 1971.

Polaris has gone on record supporting proposals made to the W.S.R.F. to limit horsepower in oval sprint and cross country competition.

In a statement issued in Minneapolis at the annual race press conference sponsored by the world snowmobile racing federation, Erickson emphasized that rules on horsepower limitation for all classes place safety as a prime consideration in racing. "Safety in snowmobile racing depends to a great extent on adopting and adhering to rules that will control the horsepower allowed in race machines. As you know, the more horsepower poured into race machines, the greater the potential hazard under severe racing conditions," he said.

While safety is the most important consideration, Erickson noted that there are others. "More horsepower increases expense. The greater the investment each racer must make to be competitive, the fewer the participants".

Safety Project Announced By TRF Fire Chief

Chief Duane Noel of Thief River Falls fire department announced today that his department is launching a new fire safety project. It's called: "ici is here". . .and features a time and, perhaps, life saving decal with letters ici on it.

"Besides being the French word for 'here'," Chief Noel said, "Ici stands for 'invalid or child inside.' An ici sticker on the front of a house will alert firemen to the presence of people who might need special assistance, and additional stickers on bedroom windows will pinpoint their locations. In other words, ici means 'here is where help is needed.' "

According to Chief Noel, most fatal fires occur between midnight and 6 a.m., while a household sleeps. More than half the victims of these fires are children and elderly who become confused or simply can't move quickly enough to escape.

"The purpose of this program is to help our men do their job more quickly and effectively," Chief Noel said. "It's designed to save lives after a fire starts.

"But a family's first line of defense should be everyday fire prevention. Most home fires are caused by carelessness — in cooking, smoking, storage of flammable fluids. They could be prevented by simply following the common sense rules we've all heard for years but tend to ignore.

"Check your house now for fire hazards," Chief Noel advised, "and eliminate them. Then, if a fire breaks out despite your precautions, be prepared with an escape plan and window stickers."

The ici stickers and a folder telling how to use them are available free from the Thief River Falls fire department or call 681-3943 for more information.

ASVAB Test Given To High School Pupils

High school students are again being offered the armed services vocational aptitude battery commonly known as the ASVAB test. More than one million students volunteered to take this test last school year.

Primary emphasis of the test is to aide the young men or women in occupational exploration and career awareness. It is not an ordinary test for passing math or social studies, but one to find out in which of their aptitude areas they have the strongest potential of success. Results will be beneficial in choosing a career field.

The ASVAB is given at no cost to the high school or the student, since it was developed by the department of defense, the largest single employer in the nation. It is equally applicable to the student considering civilian or military training.

Since most of the jobs in the next ten years will exist in the technical and vocational career fields, the ASVAB test will be very valuable in career exploration.

If your sons or daughters are undecided as to their future employment plans, you might suggest they volunteer to take this aptitude test.

THE STEEPLEJACK

Look closely . . . in this picture a man is risking his life!

An old and respected trade is his. It had its beginning centuries ago when Christianity first began to express its devotion in unique forms of architecture. How could Christians proclaim constantly their faith in Christ? How could they lift the eyes of others to behold the Lord of Life?

Soon, over gabled village roofs rose gleaming spires. And men who tilled the fields, and men who trod the lanes, rejoiced to behold the symbol of Faith.

Then one day cities replaced villages . . . skyscrapers dwarfed the spires of God. And so, on the day this picture was taken, ten thousand people passed by and never raised their eyes. Only a few looked upward and thought in mild surprise, "Why, isn't that a man way up there on the steeple?"

Yes, A MAN. One of hundreds of millions whose skill and courage continue to be needed as the Church fulfills its mission.

Maybe your church doesn't have a steeple. But it has a task to challenge your skills . . . your courage.

Our Unconditional Energy Technologies

In dealing with our energy future and the future of North America, we must also take into account new energy technologies. The U.S. and Canada are currently cooperating on research and development of tar sands and heavy crude, with a majority of the effort being placed on resolving chemical and physical problems. During the U.S.-Canadian Interparliamentary Group meeting in Calgary, Alberta, we discussed the future of these new technologies, and viewed a plant which is producing oil from tar sands.

This oil producing substance is black and sticky and has been likened to tar in its natural form. The deposits are burried below some 50 feet of soggy, decaying vegetation which must first be drained and scrapped away. The recovery process resembles a strip mining operation more than oil drilling as extremely large shovels are used to move 3 to 4 tons of material a second. The raw tar sands are then fed by conveyer belt into tumblers where a mixture of hot water, steam and air separate the sand from the tarlike substance called bitumen. The bitumen is then chemically treated to remove carbon, sulfur and nitrogen, thus resulting in a synthetic crude oil. In order to complete the process, more than 2½ tons of earth and tar sands must be moved and processed to produce one barrel of oil. The cost per barrel is estimated between $15 and $20.

Huge deposits of tar sands in Alberta, near the Athabasca River, offer an extremely abundant supply of unconventional oil resources for the future. Scientists estimate the yield from tar sands could be as high as 967 billion barrels of oil with improved recovery technology, even though only about 5 per cent of the deposits are now recoverable. The giant mining operations in Alberta are producing approximately 100,000 barrels a day, thereby reducing the need for imports by that figure. The Canadians have invested $2.3 billion in one tar sands project and expects to receive in production at least 129,000 barrels of oil per day by 1984.

In addition to the tar sands, heavy or low gravity crude oil resources are abundant in locations near the Alberta-Saskatchewan border. This form of unconventional oil lies in underground reserviors and is too thick to be pumped rapidly by conventional methods. The Canadians are currently spending about $20 million per year to improve the flow of this heavy oil.

The United States also possess vast quanities of unconventional oil deposits such as oil shale and low-gravity oil. In Colorado, Utah and Wyoming alone there are an estimated 1.8 trillion barrels of oil in the form of oil shale, which is approximated to be 3 times the known amount of crude oil reserves in the Middle East. U.S. heavy crude oil deposits are expected to add up to 130 billion barrels of recoverable oil.

The potential quantity of recoverable oil from thoese energy technologies is tremendous and, when coupled with immense coal reserves in the U.S., the North American continent becomes one giant energy resource. Our problems obviously do not lie in the supply, but rather in our technological capabilities for recovery. With continued efforts of cooperation by the United States, Canada and Mexico, the energy future of each North American country can be made secure, and our dependence on the Middle Eastern OPEC Cartel, which presently dictates much of our energy policy, could be eliminated.

Trapped by an arsonist's fire on the rooftop of her Sardinian villa, Audrey Hepburn inches her way to safety in the thriller "Sidney Sheldon's Bloodline." Starts Fri., Oct. 12 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

Teaching Driver Education

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

Should teen-agers be taught how to drive a car as part of their high-school program?

For those who answer yes to that question, a major reason given for wanting driver ed in schools is the favorable insurance rating purportedly given youngsters who have successfully completed a school driving course.

A commonly held opinion is that those who have completed driver ed classes in school have a better driving record than those who have not.

But recent studies (among them one made by Leon S. Robertson of Yale and Paul L. Zador, a statistician with the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety) indicate that not only do teen-agers who took driver ed in school not have better driving records than teenagers who did not, but that because of the availability of this training, more younger teen-agers are licensed to drive than might otherwise be.

That is, because of the free school training, more 16 and 17 year olds get driver training, and hence get their licenses before reaching the age of 18.

Or, to state the problem in grim terms: Some 4,000 U.S. drivers (in 1975) who were under the age of 18 years were involved in fatal automobile accidents. In half of those cases, only one vehicle was involved — one driven by a young teen-ager — and either pedestrians or passengers also were killed.

Comparable studies done in Britain come up with similar results. That is, more younger teen-agers drive because of the early school training, but school-taught drivers do not have a significantly better driving record than those who learn to drive outside of state-run schools.

Clearly, U.S. public schools have taken on one too many chores — and one which they are ill equipped to handle. While there aren't any government agencies located in every village, town and city equipped to teach arithmetic and reading to children, there is at least one government agency with the capacity to provide training for beginning drivers.

Driver education, as well as driver regulation and enforcement, should be turned over the police force. If this is a service the taxpayers want to shoulder for all youngsters, then let the costs come out of the police and not the school budgets. And let those who know traffic regulations and controls best do the instructing.

Let our schools concentrate in teaching those very youngsters to read driving manuals with skill and understanding. Let our schools concentrate on teaching the arithmetic necessary to compute miles per gallon; how to read a road map; how to buy a car on time payments; how to shop with consumer awareness in the automobile field.

But let the agency which awards the learning permits be the agency to offer the training. And let this same agency be the one to both issue and take away licenses.

There would seem to be little reason for U.S. or British schools to take on the chore of teaching youngsters how to cdrive.

And there probably is every reason why law-enforcement officials should be the ones charged with this responsibility.

With 4,000 fatalities a year among the under 18-year-old drivers in the U.S. alone, clearly something is very wrong with the instruction given these youngsters.

The very next time there is the need to cut a school budget, leave the art and music programs alone, and cut out driver education. It might be wise, too, to cut most vocational training out of both the school curriculum and budget. But that's the subject of next week's column.

For this week, the issue is driver education — and some of the reasons why it should be taken out of academia and placed in the public agency responsible for law enforcement and control.

D.O.E. Saving Energy?

Following comments appeared recently in the Billings (Mont.) Gazette:

Don't tell Peter but he's just been robbed again to pay Paul. The Department of Energy (DOE) reports with an almost button-bursting pride that soon more than six million copies of a 16-page manual will be mailed to building owners and managers to explain how to set the temperature at 78 degrees for cooling and 65 degrees for heating and how not to get water hotter than 105 degrees.

"Everything a building owner, operator or tenant needs is included in the manual, says DOE.

Sixteen pages of typing paper with printing on them and a manila envelope cost 54 cents to mail first class and 40 cents third class. Either figure times six million equals close to $3 million just to mail the things and that doesn't count the salaried hours necessary to prepare, print, collate, stuff, address, stamp, mail and deliver them. Then there is paper, ink, staples, electricity and gasoline. Boy! are we ever going to save money by keeping the temperature under tight controls.

If you don't get a copy of the manual you can order one by calling, toll-free, 1-800-424-9122 or by sending a self-addressed, adhesive mailing label to EBTR, DOE, Forrestal Bldg., Room GE-004A (CS-39), Washington, D.C. 20585.

Pickpocket Congress

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

It would be amusing if it were not so scandalous. Lawmakers in the U.S. Congress are paragons of bravado these days when it comes to being tough on the Russians, the Cubans, the oil companies, OPEC, and you name it. But they seem to have the courage of a chicken (no offense to chickens meant) when it comes to voting themselves a lump of money.

The American public can only be disdainful of the action of the House of Representatives, which first approved a $4,000 pay increase and then timidly reversed itself when its members were forced to vote individually on the record. Standing safely together in a collective vote was one thing; letting the folks back home know how the Representative voted was another.

Gutless? And how! The legislators even employed a sly parliamentary procedure to try to prevent a recorded vote. Congresswoman Millicent Fenwick summed it up snappily on the floor of the House when she said, "We have justified the contempt the people have for this Congress."

The question now is what the House does next. If it does not set a specific amount for a cost-of-living pay raise or specifically prohibit such an increase, its members will automatically receive a 12.9 per cent increase (yes, 12.9 per cent). That is the provision of a 1975 law that entitles members of Congress to the same raises as other government employees.

The 12.9 per cent includes the seven per cent increase going to most federal workers this year and the 5.5 per cent raise which Congress turned down last year — plus (would you believe it?) interest on the latter.

Clearly there is still time and room for the House to redeem itself. First, by acting before the October deadline and second, by demonstrating restraint in its pay request. Few could quarrel that the highest legislators in the land deserve to be well rewarded. But they now earn a most respectable $57,500 a year and even the seven per cent increase they seek will strike most Americans as out of order.

For the average household, a seven per cent increase could mean the difference between buying meat or macaroni for dinner. But for someone in the $50,000-a-year bracket it simply means more luxuries. Is that the kind of example the U.S. Congress wants to set in a time of uncurbed inflation and deepening recession? Surely a more modest increase, if it is deemed needed, would be economically — and politically — appropriate.

As Mrs. Fenwick suggested, lots of people are living on a fraction of the wages which the lawmakers make. Moreover, the House members, instead of forthrightly standing up to be counted, prefer to choose the "pickpocket's way," as she put it, of filling their coffers. That's a damning description and we hope the House has the good sense to make sure it does not live up to it.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Daughter, come in the house," the farmer called. "I see a traveling salesman coming down the lane."

"But that's no salesman, Pa," the girl protested. "That's a deer hunter."

"In that case," the farmer grumbled, "better bring the cow in with you."

"My father is old and in very poor health," the young suitor told the girl of his dreams. "I am his sole beneficiary and soon will be a millionaire. You would be smart to marry me."

The girl was possessed of more intelligence than he realized. Two days later she became his step-mother.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This is an open letter to the members of St. John Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

Do you believe that all people are created equal? I do, but I recently found out that I belong to an organization that does not. My family and I have been members of St. John Lutheran church for about a year now, but just last week I learned that women are not allowed to become voting members of the congregation. The fact that it took me this long to learn of this discriminatory practice is in itself testimony to the bigotry of the ruling.

My first questioning of this abomination was whether or not it was a rule of the Missouri Lutheran Synod. It is not, and has not been for many years. The Missouri Lutheran Synod has recognized for some time that women are people too.

My second question was why the ruling still exists at St. John's. One answer I received, was that women have never been allowed to vote in this church, and the ruling has never been challenged. I won't even bother to waste this space or your time in rebuttal to this archaic point.

The second answer to my quest was that the scriptures say man should be the head of his household. Fine — St. John's is God's house and Pastor Henke is the very able and talented head of it. Where does it say in the scriptures that women shouldn't be counted at all?

In my year at St. John's I have seen women actively and adeptly serving as Sunday school teachers, Bible school teachers, leaders of choirs, organists, fund raisers, scout leaders, cleaners, altar flower organizers — the list goes on and on. And yet those very women that are so vital to the smooth running of the church are not even allowed to exercise a most basic freedom —the freedom to vote in their organization.

I recently witnessed the baptism of two new converts into the fellowship of Christ at St. John's. One was a boy, the other a girl. The baptismal ceremony was the same in both cases. Nowhere was it stated that at some later date one new convert would become more important than the other.

I am not prepared to have my children, a boy and a girl, be confronted by this discrimination by the very organization that I expect to be prolific in God's teachings. I have tried to bring up my children to see all humans as equals and I expect the help of our church in doing so.

I ask the help of my brothers and sisters at St. John's in giving all concerned members the right to vote in the voters' assembly. If you have feelings on this matter please contact me, or Pastor Henke, or a voting member. Let us see that our children are brought up equally in God's love.

Sincerely
Mrs. Steve (Helen) Anderson

STEP UP AND TAKE A BOW, COOPERATIVES . . . for a job well done and worth doing.

Fifty million Americans can't be wrong. They're members of some 40,000 cooperatives across the nation—advocates of the cooperative way to provide themselves and their families with goods and services . . . and to help produce and market much of this country's quality foods and fiber,

Owned and operated by the people they serve, cooperatives efficiently and economically meet a broad range of needs—marketing farm products and obtaining farm supplies and services, credit, telephone and electric services, food, housing, health care and insurance.

Here, there, everywhere—in towns, cities, and countryside—big cooperatives and little cooperatives are busy serving members, their communities, and the public. They don't put on a flashy show; they're just GOOD FOR ALL AMERICANS.

They deserve a great big hand.

PARLEZ-VOUS FRANCAIS?

At 27 cents a word, it's a pretty good idea. That's the going rate for technical translations from English into French in Quebec, where such translation is now mandated by Bill 101.

The bill makes French the legal language of Canada's Belle Province and requires that by 1983, all companies in Quebec with 50 or more employees hold a "certificate of francization" and do business in French or risk high fines.

Fortunately for many companies in French-speaking Canada, Sunoco Inc., which over the years has been translating more and more of its Quebec-bound communication into French, has formed Sunoco Linguistic Services that offers other companies a reliable, quality translation service backed by the Sunoco name.

By 1983, business in Quebec will be conducted in French.

Translations covering technical manuals, information processing and explanations of new techniques and processes that require terminology research and customer consultation cost as much as 27 cents a word.

Because little translation has been done in this area, some new terms must be created—250,000 to date. Since 65 percent of all Quebecers, according to the Provincial government, speak only French, learning to parle francais might be good for a lot of businesses.

Here's to Your Health

BY WHEELOCK WHITNEY
President, Minnesota Council on Health

The end of summer is a time when many of us feel better than we have felt all year. We've overdosed on fresh air, sunshine, and maybe even a dash of exercise.

It's also a time when fair-weather athletes toss their sneakers into a corner of the closet and settle back for months of sustained inactivity.

Don't let that be you.

If you feel better after a summer of healthy living, now is the time to resolve to extend that feeling to the whole year. There's no reason why you can't keep your body in good shape year-round. All it takes is a little effort a few days a week.

To keep fit, you need to exercise both your muscles and your cardiovascular systems. Flexibility, strength and endurance are all necessary for fitness.

Flexibility is important because your muscles support and connect all the bones in your skeletal system. Tendons and ligaments connect the muscles, bones and organs in your body.

When a muscle, bone or joint is injured, part of the blame can often be traced to connective tissue that has become short and tight from nonuse. The message is simple: keep flexible through stretching exercises.

A useful fitness program means vigorous exercise. At first, that will produce sore and stiff muscles. Don't give up. As your blood circulation improves, the discomfort will disappear.

Strong muscles also mean a lot in total fitness. If you're up to it, try lifting weights, or use them while doing calisthenics. Sit-ups and push-ups also strengthen muscles.

The foundation of a fitness program is exercise that strengthens your heart and lungs. Aerobic exercise — activities that bring more oxygen into your system — are designed to benefit the heart and lungs.

Running, swimming, cycling, handball — these and similar activities are vigorous enough to make you perspire, raise your heartbeat, and bring increased amounts of oxygen to the body.

Remember, though, that each of us has a limit to the amount of physical activity that we can endure. Pain is nature's way of telling us that something is wrong. When you begin to hurt, ease up.

It's important, also, to cool down after strenuous exercise. Decrease your activity gradually at the end of a session to keep your blood circulating.

This column will offer detailed tips on exercise in the coming weeks. But don't wait to read them all before starting on your path to fitness. There's never a better time than now.

Seventeen registered at our Center Thursday, Sept. 28. Our visitors were Mereece Borneman of Karlstad who brought Bertha Holmstrom to spend the afternoon with Mrs. Judy Kleinvachter who came to take Bertha back to the nursing home. Sophie K. Benson, Ida Bruce and Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Sundberg of Newfolden.

We worked a bit on fluffing up Arctic scraps for pillows but since it was our fun day we played Bingo until it was time for lunch.

There were five door prizes given away. Ruth Harper received the lovely wall hanger Bertha gave, Polly received a can of pudding that Anna Brekke gave, Mabel received the package of napkins Irene gave, Ella received the Kleenex box Gust Johnson gave and Anna Brekke received the prize Evelyn gave.

Sophia K. Benson gave $2 to our center and Iola Rokke gave us $1 for lunch. Mabel brought over to her at the post office. Thank you ladies for your donations.

We gave a memorial in memory of Esther P. Anderson, a former member of our center, whose funeral was Wednesday at Bethesda.

Our next meeting will be on October 4. It doesn't seem possible that fall is upon us already where has the summer gone.

THE PUBLIC INTEREST

How much environmental protection is in the public interest? A great deal, of course, but don't go overboard, say experts. Over the last decade our national preoccupation with environmental matters has evolved from simple concern about "pollution" to a total ecological orientation that not only touches on virtually every aspect of our lives but presents sobering implications for the future.

One man who, more than most, has had to live and deal with that evolution of environmental perceptions of the past decade is Harold F. Elkin, the director of environmental affairs and energy conservation for Sun Company.

He believes that the increased public awareness of environmental matters of the past decade has been a good thing, but he is concerned that our environmental laws now have reached the stage where they are almost all-pervasive; where they are having a profound impact on everything we do and are going to have a large part in determining how our country is going to grow or not grow economically.

We are moving, he says, from regulation to over-regulation, from where regulation is responsible and needed to where it is excessively expensive, time-consuming and inhibitive.

To build almost any kind of major industrial facility today in a reasonable time is almost impossible. You have to meet hundreds of requirements that can add years and millions of dollars to a project. Consequently, some companies are walking away from vital projects.

Experts say it's in the public interest to shift some concern away from preserving the environment to producing more energy.

Elkin believes energy development and environmental improvement conflict in many ways, as evidenced by delays in resource development in the outer continental shelf and public lands, and in building new energy facilities.

Fortunately, he points out, there seems to be increasing dialogue among the various points of view. We're seeing the courts start to reverse laws that are excessive or ill-conceived. The trend toward excessive regulation could impose a no-growth status on America, and that could change the quality of life in this country.

Good legislation can help keep that from happening.

The only work being done on Thursday was sewing around a quilt. Since we had so many guests we wanted to have a day of just visiting and enjoying our guests. Florence Moyer is new here in town, having occupied the parsonage for just a few weeks and it was fun to renew our acquaintance with Julia Kittelson, who is here visiting her dad, E. R. Anderson at Karlstad nursing home. We had hoped Martin and Helen Eskildsen would visit us once more before leaving for home, but I hear they left for Arizona this Thursday morning.

NEWLYWEDS' FIRST DINNER

Preparing a meal for your new relatives can be a frustrating experience, especially when you haven't been married very long. Rather than trying elaborate dishes, plan a simple, tasty meal using familiar, convenient foods.

Avoid timing problems by serving a one-dish meal like the Sweet and Sour Boiled Dinner suggested here. Pork loin, sweet potatoes, onions, green beans and cabbage are simmered in a seasoned sauce and served piping hot. Welch's White Grape Juice, used in the sauce, adds flavor and helps to tenderize the meat during the long, slow cooking.

For dessert serve a luscious Strawberry Shortcake. This recipe makes good use of readily available convenience foods like frozen strawberries, Welch's Strawberry Jam and prepared biscuits. Welch's Strawberry Jam intensifies that wonderful strawberry flavor and aroma to make this shortcake the perfect ending to your meal.

SWEET AND SOUR BOILED DINNER

Makes 6 to 8 servings

4 pound pork loin
8 cups Welch's White Grape Juice
2 cups water
1 cup ketchup
3/4 cup garlic flavored wine vinegar
1 tablespoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
8 small yellow onions, peeled
6 medium sweet potatoes, peeled and halved
1 pound fresh whole green beans
1 medium purple or green cabbage, cut in wedges
Horseradish

Place pork in a large kettle. Add white grape juice, water, ketchup, vinegar, mustard, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, cover and reduce heat. Simmer for 2 to 2-1/2 hours until pork is tender. Add onions and sweet potatoes for last 40 minutes; green beans and cabbage for last 15 minutes. Serve pork on large platter surrounded by vegetables. Pass sauce and garnish with horseradish.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

Makes 4 servings

1 package (16 ounces) frozen whole strawberries in syrup, thawed
1/2 cup Welch's Strawberry Jam
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 teaspoon grated lime peel
4 prepared heat 'n' serve biscuits

Drain strawberries; reserve syrup. Combine 1/2 cup syrup with strawberry jam, cornstarch and lime juice. Heat, stirring until thickened. Cool. Add strawberries.

Combine sour cream, cream cheese and lime peel. Split biscuits; fill with strawberries. Close biscuits. Garnish with cream cheese mixture.

Public Meeting On Peatland Use Slated Thursday

University of Minnesota, Duluth has received funding from the national science foundation to conduct a series of public information meetings concerning peatlands utilization in northern Minnesota. Purpose of these meetings is to give citizens those scientific tools they need to make informed decisions regarding future utilization of thin peatlands.

A preliminary meeting to identify area concerns will be in Thief River Falls in the council room of the city auditorium at 2 p.m. Thursday, October 18. Public is encouraged to attend.

"The legislature is in the middle of developing a statewide policy governing use of Minnesota's peat reserves," said Rebecca Judge, coordinator of UMD's project. "We want to insure that the local citizens have a voice in that policy, and that their decisions regarding peatlands use be based on assimilation of scientific data which considers the environmental and economic costs and benefits of large-scale utilization."

Project personnel will first meet with local citizens to record concerns specific to each community. Staff will then locate and disseminate scientific literature applicable to these concerns among residents of the communities targeted by this study. Information will be distributed to the public via press releases and a series of public information meetings.

Final stage of the project involves public testimony before a panel consisting of area legislators and agency personnel responsible for making the implementing Minnesota's peat policy. According to Judge, "In addition to an educated public, it is equally imperative to have an active public, one whose voice is heard by policymakers."

Clearbrook Man Found Dead In County Ditch

Henry Adolph Nelson, 70, a resident of the Clearbrook community, was found dead Wednesday morning near his car in a ditch about 35 miles southeast of Thief River Falls in Pennington county.

Sheriff Charles Richards said that Nelson's car was apparently coming from north on county road 27 and turning left to go east on county road 51 when it turned short of the intersection and went off the roadway and became stuck in the ditch.

Nelson apparently took the keys from the car and left the vehicle but took only a couple of steps into water in the ditch. He was found about 8 a.m. Wednesday, face down in about 36 inches of water in the ditch. Investigation is being conducted by the Pennington county coroner.

Plan To Form Authority For RRV Flooding

Ralph Eisbrenner of Emerson, Manitoba and Lloyd Jones of Valley City, N.D., representatives of the Red River Valley Citizens Flood Coalition Inc., a group of concerned North Dakotans, Minnesotans and Manitobans, met recently with senior government officials in Washington, D.C., to plan the formation of a Red River Authority.

Due to the tremendous increase in both the frequency and severity of flooding in the Red river valley on each side of the international border, these individuals have joined together with a common view to stabilize the flow in the Red river and to reduce the amount of tax dollars that is spent each year for flood prevention and flood damage.

The coalition intends to investigate the establishment of a Red river authority along the lines of the Tennessee valley authority. In addition to stabilizing the water's flow, it would also result in a recreation of wetlands areas, a re-charging of groundwater and in better control of water pollution in the entire Red river valley.

While in Washington, the representatives of the coalition, as well as their Canadian and American legal counsel, Barry Bergh of Winnipeg and Grant Merritt of Minneapolis, received support in principle from Congressman Arlan Stangeland, Senator Quentin Burdick, the Director of the Environmental Protection agency's special assistant, Mary Ann Massey and Vice President Mondale's special assistant, Eric Vaughn.

As a result of these discussions, a proposal will be prepared and placed before the appropriate committees of both House and Senate for consideration in the immediate future. The support of members of the Canadian parliament and the legislature for Manitoba will also be sought.

It is hoped that the Red river authority will be established in a much shorter time than it took to put the T.V.A. into operation for, as stated by Senator Burdick, "We're talking about surviving in a valley".

Expect Employment In State To Match Trend

Job opportunities in Minnesota are likely to keep up with the national employment growth rate through the year 2000 due to a strong trend toward service industry employment and away from commodity-producing jobs.

A report released by the University of Minnesota agricultural experiment station also projects the most vigorous job growth to be outside the Twin-Cities area. Service employment is expanding in small cities and some historically agricultural areas are broadening their economic base.

Chief author of the report, regional economist Wilbur Maki, says a trend away from jobs in agriculture picked up momentum in the 1940's. Strength in the service sector and other high-growth industries developed most rapidly in the 1960's.

"In the past, each person performed a lot of different services for himself or herself," he explains. "The individual couldn't afford to pay for the services of others. Trend now is toward each person doing one thing and relying on others to perform most necessary services."

Maki says high productivity in agriculture and manufacturing not only eliminated some jobs, but also raised individual income and the demand for services.

In 1940, most Minnesotans were employed in commodity-producing industries such as agriculture, mining, construction and manufacturing. By 1970, one worker in three held jobs in these industries.

Proportion of jobs in the commodity-producing sector is expected to decline from 30 per cent of all jobs in 1970 to 24 per cent by the year 2000.

Rev. Berton R. Hushagen officiated at the 4:00 p.m., double ring ceremony. Cindy Bedard, a friend of the couple, was the organist, playing the wedding processional from Rogers & Hammerstein "The Sound of Music". Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Marilyn Lund, Tracy, a friend of the bride, sang "The Greatest of These Is Love". The groom's mother wore an apricot floor-length gown with blouson top, split-cape sleeves and accordion pleated skirt. Their identical corsages were of imported white silk Cattleya orchids. Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake iced in white and decorated with yellow roses with mint green leaves. Between tall Grecian pillars which separated the bottom tiers was a flowing water fountain. Stairways featuring minature replicas of the bridal party extended to heart-shaped cakes which were inscribed with the names of the bride and groom. Topping the tiered cake, which was baked and decorated by Mrs. Margaret Rupprecht was a double bell ornament trimmed with tulle and white daisies. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Beverly Erdmann, Crookston, the bride's aunt and Mrs. Betty Peterson, Mpls., great-aunt of the groom. Farm Estate Meeting Series Set By AVTI

Thief River Falls Area vocational-technical institute farm management department is conducting a series of six meetings on farm estate planning. Various resource people from the community will be discussing insurance, trust and legal aspects of estate planning. Area farm couples and other interested persons are invited to attend this course.

First meeting will be October 30 from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in room A16 at Northland community college. A registration fee of $15 per couple or $10 for an individual will be charged; this includes all materials and supplies. Pre-registration must be made by contacting the adult education office at the AVTI; 681-5424. Enrollment is limited.

October 30 meeting will cover what is involved in estate planning and estate planning as a part of family goals. Federal estate tax, the Minnesota inheritance tax, how they work and their implications for estate planning will be explained. An estate inventory will be completed.

November 6 an attorney will cover the methods of property ownership including joint tenancy and their effect on estate planning. He will also discuss the Minnesota inheritance law and the use of different types of wills, plus the probate process and administration of an estate.

November 13 meeting involves the estate analysis following a step-by-step procedure beginning with estate inventory and how property would paws to heirs with one's present estate plan. The federal estate tax and Minnesota inheritance taxes are calculated. Implications and possible problems such as that of minor children and continuity of the farm operation are reviewed.

November 20 a regional trust officer will discuss the different types of trusts, along with how trusts can be used in your will to reduce taxes and insure the continuity of a farm operation. Living trust and how it can be used for retirement will be considered. Costs of trust administration will be reviewed.

November 27 meeting will have an insurance representative discussing the use of life insurance to provide cash for estate settlement, security for heirs or continuity of the farm operation. Goals or objectives of an estate plan will be discussed.

Last meeting December 4 will cover implications of the 1976 and 1978 federal estate tax law. Ideas and tips on developing an estate plan will be summarized. An attorney will be at this meeting also.

Commissioner Dedicates TRF AVTI Thursday

18 students during the first year, Casmey noted, the Thief River Falls program expanded to its present size with approximately 450 students. With completion of the new additions, all AVTI programs will be housed in one area with the exception of aviation mechanics located at the regional airport.

The commissioner emphasized the importance of training for employment and expressed the opinion that Minnesota has done well in preparing workers for the job market. He noted that unemployment in Minnesota is well under the national average.

Dr. Philip Helland, chancellor of the Minnesota community college system, emphasized the need for cooperation among agencies dealing with post high school education in Minnesota. He said that strides along those lines had been made in Thief River Falls with the creation of a commons area in the new construction to be used jointly for food service by the AVTI and Northland community college. The practical nursing class of the AVTI is also located in the vacated commons area at Northland.

"It sounds better to talk about 800 to 900 students in post high school education in Thief River Falls," he said, "than to talk about the separate enrollments at Northland and the vocational school."

Larry McDowell, chairman of the board of education, served as master of ceremonies for the program. Tours of the building were provided and refreshments were served in the Northland community college gymnasium.

Expect State Employment To Match Trend

Picking up the slack are transportation, communications, utilities, trade, finance, personal and professional services and machinery manufacturing.

"Employment shifts are following the 'reverse migration' of the 1970's," Maki says. "Fewer people are moving to large metropolitan areas and more are staying in or moving to small cities and towns."

Cities such as St. Cloud, Fergus Falls and Moorhead attract young families with their high level of services and low living costs. "As people move into these areas and take the jobs available in growth industries, there is a further expansion of services," the economist says.

Minnesota's rate of employment growth for 1970-2000 is projected at more than 1.2 per cent annually, which is close to the national average. "We can expect to maintain this rate as long as some of our exceptionally strong industries remain strong in our state," Maki says.

One measure of strength is how much employment an industry provides in Minnesota above the national average, or excess employment. Projections indicate that by the year 2000, excess employment in machinery manufacturing will be over one-third (36 per cent) the total excess. Professional services will provide 19 per cent of the excess jobs, and trade services 11 per cent. Agriculture will decrease from 30 per cent in 1970 to seven per cent by 2000.

"Our employment prospects look better now than they did in the 1950's when we still had a large, but rapidly declining agricultural work force," Maki says. "We are likely to keep up with national employment and income growth averages as long as the costs of doing business in this state do not increase substantially higher than other states."

These costs include energy, labor, taxes and compliance with environmental regulations. A competitive disadvantage is Minnesota's energy-deficient status. An advantage is its image as a high quality place to live.

Transition to a service-based economy indicates an even higher quality of life, Maki says. "Level of available services is one of the key indicators in measuring quality of life. As services increase at a faster rate outside the major metropolitan area, the difference between quality of life in the Twin Cities and rural Minnesota gets smaller."

The central and eastern sections of the state, except for the Twin Cities, have the highest projected employment growth rate. Development regions central Minnesota, Six East, Nine, and Southeastern (10) are experiencing less agricultural and more manufacturing growth in basic employment. Professional services industry is an increasingly important part of the Southeastern region's economic base. Projected annual job growth rate in the four regions during 1970-2000 is 1.4 per cent, well above the state average.

An above-average rate is projected for northeastern and north, central Minnesota. The Arrowhead (3), Headwaters (2), Five and East Central (7E) development regions are shifting away from mining and forestry to more manufacturing and services. As part of the economic base, however, both mining and forestry will remain important.

The dominantly agricultural regions have a projected annual employment growth of only 1.1 per cent over the 30-year period. They are Northwest (1), West Central (4), Upper Minnesota Valley (6W) and Southwest (8). The Metropolitan council region's growth rate is projected at less than 1.2 per cent.

Smithsonian Study Focuses On Dolphin

by Tom Harney
Smithsonian News Service

Early in autumn, as the skies over the Atlantic coast become crowded with millions of birds winging south for the winter, a less visible migration is also taking place. In late September and early October, herds of bottle-nose dolphins are swimming south on the return leg of an annual journey.

Occasionally, a late vacationer along the shore from Long Island, N.Y., to Cape Hatteras, N.D., catches a glimpse of these long-distance travelers, as they rhythmically leap and dive in shallow waters 100 yards to one-half mile off the coast.

Meanwhile, their journey is being closely monitored by Marine biologist James Mead of the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of Natural History. Mead has spent over half a decade studying the life and habits of these beautiful and sociable marine mammals, immortalized in poetry and popularized in marine aquariums. Valued for their grace and intelligence, the bottle-nose dolphins are still a mystery to scientists.

How many are there? Where, what and when do they eat? When and where do they mate? What affects their migration patterns? These are questions that Mead and his assistant, Charles Potter, are trying to answer.

To gather information Mead and Potter travel along the coast almost as much as the dolphins. During the migration period, Mead makes periodic plane flights up and down the Atlantic's remote barrier beaches, from Assateague Island, Md., south as far as Cape Hatteras. He has also spent a couple of months every year living on the Outer Banks in North Carolina in a U.S. park service trailer. From there he sets forth daily on his truck-and-plane patrols of the beach.

From these studies Mead has learned much about migration patterns, which vary from year to year depending on such factors as the temperature of the water and the abundance and kinds of fish available to the dolphins. Basically, the dolphins winter off the North Carolina coast, or sometimes farther south, until spring when they begin heading north. Each herd is composed of several hundred members, organized loosely in groups of 10 or 15, moving a mile or two apart.

One herd follows another, and it takes as long as two months for all the herds to get underway. Although no census has been taken of this migration in many years, there are probably more than 10,000 dolphins involved, according to Mead. By the end of May, the first herds are off Virginia, and by late June they are as far north as Sandy Hook, N.J. There they remain for up to two months before starting back.

This fall, Mead plans to track one of the dolphin groups through its entire journey. Radio transmitters and other sophisticated technological equipment will not be needed — only field glasses. Dolphins are prone to injuries on their dorsal fins and these create distinct markings. The scars are not visible from the air, but can be spotted by observers from shipboard or shore and should make it possible to follow an individual animal and other members of its group as they move up the coast.

In addition to these studies, marine mammal strandings also provide valuable information to Mead and Potter. Of 480 marine mammals stranded along the Atlantic shore last year, 320 were dolphins. Arriving at the scene of a stranding, Mead performs detailed autopsies of the animals. External body measurements are taken to provide data for systematic studies. He also examines stomach contents and reproductive organs and collects samples of tissue, blood and parasites for laboratory analysis.

"Dolphins can live 20 years or longer in aquariums," Mead says, "but we don't see animals stranded that have died of old age. Dolphins have no enemies, except sharks, so something is happening to them out there before they get old.

"Quite a few dead dolphins we examine either have parasites or are females who encountered difficulties giving birth. The calving season for the mid-Atlantic dolphin herds takes place in late spring and early summer during the migration north and the mother and young calves are very vulnerable at that time."

To cover the hundreds of miles of Atlantic shore that he can't patrol, Mead relies on a network of observers organized by the Museum's scientific event alert network (SEAN). They pass along information about dolphins, whales and other beached marine mammals. If Mead or Potter can't go to the scene, SEAN tries to find someone living in the area of the stranding who can autopsy the animal and airfreight study samples to the museum, adding to the museum's already large collection of information on marine mammals.

"Each animal that is examined provides a valuable piece of information that helps us overcome our vast ignorance about the lives of these marine mammals," Mead says. Also adding to the storehouse of knowledge are historical records from a dolphin fishery located on the Outer Banks around the turn of the century. The records have given Mead a fairly good idea of the size of catches early in the 1900's. This information, combined with new information acquired by Mead, may shed more light on changes in the population and migration patterns over time.

First Play Set By Chameleon Theater Group

First play of the Chameleon theater co. Inc., this year will be a Christmas play done in conjunction with the Thief River Falls arts council, according to director Anthony Ricci of Thief River Falls. Selected to start the new season will be a play entitled "The Nutcracker," by June Walker Rogers.

Try-outs for the Chameleon theater's production are open to the public and will take place Tuesday from 8:30 to 10 p.m. and Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church on Nora street in Thief River Falls. Performance dates will be December 7, 8 and 9 in the Northland community college auditorium.

"The Nutcracker" calls for a large cast of 10 men and 12 women including many parts for children from sixth grade and up. Story of "The Nutcracker" was created from the ballet, "The Nutcracker Suite", by Peter Tchaikovsky. Story revolves around a girl named Clara and a nutcracker given to her by her grandfather, Dross. Insulation No Cure-All But Can Save Fuel

Each year since 1974, as many as 100,000 Minnesota homeowners have added insulation to their homes. Recent fuel price increases and tax incentives have increased this number during recent months.

Do consumers know what they are getting for their investment?

"Generally not," says William Angell, extension housing specialist at the University of Minnesota. "For the most part, homeowners rely upon manufacturer, retailer or installer claims since few consumers have the technical knowledge, experience or opportunity to evaluate the impact of insulation upon heating costs."

Federal trade commission (FTC) regulations will help consumers buying insulation after November 30. New regulations will reduce unfair and deceptive sales claims about insulation materials. Regulations, however, will not eliminate faulty installation practices, not will they give consumers the information needed to determine the wisdom of insulating, Angell says.

"Most consumers have been led to believe that heating bill savings and R-value, a measure of insulating power, are directly related in a linear sense," Angell says. "In practice, heating bill savings are greater with the first amount of insulation than the last."

For the owner of a typical central Minnesota single-story house heated with fuel oil, adding six inches of insulation to an uninsulated attic could save more than $400 annually. But adding six inches on top of six inches of insulation would reduce fuel costs only about $40 annuallin in this situation, Angell explains.

"Homeowners shouldn't rely completely upon a salesperson's claims when buying insulation, nor should they rely upon the Better business bureau or utility companies to screen unethical contractors," Angell says, citing several facts to support his position:

— FTC hearings and Minnesota attorney general's investigations have revealed a widespread pattern of deceptive, unsupported claims concerning heating cost savings associated with energy conservation products.

— Recent court hearings have limited the right of utility companies to remove insulation contractors with imperfect performance from the utility's list of recommended contractors.

— Lack of statewide certification or licensing requirements has allowed untrained or unethical individuals to get into the insulation business. These individuals can and do make inflated promises since they'll be gone or out-of-business by the time the consumer discovers the problem,' Angell says.

To determine the economic wisdom of adding insulation or taking other energy conservation steps, some old-fashioned pencil pushing will pay off, Angell says. "Investing one evening with a pencil and Extension Folder 389, Understanding Heat Loss,' will give a homeowner the information needed to determine the wisest energy-saving investments."

Folder 389 is available free of charge through Minnesota county extension service offices.

Poster Child For March Of Dimes Named

Betsy Burch, 6, born with multiple birth defects, was recently named 1980 March of Dimes national poster child by Arnold Palmer, honorary national chairman and a trustee of the voluntary health organization.

Betsy, who lives in Stone Mountain, Ga., will represent more than a quarter-million infants born every year in the United States with physical or mental damage. March of Dimes birth defects foundation supports research medical service programs, and education to overcome our most serious child health problem.

Betsy was born with a malformed right leg and webbed fingers on both hands. After 14 operations, the first of which took place when she was six months old, all her fingers have been separated and extra toes have been removed from her left foot. Although her right foot has been amputated, she walks well with the aid of a prosthesis which she calls her "special leg".

Betsy, a first grader at Allgood School in Stone Mountain, enjoys swimming, jogging, climbing monkey bars, dancing and drawing. She wants to be a nurse when she is older and help her hand surgeon.

Her father, is a management analyst for the U.S. department of energy. Her mother, a former school teacher, is active with the March of Dimes mothers march on birth defects. Betsy has a sister and brother both of whom were born healthy. As the youngest of the family, Betsy's nickname is "Peanut".

Workshop On Job-Related Stress Slated

Coping with "burn out" or job-related stress is the workshop being made available to area residents at Crookston's Best Western Inn October 26. Dr. Robert Flint, licensed clinical psychologist, will demonstrate how job-related stress can be managed to avoid the burn out syndrome.

Effectively dealing with work stresses increases productivity and reduces problems. Extensive self help techniques are taught to deal with management of stress, time management, understanding emotions and learning how to stand up for ourselves.

Northwestern mental health center in Crookston is presenting this workshop for anyone who feels job-related stress, especially professional workers and executives.

Cost for this all day workshop is $20, which includes registration, coffee breaks and noon buffet. C.D. units are available for the nursing profession.

Registrations can be made by calling Ken Barkman or Kathy Wilson at the Northwestern mental health center (218-281-3940).

ARC Is Among Recipients Of United Way

Pennington County Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) is among the recipients of funding from the United Way of Thief River Falls.

Camp Sunshine, Region 1 A.R.C. camp, will get one-half of the funds contributed to the ARC. This will be used to provide camperships for handicapped citizens. Attending camp is the high point of the year for many retarded citizens. Money will also be used to purchase arts and crafts supplies, camp rental, lifeguard salary and pay other costs.

Remainder of the money will be used for ARC activities. The association is presently completing plans for a workshop on October 20 at the Falls DAC, dealing with the new "Block Grant" law, and is co-sponsoring the PACER workshop to be held at Lon's restaurant on October 31.

"Trhough your United Way contributions you are helping our retarded citizens," an association official said. For more information on your local ARC, please contact Karen Johnson, president of the Pennington County A.R.C., Route 4, Thief River Falls.

Giant Siphons Lowering Level Of State Lake

Giant siphons comprised of eight-inch diameter steel pipes are being used to lower a lake in McLeod county, the Department of Natural Resources reported.

The project — first of its kind in Minnesota — is lowering the water level of Marion Lake south of Hutchinson. The purpose is to reduce the volume and related cost of treating the lake with chemicals to destroy a large rough fish population.

"The present fish population consists almost entirely of stunted bullheads and provides little or no angling opportunity," said Ken Schumann, DNR area fisheries manager in Hutchinson.

He said Marion Lake is 594 acres in size and has a maximum depth of 12 feet. "Without lowering the lake, cost of reclamation would have exceeded $80,000 — a prohibitive figure. We will continue to remove water until we can bring the cost down to about $40,000."

He explained that the amount of Rotenone — the fish killing chemical used to reclaim lakes — depends upon the volume of water that must be treated.

To carry out the project, 11 pipes each 340 feet long made up of 20 foot sections were installed at the lake outlet. To start the siphoning action a pump was used to force air and water from the pipes. The pump was then removed and when the end of the pipe was lowered into the outlet creek a natural siphon was created.

No electrical energy or fuel is required, resulting in substantial cost saving.

Schumann said the 11 pipes can carry 12 million gallons per day from the lake. The siphons were started on July 6 and the lake had gone down 16 inches by Sept. 19.

He said a two inch rain fell on the watershed of the lake during a storm and the lake level did not rise. The removal of water through the pipes was apparently equal to the volume of water entering the lake from tile drains and ditches, he said.

Pipes being used on the project were first used in 1976 to carry water to forest fire sites. The pipes can also be used to provide an emergency municipal water supply.

After the lake has been reclaimed and restocked with fish the Brownton Sportsmens Club will install an aeration system to provide oxygen to game fish during the winter months.

Idea for the Lake Marion siphon project was conceived by James Groebner, a fisheries habitat specialist at the DNR's central headquarters in St. Paul.

Suggests More Deductions For Volunteers' Cars

Senator Dave Durenberger introduced a bill Tuesday to encourage volunteerism and place a more accurate value on volunteers' non-cash contributions.

"For a long time the federal tax code has recognized that the use of a private car for business costs the owner money," said Durenberger. "We've allowed the business person to deduct from his or her federal taxes a mileage rate that compensates the owner for the gasoline, insurance, wear-and-tear and other expenses of running an automobile.

"The volunteer doing work for a charitable organization, though, is expected to make a sacrifice of time and money. Until recently the volunteers could only deduct seven cents per mile for unreimbursed gas and oil expenses. Lately, that figure was changed to eight cents per mile. The insignificant one cent change hardly reflects the rate of inflation and the increase in the cost of fuel.

"My bill will make the rate more accurate. It will allow volunteers who use their cars for charitable purposes to deduct an amount equal to the compensation government employees receive when they use their cars for business," said the senator. Government workers are currently reimbursed 18.5 cents per mile.

"Even with the 18.5 cents deduction, volunteer drivers are still making a tremendous contribution in addition to the donation of their time. The American Automobile association estimates that in Minnesota the total cost of operating a car is 25.4 cents per mile.

"According to a survey conducted by the governor's council on aging, volunteer drivers in Brown county in Minnesota average about 100 miles per month. That means they're spending more than $300 per year for their volunteer driving. Currently, they can deduct less than one-third of that amount from their federal taxes.

"The people who run the meals on wheels program in the Twin Cities told me about a person who drives up to 600 miles every month to deliver meals to the homebound. Even with my bill and the increased deduction, he will still be contributing the equivalent of almost $500 per year plus his time," Durenberger said.

"Studies have shown that the value of a dollar given to a charitable organization is increased in value three to four times through the efforts of volunteers. When we in this country are looking for innovative ways to meet the demand and the need for public services, it is fitting that we should turn to volunteers and encourage their efforts."

Rural Energy Bill Supported By Boschwitz

A bill promoting energy development from agricultural and forest products has passed the senate agricultural committee and will be heard shortly on the floor, reported committee member and bill co-sponsor Senator Rudy Boschwitz recently.

"This is definitely the most important legislation handled by the ag committee this session, and it will have my total support on the floor," Boschwitz said.

"I believe it corrects a neglect shown in the past to the energy answers that can come from conversion of farm and forest products into fuel. We've also recognized in this bill that this conversion can be done by the small enterprise, by the private individual who's showing initiative, but so far has had to 'go it alone'."

Boschwitz said that key features of the bill include:

+ Designation of the department of agriculture as the lead federal agency for the development and production of alternative fuels from farm and forest products (known as 'biomass' energy);

+ The establishment of up to eight agricultural biomass energy centers, each in a different region of the country (the original bill called for four such centers — Boschwitz, who wanted to ensure easier access to the centers and to guarantee the location of one in the Upper Midwest, succeeded in raising the number to a maximum of eight);

+ Provision of $250 million in direct loans with one-half of these loans set aside for small, on-farm energy projects — another $1 billion would be provided in loan guarantees for biomass energy projects;

+ Provision of $25 million in loans to electric cooperatives for projects generating electricity from non-fossil fuel sources; and

+ Establishment of up to eight wood energy centers to provide technical assistance, do research and run demonstration projects relating to wood energy production.

"Everywhere I go," Boschwitz said, "someone comes up to talk about the energy project he or she has been working on out in the garage or barn. It's due time we began assisting these types of projects, bring together all the technology available, and help with financing the ideas into the production and marketing stages."

Durenberger Dissatisfied On Energy Bill

A Senate attempt to put energy-related decisions on a fast track may end up putting them on the wrong track, according to Senator Dave Durenberger.

Durenberger said the energy mobilization board approved Thursday by the senate ignores the rights and responsibilities of local and state governments. The newly created board will have the authority to put energy proposals on a decision-making "fast track." The board will have the power to make decisions for other government agencies and waive state and local laws.

"I co-sponsored a bill that was a more sensible approach to speeding up decisions," said Durenberger. "My approach included local and state governments, instead of ignoring them."

Durenberger said he voted against an energy mobilization board that centralizes authority in an independent panel with few if any responsibilities to other government agencies. "States and cities will have almost no opportunity to review or challenge the board's decisions. A person in Minnesota could wake up one morning and find a pipeline running through his or her backyard and not be able to do anything about it.

"No one knows better than the people of Minnesota where in the state power plants should be located, pipelines should be built or transmission lines should be routed. Yet, with the board created by the senate these people are ignored, even though it's their state and their property," said the senator.

Durenberger also said the new energy mobilization board may be a hindrance to quick development of energy projects. "This board redefines the relationship between Washington and the states. The senate gives the panel the right to waive local and state laws. It says, four people in Washington — the board's membership — will make decisions for Minnesota and other states. That raises some serious constitutional questions. Already, there has been talk of challenging these far-reaching powers in court. Because the senate put all its eggs in one basket, if the states challenge the legality of the board it could sidetrack the process for years."

Durenberger said the senate passed a bill that it can run up the flagpole and say to the people, "See, we are doing something about the energy crisis."

"The senate didn't stop long enough to see if what it was doing was the right thing or if it was even necessary. It just wanted something to quiet the criticism of congress' inactivity on the energy crisis," said Durenberger.

Durenberger said the energy mobilization board he cosponsored with Senators Abraham Ribicoff and Edmund Muskie was carefully developed in the committee on governmental affairs. "Since this committee has the responsibility to oversee the relationships among government agencies and between Washington and the states we were careful to respect local laws and concerns. The measure that passed today fails to do that," said the senator.

Drastic Fuel Price Increases Hike Crop Costs

Sharply higher bulk fuel prices will probably increase fall crop harvest costs by more than $32 million or nearly double the 1978 fall harvest fuel costs, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin estimated recently.

Minnesota farm bulk fuel prices in mid-September averaged 94 cents a gallon for gasoline and 84 cents a gallon for diesel.

Compared to one year ago, the diesel fuel price is higher by 38 cents a gallon or an 83 per cent increase, and the current gasoline price is higher by 31 cents a gallon or 49 per cent above mid-September 1978.

Commissioner Seetin said that latest available fall crop estimates indicate that Minnesota farmers will harvest a combined total of 12,847,000 acres of corn, soybeans, sunflowers, sugarbeets and potatoes. That represents a 14 per cent increase over the 11,267,000 acres of the same crops harvested during the 1978 fall season.

Fall harvest costs this year, at mid-September fuel prices, will include a farm fuel bill of an estimated $67.8 million. Last year's fall harvest fuel bill in Minnesota was an estimated $35.7 million.

That does not represent the total farm energy bill for the fall harvest season, Commissioner Seetin pointed out. It does not include the fuel that will be consumed and the cost for drying crops down to moisture levels required for marketing or safe storage. However, present prices for liquid propane gas, the primary fuel used for crop drying, are holding about the same as last fall.

Commissioner Seetin added that if farm fuel prices continue to increase during the harvest, the total fuel bill could be more than double last year's. In 1978 fuel prices increased only one cent per gallon during the entire harvest season. This year from mid-March to mid-September monthly price increases averaged 5 cents per gallon for diesel and over 4 cents per gallon for gasoline.

An estimated 77.1 million gallons of fuel will be used in Minnesota's fall harvest of field crops this year, compared to about 67.6 million gallons last year.

— What are the Pros and Cons

The public is invited to attend a meeting designed to identify concerns regarding large scale utilization of northern Minnesota's peatlands at 2:00 p.m. in the:

THIEF RIVER FALLS CITY HALL
COUNCIL ROOM
Thursday, October 18

This is the first in a series of meetings developed to give citizens those scientific tools they need to reach informed decisions on a peatlands policy for the State of Minnesota.

The program is sponsored by the University of Minnesota with funds from the National Science Foundation.

HERE'S SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

...The water heater in your home is a major energy consumer, usually second only to your furnace.

WHY A GAS WATER HEATER?

With gas, a water heater gives a high overall energy system utilization performance, from gas well to unit.

High performance, yet economy oriented

Provides easy, effective control in temperature choices.

Very low maintenance cost.

...Remember, conserving water also helps conserve the fuel it takes to heat the water.

Appreciating Public Lands

We hope that the hundreds of people who have been waterfowl hunting in the area the past 10 days have developed some sort of appreciation for public lands and waters. Without a doubt it is the conditions on those areas which contribute to the success of waterfowlers here.

Of course we recognize that private lands provide a good deal of the feed required by ducks and geese and that during extended fall harvests, such as this year, there will be crop depredation by waterfowl. The private land owner plays a large role in supporting waterfowl populations and he deserves to be recognized for that fact.

But it can not be disputed that sanctuaries at Agassiz National Wildlife refuge and the Thief Lake wildlife management area hold waterfowl in the area and make them accessible to hunters. Were it not so, would there be "firing lines" ringing the refuges as hunters seek to intercept birds coming and going?

Having completed several days last week with hunting experiences on state wildlife management area, we would like to express our appreciation for having it available to us. We have no quarrel with those who lease land for hunting purposes—except when the landowner complains too loudly of waterfowl depredation when he expects to profit from the hunting of those birds. If hunters are willing to pay the price for hunting rights, that should be their privilege.

Such leasing effectively restricts the private area available for hunting, however, as well as restricting the hunters to those who can afford to pay the fare. How fortunate we are that people in the department of natural resources and department of the interior had enough foresight years ago to acquire lands which the public can use. How unfortunate it would be if that land acreage should be reduced by sale to private owners.

We hope that anyone who treads lands bearing "Wildlife Management Area" signs on the perimeter reflects for a minute in appreciation for the privilege. Those signs could read "No Trespassing" instead.

Time Of Decision

When trying to determine a course of action which will affect the Thief River Falls community for many years to come, the Thief River Falls board of education hasn't received a whole lot of help in reaching a decision. The public meeting a week ago to explain alternatives being considered and seek public advice produced more of a fizzle than a bang.

For the most part, people attending the meeting seemed to want to know what they could do in helping to solve the school district's building problems—and the district does have building problems. They looked to the board for direction and generally they had their questions answered, at least as far as it was possible for answers to be given.

The difficulty in the matter is that the problem is not clearly defined. A building program must be based on unknown future conditions, and that requires enough liberalism to anticipate need but enough conservatism to hold down the cost to a reasonable level. It means the establishment of priorities which, if adopted to solve certain problems, will leave others still crying for a solution.

When the board of education voted on the two alternatives selected by a citizen's committee from among five given original consideration, the vote was split between the two with one member opposed to both. A little more time for consideration may be a wise course to take, but it should be only a little time. Building costs are rapidly rising and delays cost dollars. Existing buildings are in need of extensive repair—repair that should not be made if the buildings are to be replaced.

Earlier residents of this community had the determination and foresight to provide the necessary facilities for education. The school district (and that means its taxpayers) has benefitted from those earlier investments, avoiding expensive building costs for a number of years.

In our opinion, those building costs can not be avoided much longer. It makes little sense to us to expend large annual sums for maintenance and repair of buildings which are bordering on the edge of normal life expectancy. It is a fact that some of this district's school buildings are old and have withstood about all they can stand of wear and weather.

We feel that the board has acted wisely in securing assistance from competent professionals, people whose business it is to study existing situations and unemotionally determine what can be done. None of the board members is expert in planning nor building, yet all are forced by nature of their elected positions to make important, far-reaching and expensive decisions regarding both planning and building.

If there are those among the general public who can shed light upon a path of travel from this point on, we are sure any of the board members would appreciate the offer. How much better it would be to hear people say "here is something you can do" rather than hear the critics lament "what they should have done is . . ."

All too frequently we hear that our government is insensitive to the wishes of the people and that we should never give up local control. Here is a time of decision when government is pleading for participation and the issue could never be more local. It is an opportunity for people to make a very real contribution to their fellow men. It would be a shame to let such an opportunity pass.

Worth The Cost

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

Of all the things American taxpayers have funded over the years, perhaps the most beneficial is our system of public education. We pay a fortune for defense, but we still have wars. We have funded a complex welfare system, but we still have the poor. And although we spend billions to combat crime, there are still plenty of criminals. But the American system of public education has made of us the most educated people in the world.

In that light, it's reassuring to learn St. Cloud public school elementary students scored above the national average on recent standardized tests of basic skills. So often Americans are disgusted with what happens to their tax dollars. But it's difficult to find anyone in America today who isn't convinced education is essential to "getting ahead" in our society. We may disagree on the amount of education needed, or the balance between formal classroom studies and practical experience, but few discount the positive influence of a good education.

St. Cloud youngsters appear to be getting that type of "good" education hoped for by those who foot the bill. In such areas as reading, language and mathematics, students here scored as much as a year ahead of students at an equivalent grade level nationally. And at a time when taxpayers have little to cheer about, this is a real success story.

But successful or not, public education in St. Cloud still requires our attention and support to solve current problems and plan for an educational future of even greater benefit to our children. It's also important for us not to lose faith in our collective ability to successfully finance and operate an efficient system of public education. Because education affects many of us so directly, being more of a local concern than a national one, we sometimes view educational problems as monumental. We are stuck solving many of those problems ourselves, rather than depending totally on the federal government.

This is one of the major reasons for our success with public education in America. Our constitution has left the problem of education to the states, and in turn to local governments. We in St. Cloud are directly responsible for the learning of our own children. We are responsible for the successes and failures.

We congratulate elementary students for their achievement on the standardized tests. Teachers and school administrators have also done more than just earn a salary, and we believe they should be recognized for their service to the community. But from more than any other group, education needs the support and wholehearted commitment of the community at large. By cooperating with school officials and encouraging our children in their studies, each of us can be directly responsible for the success of public education in St. Cloud.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"What are you building?" the tourist asked the mountaineer.

"Ain't sure yet," the man replied. "If I can rent it, it's a rustic cottage. If I can't, it's a cowshed."

Spending a weekend on the farm, the city boy was awakened early the first morning by a flurry of activity around him. Sleepily he commented, "Boy, it sure doesn't take long to stay here all night, does it?"

Why Accept The Unacceptable?

In President Carter's address to the nation on the presence of Russian troops in Cuba, he implicitly admitted the decline of American Preeminence in defense, and, further, chose not to exercise, in any way, our strong economic and technological advantages and leverage.

In his own words of a previous day, the presence of the troops was "unacceptable" . . . we have, he said, "persuasive evidence" that the Sovelts are lying when they claim the forces stationed in Cuba are not combat troops. . .the U.S., he also said, has received "assurances" from the Soviets that they intend to keep the troops just as they are. . .

In light of all these Carter acknowledgements, we could reasonably expect him not to accept the unacceptable.

This expectation proved wrong. He has, for all practical purposes, conveyed to the Russians that we will meekly accept the status quo.

The most important message of last Monday's speech is what Carter's acceptance says about the U.S. present defense position; this message deserved scrutiny. Quite clearly, the United States has lost the preeminence in defense it held in 1962 when another American president was able to force a complete Soviet turnaround in the earlier Cuban missile crisis.

In the 17 years since then we have seen the U.S. lose its superior defense position and—correspondingly —we have seen the Soviets begin to "test" us more and more, in every part of the world. As their perception of our weakness grows, unfortunately so does their boldness in "taking us on".

The latest Cuban affair was a test, and I'm afraid it's obvious who came out with the losing score.

This is why I will continue to support moves in the Senate to regain our once strong defense position — not so that America can begin trouble, but because I know that the Soviets respect strength and will only continue to test us as long as evidence of that strength is absent.

Carter also failed to play one of our strong bargaining cards — the Russian dependence on U.S. grain and technology. Economically, the Soviet Union is a failure: their economy is based on heavy imports of Western technology; socialistic farming practices have lead to 62 successive crop failures.

How badly they need our grain this year was spelled out only three days after the speech when we learned that the administration has just apporved an arranagment so Russia can buy up to 25 million metric tons of corn and wheat next year.

Yet that bargaining card, and the even stronger card of technology exports, was never mentioned to the best of my knowledge.

The Soviets have a history of taking advantage of weakness in strength or will. The President on Monday night displayed both.

STEP UP AND TAKE A BOW, COOPERATIVES . . . for a job well done and worth doing.

Fifty million Americans can't be wrong. They're members of some 40,000 cooperatives across the nation—advocates of the cooperative way to provide themselves and their families with goods and services . . . and to help produce and market much of this country's quality foods and fiber.

Owned and operated by the people they serve, cooperatives efficiently and economically meet a broad range of needs—marketing farm products and obtaining farm supplies and services, credit, telephone and electric services, food, housing, health care and insurance.

Here, there, everywhere—in towns, cities, and countryside—big cooperatives and little cooperatives are busy serving members, their communities, and the public. They don't put on a flashy show; they're just GOOD FOR ALL AMERICANS.

They deserve a great big hand.

Atmosphere Affects Alcohol Consumption

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

The jukebox is blaring. The drinks are sparkling. You've just seen someone interesting from acorss the horseshoe bar. Talk is light and the lights are dark.

Most people wouldn't call a bar with such atmosphere a risky place, a place where people develop alcohol problems. They think that only an occasional drunk pours out his heart to the bartender, who is pouring him more. They think that alcoholism hides at home, where people try to drink away depression or restlessness. Or that alcohol abuse emerges from long "Animal House" parties.

But public drinking leads to more alcohol problems than private drinking does, said Jim Schaefer, head of the University of Minnesota alcohol and other drug abuse program. An anthropologist, Schaefer has studied bars as a research sidelight and hobby, to learn more about alcohol abuse.

According to Schaefer, some bars create a much higher risk of excessive drinking than others. The music, entertainment, lighting, decorations, traffic flow, size of the crowd, and actions of the bartender all contribute in different ways to the amount of alcohol customers drink.

Music can easily encourage people to drink more, Schaefer said, and bar owners know it. A bar with live music or even a jukebox creates a more convivial atmosphere. People stay longer, and if there's a dance floor, they get thirstier. At a popular suburban bar with a small disco floor, for instance, fewer people can dance so more people drink. Slow songs often lead to especially fast drinking, probably because people sit one out to tie one on, he said.

Even the lyrics of the songs in bars can subtly encourage alcohol abuse, Schaefer said. Songs about people who feel their lives are outside their own control are quite common in country western music, for example. This feeling has been shown to be characteristic of alcoholics. "The jukebox is a real mood selecter," Schaefer said.

Other forms of entertainment encourage excessive drinking too, mostly because people stay longer at the bar. A "club" atmosphere with pinball machines or a bartender throwing dice with patrons for jukebox money are examples.

Bar lighting can affect drinking levels too, Schaefer said. A dark, intimate bar encourages more drinking — unless it has candlelight, which seems to persuade people to behave themselves. "A singles bar has to be light enough for people to cruise effectively and dark enough for them to overlook the faults," Schaefer said. Especially dark bars encourage rendezvouses. Lighting is even used as a sales signal by the bartender — most people order a new drink when the lights are dimmed, for Happy Hour, or any other reason.

The bar's decorations and traffic flow can create different drinking moods too. Country western bars probably create the highest risk for problem drinking. "The macho bars with action pictures of calf-roping and rodeos seem to encourage men to act like hard-drinking cowboys," he said. Even the slang reflects this. "You cut out a gal when you pick her up there," Schaefer said.

The richer decor of suburban bars is less risky, unless the bar itself is laid out in a horseshoe pattern. "This layout is associated with the highest serving rate. Two or three bartenders serve people who are cruising for a long time," Schaefer said.

A bar that's too crowded will not boost drinking or hold customers, he said. Bartenders sometimes deliberately thin a crowd by talking to a few people until others give up and leave. "A too-empty bar is worse, though. Bartenders have to talk a lot to hold a slowly growing crowd."

Bartenders influence drinking considerably and some take their responsibilities seriously, Schaefer commented, although they are most concerned with keeping the peace and making money. As a part of their training in how to mix drinks, they should be taught how to spot and refer problem drinkers. "If I were a bartender," he said, "I'd want the customers to come back more frequently but to drink less. This keeps them as alive, healthy customers."

People who want to stay this way themselves should choose their bars carefully, Schaefer said, adding a few rules for safe drinking: Go for recreation, not just drinking. Alternate alcoholic and nonalcoholic drinks, especially if you're thirsty from dancing. Hold the alcohol to two drinks an hour, and choose bars without the decorations, music and other features that encourage you to drink excessively.

Waste Disposal Site Urged In MN. By MACI

Win Borden, president of the Minnesota association of commerce and industry, recently announced that the association will ask the 1980 Legislature to make a final decision on how a hazardous waste disposal site will be sited within Minnesota without delay.

The MACI board of directors, meeting in Brainerd, approved a resolution urging that a decision be made on a disposal site in Minnesota to "avoid severe economic consequences to the people, commerce and industry of Minnesota." No public disposal sites exist in the state at this time.

June 21, 1979 the Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA) promulgated rules governing the generation, transportation and disposal of hazardous wastes.

United States environmental protection agency (EPA) has proposed and will soon establish similar regulations.

Both agencies are involved in closing existing facilities or prohibiting them from accepting hazardous waste materials. But neither is actively pursuing any program for the development of any new hazardous waste disposal sites.

Under existing hazardous waste definitions, hundreds of businesses in Minnesota are affected by the rules and regulations, yet no means exist for compliance, except to ship waste materials out of state at great cost. As federal rules go into effect, sites in other states will be reluctant to accept hazardous wastes from outside sources, and the problem will intensify without legislative intervention.

Without prompt action by the legislature, Borden said, "there exists the danger of severe economic and environmental damage in Minnesota. We cannot let that happen."

Amendment To Identify Laws About Energy

An amendment offered by Senator Rudy Boschwitz and accepted by the senate's energy committee in floor action as part of legislation creating an energy mobilization board, would require the board to report, by Dec. 31, 1982, all federal laws and regulations that may significantly hinder the completion of energy-producing projects.

"Once the compilation was made," explained Boschwitz, "it would be up to congress to decide through legislation which of the laws and regulations are dispensable and should be eliminated.

"If we're going to get rid of red tape, the first step is to identify it."

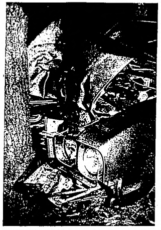
He said there was no doubt in his mind that the majority of laws and regulations dealing with construction of energy projects are constructive and necessary.

"What I'm concerned with is the dead wood, the laws which are duplicative, inconsistent, obsolete and-or obviously unreasonable," he added, "and the irrational and senseless regulations about which we all hear horror stories.

"The very act of creating a mobilization board is recognition of the fact that nothing is moving very fast with the production of new energy. That recognition inevitably leads to a second — that the lack of movement is tied to a complexity of government regulations which have become stifling.

"So, we are now creating a board to fight through the process. This is merely a band-aid proposition. We must also act to eventually remove the need for this strange dilemma of one government agency fighting against others, against the system.

"My amendment is designed to change the system so that it can work without any special boards to help it along," Boschwitz concluded.



EXTENSIVE DAMAGE to this car but only minor injuries to the occupants happened about 12:40 a.m. Thursday. Driven by Jeffrey Kosel, 19, of Thief River Falls, the car was traveling west on Fourth street and attempting a left turn on State avenue when it went over the curb and struck a large tree. Kosel received a bloody nose and bruises and a passenger, Mark Weibolt, 18, also of Thief River Falls, received facial lacerations. Both were treated and released at Northwestern hospital. The accident is under investigation by the Thief River Falls police department.

Fed Predicts Strong Economy For District

Economy of the Ninth Federal reserve district, consisting of Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota, northwestern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, will be stronger than that of the nation at least through June of 1980. In its latest forecast, the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis predicts that in the year ending next June employment will grow faster in the region than in the nation. It also predicts that inflation during this period will be about the same in the region and the nation.

According to the bank, regional employment will grow at three per cent annual rate in this period. This is about the rate the region is now experiencing, but is two percentage points faster than the predicted national growth. Inflation in the region, as indicated by the Minneapolis, St. Paul consumer price index, will be about 11 per cent, slightly lower than it is now.

Judging from the most recent data, two particularly strong sectors of the regional economy could be construction and manufacturing. The cumulative total of construction contract awards for 1979 through July was 57 per cent higher than the corresponding 1978 figures. Manufacturers in the district have also reported strong, sustained growth: sales increases of 15 per cent in the second quarter.

The forecast does not take into account the grain shippers' strike that halted crop shipments through Duluth and Superior for several months. The bank believes, however, that the strike is likely to have only a minor effect on the economy of the region as a whole, although it will lower the incomes of some farmers.

Objectives Set By Legislative Campaign Group

Establishment of objectives took place when the DFL campaign coordinating committee for House District 1-B met for its organizational meeting recently at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls. Lowell Enerson of Oklee is chairman of the committee.

Functions established by the committee are to provide assistance for potential candidates to meet the public and to introduce their qualities and expertise in the role of an effective legislator, in order to attain DFL endorsement. Plans for future fund-raisers were also discussed.

The coordinating committee determined that it will not endorse nor limit the number of candidates. Some interest reportedly is being shown by potential candidates and the committee urges others in the legislative district who are considering running for the House seat vacated by Rep. John Corbid to contact members of the group.

Joining Enerson on the committee are Dave Lundeen, Red Lake county; Fran Stromberg, Pennington county; Francis Bergeron, Marshall county; and Faith Rud, Polk county.

All potential candidates, DFL party workers and others interested are encouraged to attend a campaign skills workshop to be held October 27 at the student union at Bemidji state university from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. The program includes advice and discussions on deciding to run, committee organization, endorsement and caucus-convention procedure, campaign work, research, fund-raising, scheduling, voter registration, candidate contacts, voter survey and get out the vote campaigns.

Also covered will be issues for the '80s, energy and agriculture, energy and inflation, women and political power and delegate selection. For more information call 612-827-5421 or any of the committee members for coordinating of rides.

Next meeting of the campaign coordinating committee will be held at 8 p.m. November 7 at 903 Duluth av. N. in Thief River Falls.

Extension Of Seaway Use Is Being Explored

Senator Rudy Boschwitz says he will ask fellow senators from states bordering the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence seaway to unite in pushing for at least a two-week extension of the winter shipping season this year.

Boschwitz, who met Tuesday with David Oberlin, director of the Seaway development corporation, said calls to Minnesota farm groups and grain companies reveal a "clear-cut and compelling" need for the extension.

"The midwest's agricultural sector has suffered extensively this year due to transportation problems caused by the Duluth port strike. We must now take compensatory action to offset at least part of that damage, estimated at up to $1 billion," stated Boschwitz.

"Extending the seaway's season depends, of course, on Canadian cooperation since the river flows through that country for a large part. Canada would also incur costs on providing the necessary ice breakers and tugs.

"Further, power plants along the seaway would suffer a certain reduction in their production capacity while the ice breakers were going through the smooth layers of ice they cause to form along the base of their dams.

"However, these costs must be measured against the gains of increased exporting time. Since Canada is presently facing a lag in getting its grain to Thunder Bay, their port of shipping on the Great Lakes, this year an extension would also be to Canada's benefit.

In addition to asking for the cooperation of fellow Senators, I am also contracting the administration to emphasize the need of the midwest for this extension and to ask them to stronly convey to Canada the benefits both countries would gain," he concluded.

BN Will Add 2,100 New Cars To Hopper Fleet

Burlington Northern railroad has taken delivery of the first of 2,100 hopper cars being purchased this fall and next year at a total cost of $90 million.

Thomas J. Lamphier, president of BN's transportation division, said the first contingent of new jumbo covered hoppers now rolling off the assembly line at a manufacturing facility near Chicago will be put into grain service across the BN system.

"Worldwide demand for American grain continues to grow, and U.S. farm production is at near-record levels. That presents an enormous logistical channenge to railroads that haul grain," Lamphier said.

Burlington Northern, the nation's number one grain-hauling railroad, has spent about $150 million since 1970 for 6,400 covered hopper cars, he said. This year, the company leased an additional 700 cars to help with the 1979 harvest.

The cost of hopper cars used to haul grain has almost doubled in the last five years, Lamphier noted, and now averages some $42,000 each.

Lamphier said grain hauling difficulties created by strong demand and large grain supplies have been aggravated in recent months by other problems. A strike by elevator workers at Great Lakes terminals caused major bottlenecks in grain shipping, he said, and export elevators on the west coast have been clogged with incoming grain because of heavy grain movements and a lack of ocean shipping.

"One way to help ease the grain transportation crunch is the addition of grain cars," Lamphier said. "Another is to make the best use of those cars."

One development that is improving car utilization, he said, is the use of grain unit trains — fast, efficient trains made up entirely of hoppers that shuttle from production areas to consumption and export points.

BN is also cooperating with grain shippers to form "matching trains," with shippers providing half the needed cars, Lamphier said.

"In addition to these steps, we are working even harder to increase the efficiency of our routine car-handling operations, to maintain our role in hauling as much grain by rail as we can." Last year, Burlington Northern moved some 775 million bushels of grain from the 2,500 elevators it serves.

"In this decade, U.S. grain exports more than doubled," he said, "and in the next five years we may see another billion-bushels-a-year increase."

TRF Down, Not Out

Friday's disappointing performance in a 28-22 loss to Fergus Falls was a blow to the Thief River Falls Northwest Athletic Conference championship hopes, but it wasn't a knock-out punch. The Prowlers are still very much in the thick of the NWAC football race heading into a mid-week game at East Grand Forks Wednesday.

It's a three-way struggle now between Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Crookston for that coveted conference title and the post-season Class A state playoff berth that comes with it. And at this point, none of the three challengers really appear to have an edge.

An argument could be made for Crookston since the Pirates are 2-0 in the NWAC. But they have the unenviable task of facing a Bemidji team this week that mauled East Grand Forks 33-8 Friday behind a 600-yard offensive assault.

Bemidji has the best personnel in the conference, but the Lumberjacks, after their recent 22-21 upset loss to Thief River Falls, can not gain a post-season spot if the Prowlers finish the year with wins over East Grand Forks and Crookston.

Whoever wins Friday's Crookston-Bemidji match-up will be assured of at least a title tie. But Thief River Falls — providing the Prowlers get by East Grand Forks — can be in position to share the NWAC crown with a victory over Crookston in the 1979 season finale here Fri., Oct. 26.

A Bemidji win at Crookston Friday, followed by Thief River Falls wins over East Grand Forks and Crookston, would produce a title tie between the Lumberjacks and Prowlers, with Thief River Falls getting the playoff berth because of the head-to-head results.

Bemidji can take an outright NWAC crown with a victory over Crookston to go along with a Thief River Falls loss in one of its final two starts. The Lumberjacks close out the season with a non-conference game against Grand Rapids.

A Crookston triumph Friday over Bemidji would still require a victory over Thief River Falls the following week for a conference championship and a state playoff berth if the Prowlers defeat East Grand Forks.

All of that means this week's Thief River Falls vs. East Grand Forks and Bemidji vs. Crookston ball games are the most important contests of the year. Then depending on those results, the Thief River Falls vs. Crookston finale could be the most important game of all.

Miscellaneous

+Detroit Lakes tennis coach Gary Kludt, after his heavily favored Lakers struggled past Bemidji 3-2 in the finals of the Region 8AA North Half team tennis tournament last week, told Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune, "We played on their home court, played absolutely our worst tennis of the season and were extremely lucky to come up a 3-2 winner." Detroit Lakes to have played Bemidji on a neutral court, but weather forced the meet to an indoor facility and that was Bemidji's Nymore arena, a small, slippery building with a very low roof. "That's like being invited to play pingpong in the neighbor's basement," said Kludt, "he knows where the furnace pipes are and how to avoid them. It was my own fault. I agreed to play there, even suggested it, rather than play in 40-degree weather outside with a 20-mile-an-hour north wind." Detroit Lakes was to face St. Cloud Apollo in the Region 8AA championship match today (Monday) in St. Cloud's Augusta tennis facility.

+Cliff Morlan apparently wasn't convinced Thief River Falls' recent 22-21 victory over Bemidji was a true indication of the Prowlers' strength. The Bemidji columnist wrote, "Everything seemed rather cut and dried for us (Bemidji) to win this year and gain the playoffs. TRF really opened up the race with its homecoming win over our kids. Having defeated Bemidji, it puts TRF kind of in the driver's seat," he added, but also predicted (and, as it turns out, correctly), "Thief River will probably lose down at Fergus Falls."

Prowlers Lose Mistake-Filled NWAC Game To Otters 28-22

Fergus Falls turned out to be Disaster City for the Lincoln high school football team Friday as the Prowlers fumbled away a 28-22 Northwest Athletic Conference decision to the Otters.

The game wasn't a masterpiece. Cool weather and hard hits produced 13 fumbles, eight of which changed hands. There were also three interceptions and 11 penalties in the mistake-marred game. Thief River Falls fumbled six times — losing five of them — threw two interceptions and accumulated six penalties.

"Mistake after mistake," fumed Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens when the game, prolonged by a 28-point fourth quarter, finally ended. "We fumbled and fumbled and fumbled. You can't do that and expect to win. It's really a shame we had to lose it that way."

The outcome put a crimp in Thief River Falls' NWAC title plans which had developed following a 22-21 upset win over defending conference champion Bemidji a week earlier. Playing Wednesday because of MEA scheduling, the Prowlers needs a victory at East Grand Forks to retain hopes of a title tie.

Friday's errors began immediately—when Fergus Falls quarterback Phil Hatchner tossed a first series option pitch behind his halfback that Thief River Falls defensive back Jim Thompson recovered at the Fergus Falls 41.

But the Prowlers matched that faux pas moments later when they failed to score after getting a first down at the Fergus Falls three-yard line. A mix-up on the count snap cost the Prowlers five yards and a fourth down Jeff Ulrich swing pass to runningback Bill Jury from the four was tipped away by defensive lineman Rob Einerson.

Fergus Falls went nowhere, but a 26-yard punt turned into a bonanza when the ball took a backwards bounce and glanced off the back of unsuspecting Tom Bjorkman's leg — making it a fumble of sorts. Einerson was there for the recovery at the Fergus Falls 37.

Eleven plays later Fergus Falls led 7-0 as Darwin Boe took a pitch around the right side for a four-yard touchdown run. John Mielke kicked the first of his four conversion attempts two plays into the second quarter.

Four plays later Thief River Falls was staring at a 14-0 deficit when Jury, after catching an Ulrich flare pass behind the line of scrimmage, lost the ball on a hard hit. Mielke recovered at the Thief River Falls 15 and on the very next play Boe broke two tackles to reach the corner of the end zone on a pitch around the left side.

Finest offensive drive of the night enabled the Prowlers to narrow the gap to 14-8 at halftime as they took the ensuing kickoff and marched 62 yards in 20 time-consuming plays. Ulrich scored on fourth down from the two with just 49 seconds on the clock as he carried the option to the right, found a space and slipped into the end zone. Jury swept right for the conversion points.

Mistakes on both sides created but also wiped out scoring opportunities until the Otters doubled their lead in a 55-second span to start the fourth quarter.

A 35-yard Hatchner-to-Alan Barry pass play was the big gainer on an eight-play, 66-yard Fergus Falls scoring drive after Thief River Falls' lone punt of the night. Dan Kowalski scored the touchdown from one yard out, sliding off left tackle with 10:24 remaining in the game.

Brian Culkins fumbled away the kickoff at the Thief River Falls 19 and the Otters turned the game into a rout when Hatchner, who sparkled as the option quarterback, went left, read the option perfectly, gave a nifty fake to the inside and went wide for a 12-yard touchdown run with 9:29 left.

Hatchner carried the ball 14 times, the most carries he's had all year, and kept the Thief River Falls defense off balance all night. "It's the option," explained Fergus Falls coach Don Stueve. "If they give it to us, we take it."

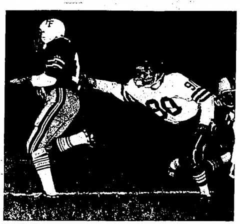
Thief River Falls made a face-saving rally at the end, scoring twice in 22 seconds, before running out of time.

A Greg Harder fumble recovery at the Thief River Falls 40 was followed im*mediately by the game's best* play, a 60-yard touchdown run by fullback John Dillon off a screen pass over the middle. It was a beautiful run as Dillon read his blocks to the left side, then cut back against the grain. Dave Waale's conversion kick was far short, making it 28-14 with just 46 seconds on the lock.

Fergus Falls' John Gervais fumbled away the on-side kickoff after a short return and the Prowlers scored in two plays. A reverse halfback option pass by Bjorkman to Ulrich, the quarterback, gained 20 yards to the Fergus Falls five. Ulrich then drilled a pass over the middle to Dillon for the touchdown and hit Bjorkman with a conversion points, making it a suddenly interesting 28-22 contest with 24 seconds to go.

However, the second try at an on-side kick wasn't as successful and Fergus Falls ran out the clock as Hatchner simply sat down with the ball.

Stueve wasn't about to turn down the win, of course, but he indicated he wasn't pleased with the performance by the Otters who fumbled seven times. "That's typical for us; nothing new there," he said. "All I know is that they had us on the ropes at halftime. We stopped them a couple of times in the third quarter when we had to."



SCORING WHAT PROVED to be the game-winning touchdown, Fergus Falls quarterback Phil Hatchner avoided Thief River Falls defensive back Brian Culkins and went 12 yards on a smartly executed option to the left during Friday's high school football game played at Fergus Falls. The fourth quarter touchdown provided the Otters with a 28-8 lead and they managed to hold off a late flurry by the Prowlers to win the Northwest Athletic Conference game 28-22.

Lakers Sweep Top Four Spots In Tennis Meet

Detroit Lakers performers took the top four spots Friday in the 1979 Region 8AA North Half individual tennis tournament played in Fargo-Moorhead facilities.

The Lakers' Ann Pettit and Bonnie Berenz met in the finals of the singles competition where the top-seeded Pettit defeated the third-seeded Berenz 7-6, 6-3.

An all-Detroit Lakes doubles final found second-seeded Jane Ries and Val Schaleben beating unseeded Chris Kunz and Lori Berenz 6-4, 6-4.

Joining the Lakers in the Region 8AA individual tournament at St. Cloud Tuesday will be singles players Beth Rakke, the number two seed from Bemidji, and Babe Sullivan of Crookston, the number four seed in the 16-player North Half event.

Only three North Half doubles teams advance to the Region 8AA tournament, with Crookston's top-seeded Tracy Smith and Joan Thomforde getting by Thief River Falls' Patty Langlie and Michelle Olson 6-2, 3-6, 6-4 in the important third place match.

Langlie and Olson pulled off a major upset in the doubles quarterfinals with a 6-3, 5-7, 6-4 victory over third-seeded Jenny Deweese and Betsy Brendemus of Bemidji, then met Ries and Schaleben in the semifinals where the Detroit Lakes duo won 4-6, 6-0, 6-4.

"We weren't that far away with any of our kids," said Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson who also used Pam Wassink and Nancy Swanson in singles, along with Leslie Williamson and Cindy Liden in doubles. "All of our kids played well, and that doubles team that reached the semifinals played very, very well. They all gave it their best shot."

Unbeaten LHS Sophomores To End Home Slate

Unbeaten in four starts, the Lincoln high school sophomore football team will play its final home game of the 1979 season tonight (Monday) in a 7 p.m. contest against Grand Forks Central.

Thief River Falls was a 26-16 winner at Crookston Thursday when Tom Ose scored on a pair of five-yard runs. Kent Kainz and Jeff Imgrund also scored, covering 15 and seven yards, respectively. Jim Dillon added a two-point conversion for the winners who held Crookston without a first down until the fourth quarter.

Crookston trailed only 16-8 at halftime thanks to a kickoff return for a touchdown. They scored again in the fourth quarter and added a safety at the end.

Little Prowler Swim Meet Is Set Tuesday

Second annual Little Prowler Invitational swimming meet will be held Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in the Franklin middle school pool for junior high school age members of the 1979 Thief River Falls girls swimming team.

About 30 young swimmers, coached by Nancy Fellman, will take part in the event that will be officiated by members of the Thief River Falls varsity squad.

Happiness Is The Time…

PAULA KERTZ of the Prowlers sent the ball over the net Saturday against East Grand Forks in the championship match of the second annual Thief River Falls Northern Lights invitational volleyball tournament played in the Lincoln high school gym. LeAnn Paetznick (10) of the Prowlers looked on. The Prowlers beat the Green Wave 11-18, 18-7 and 18-15 to successfully defend their tournament title.

Volleyball Tournament . . .

Lincoln Girls Defend Crown

Benefiting from East Grand Forks' upset victory over pre-tournament favorite Roseau in the semifinals, Thief River Falls successfully defended its title Saturday in the second annual Northern Lights invitational high school volleyball tournament played in the Lincoln high school gym.

The Green Wave pulled off a major surprise by outlasting the 17-0 Rams 8-18, 18-15, 18-16 in the most exciting match of the day-long tournament.

"That was a big surprise," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss before her team took the floor for its championship match. "In the back of my mind I'm relieved that we're not playing Roseau. They beat us twice, and it's sort of a psychological thing for us."

Thief River Falls, earlier winners over Warroad 18-4, 18-4 and Crookston 18-6, 19-17, had its hands full against upstart East Grand Forks in the 8 p.m. finals.

East Grand Forks, after trailing 10-6, burst in front 17-11 behind the serving of Sue Thompson and won the first game 18-11 on a Dawn Spitsberg spike.

Little-used junior Barb Pfeifer turned out to be the second game star as Thief River Falls evened things at 1-1 with an 18-7 victory. East Grand Forks trailed only 8-7 when Pfeifer entered the game as a server. The Green Wave couldn't handle her offerings as Pfeifer served 10 game-ending points.

"In volleyball, you can do it two ways," noted Stauss. "You can play six all the time, or you can substitute and use the bench. I like to let the six play. But it's nice to know that I've got kids like Barb on the bench that can come in and do the job. She was terrific."

Kathy Walker, one of the six, served Thief River Falls to a 5-0 start in the third game. It was still a five-point margin when a Wendy Noreen spike broke East Grand Forks service and Pfeifer was again called upon to serve. She got just two points this time, though, as the Prowlers maintained a 13-8 spread.

East Grand Forks narrowed it to 13-11 before Noreen served the Prowlers to within one point of a title, 17-11. Deb Cummings serving tightened the see-saw contest to 17-15 before Deb Rud misfired a spike and the Prowlers finally picked up that 18th point.

"Getting that 18th point is sometimes tough," mentioned Stauss. "It's really an emotional game. They're so up for that 18th point, and when they don't get it, they really get down."

Stauss was satisfied with her team's play throughout most of the day that started for the Prowlers at 8 a.m. "I was really pleased with our first game against Warroad," he said. "We set some goals and we were able to reach them. Crookston gave us a scare, but they came through."

Thief River Falls' three-game invitational sweep lifted the Prowlers' overall record to 11-6.

First round — TRF def. Warroad 18-4, 18-4; Crookston def. Mahnomen 18-8, 18-13; EGF def. Greenbush 18-9, 18-5; Roseau def. Bemidji 18-5, 18-2.

Semifinals — TRF def. Crookston 18-6, 19-17; EGF def. Roseau 8-18, 18-15, 18-16.

Finals — TRF def. EGF 11-18, 18-7, 18-15.

Third — Roseau def. Crookston 18-16, 18-16.

Consolation Bracket

Semifinals — Mahnomen def. Warroad 18-7, 18-14; Greenbush def. Bemidji 18-4, 18-10.

Finals — Mahnomen def. Greenbush 16-18, 18-7, 18-1.

CELEBRATING a fumble recover at the Thief River Falls 15-yard line was Fergus Falls defensive lineman John Mielke (65), with teammate Erick Erlandson (25) coming up to offer congratulations. The Otters scored on the very next play for a 14-0 lead in the Friday night Northwest Athletic Conference football game they eventually won 28-22. Mielke was 4-for-4 in the extra point kicking department as the Otters celebrated homecoming with a win.

Brainerd, Penalties Tip Northmen 32-28

A school-record 28-point offensive performance wasn't enough Saturday as the penalty-plagued Northland community college football team lost a 32-28 MJCAA Northern Division game at Brainerd.

Demone Sorensen's fourth touchdown of the game, an eight-yard run at the end of a 78-yard drive, finally put the Red Raiders on top to stay with just 1:25 left in the see-saw offensive battle.

"It was an incredible football game," said Northland coach Irv Smith. "Our team played very proud. Our offense looked really good and our defense, even though we had some problems, hung in there."

But the Northmen turned out to be their own worst enemy as they collected 17 penalties for 145 yards. "The story of the game is penalties," noted Smith. They hurt so bad that we had about 150 offensive yards called back."

Mike Cowart was again the offensive star for the Northmen as the freshman tailback carried the ball 35 times for 162 yards and two touchdowns. He had another touchdown called back on a penalty. A 21-18 leader at halftime, Northland also received scoring from Morice Hendricks on a 60-yard first quarter punt return and from Ray Barnett on a 42-yard second quarter pass from Tony Smith.

Cowart's second touchdown, a two-yard run that capped a 78-yard march, supplied Northland with a 28-24 lead at the start of the fourth quarter.

With about nine minutes left, Northland started another offensive assault that led to a fourth and one call from the Brainerd 35. Tony Smith broke free to the Brainerd eight-yard line, but the first down was lost on a holding penalty and the Northmen were forced to punt the ball away.

Starting from their own 22 with five minutes on the clock, the Red Raiders moved the length of the field for Sorensen's final score.

But that wasn't the end of the excitement. Northland turned around and reached the Brainerd 25 with 25 seconds left on a 20-yard Tony Smith pass to Jeff Olson before a final pass picked off at the Brainerd five with seven seconds to go.

"The turning point was that holding call," pointed out Smith. "We're going to set a record for penalties this year." So critical were the penalties, said Smith, that a pair of Northland infractions turned a fourth - and - 40 Brainerd situation into a first down that eventually led to the second Red Raider touchdown.

Sorensen and flanker Alex Griffith both had a field day against a suddenly porous Northland defense. Sorensen finished with 26 points and 187 yards on 32 carries while Griffith caught eight passes for 137 yards.

"We couldn't stop two plays — the flanker drag off the rollout, and the quick pitch to the short side," explained Smith.

Northland, now 2-4, will break from MJCAA competition this week to play a 2 p.m. game Saturday at Bismarck, N.D. It's the only no conference game of the season for the Northmen who will end the season at home against Golden Valley Lutheran Oct. 27 and at Crookston Nov. 3.

TIGHT END Jon Pinkerton of Thief River Falls hauled a Fergus Falls defender with him as he picked up additional yards after catching a Jeff Ulrich pass that was good for a 14-yard gain to the Otters' 10-yard line late in Friday's NWAC football game played at Fergus Falls. Thief River Falls' conference record slipped to 1-1 as the Otters pulled out a 28-22 triumph. The Prowlers will play at East Grand Forks Wednesday.

LHS Girls Swim In Brainerd Meet

A trip that started at 5 a.m. and didn't end until 3 the following morning proved unproductive for the Lincoln high school swimming team, according to coach John Hustad.

The Prowlers swam poorly, said Hustad, in an invitational meet at Brainerd Saturday where Bloomington Lincoln finished with 306 points, Brainerd 244, Stillwater 191, International Falls 172, Thief River Falls 167 and Minneapolis Southwest 129.

"It was a poor performance overall," noted Hustad. "They swam off their times. We just didn't race. We didn't make those improvements I was looking for."

Thief River Falls had only two medal winners as Brenda Lund won the diving competition with 337.05 points and the 200-yard medley relay team of Shari McGann, Franki Kuyath, Joan Glauque and Betsie Hallstrom finished third in 2:05.49.

Amid the disappointments, Hustad said, "The highlight of the meet for us, was a 10-second time drop by Mary Geatz in the 500-yard freestyle were she swam an eighth place 6:25. That's a really good time; a good improvement," said Hustad.

Thief River Falls returns to dual meet competition Thursday with a 6 p.m. visit to Fergus Falls.

State Tournaments Start October 24

First of seven Minnesota State High School League sponsored fall sports season state tournament events being held during a six-week span will begin October 24 when the sixth annual state Class AA and Class A girls tennis tournaments get underway.

Following the girls tennis event, which will be conducted over a four-day period in St. Paul's Rein tennis clubs, the eighth annual state football playoffs will commence November 2, with quarterfinal games scheduled that night and on November 3. Semifinal games are set for November 8 and 9 with title contests slated for November 16 in all five classes of competition. Sites for all games will be determined when qualifying teams are known.

State Class AA and Class A boys and girls cross country meets will add to the excitement of those early November days when those running affairs take place on the University of Minnesota golf course in Falcon Heights. Class AA competition is scheduled for Friday, November 2, with the Class A races set for Saturday, November 3. The boys will run on both days beginning at 1 p.m., with girls races slated to start at 2:30. Boys' cross country has a 37-year history of state meets while the girls will be entering their fifth year of state competition.

State soccer tournament games will follow the next week with semifinal play scheduled for November 6 and finals action on November 8. Now in its sixth year of state tourney competition, the event will once again take place at Richfield high school.

Sixth annual state Class AA and Class A girls volleyball tournaments are also on the November schedule. Scheduled for the Met Center in Bloomington on Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17, that event will bring together eight region champions in each class for three rounds of championship series action.

Competition in state boys gymnastics and state girls swimming and diving round out the fall sports season state tournament schedule. Gymnastics activity is scheduled for November 30 and December 1 at Edina West high school while Cooke Hall pool on the campus of the University of Minnesota will be the site on those same two days for swimming and diving competition. Historically, the boys gymnastics state meet has a 37-year existence while the swimming and diving meet for girls has been held 29 previous years.

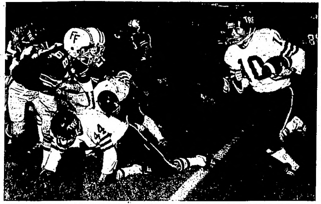
DNR Reminder Is Issued To Deer Hunters

Minnesota deer hunters were reminded by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources that they must purchase their licenses no later than Nov. 2, the day before the firearms season opens. This includes bow and arrow, muzzle loader and firearms deer hunters.

Buck-only deer hunting opens on Nov. 3 statewide this year. Under a recently passed law, licenses must be purchased the day before the opening date.

Prior to this year, licenses could be purchased as late as the opening day of the season. The practice led to abuses, said enforcement officials, with hunters shooting extra deer and then buying licenses for relatives or friends to account for the illegally taken animals.



BLOCKS THROWN BY runningbacks Bill Jury (44) and John Dillon (30) enabled Thief River Falls' Tom Bjorkman to pick up a first down with a four-yard run on third-and-three from near midfield before Fergus Falls defenders Rob Einerson (68) and Mick Johnson (20) came over to make the stop at the start of the second half of Friday's high school football game played at Fergus Falls. The Otters won the mistake-filled Northwest Athletic Conference contest 28-22. The Prowlers, 3-4 for the year, will be playing a Wednesday game at East Grand Forks this week because of the MEA scheduling. Thief River Falls closes out its 1979 season Fri., Oct. 26, against Crookston on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

MEA Convention Alters Area Football Schedules This Week

Because of the annual Minnesota Education Association (MEA) convention later this week, most area high school football teams have altered their schedules, breaking away from the traditional Friday contests.

In the North Tri County Conference, Tuesday games will feature Middle River at Oklee, Erskine at Goodridge, Grygla at Plummer, Mentor at Gonvick and Clearbrook at McIntosh-Winger.

Top of the State Conference schedule will find Marshall County Central at Roseau and Warroad at Stephen in Tuesday games, Lake of the Woods at Karlstad Wednesday and Hallock at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday.

Key game in that grouping is Tuesday's Middle River-Oklee clash. The Skippers, 6-1 for the year following a 28-6 victory at Grygla Friday, harbor hopes of a title tie in the North Tri County Conference. Unbeaten since a season-opening 22-6 loss to defending conference champion Gonvick, Middle River hopes to close out the season with wins over Oklee and Clearbrook, then pull for McIntosh-Winger to end Gonvick's unbeaten status in a season-ending match-up.

In other Friday North Tri County Conference games, Plummer held off Goodridge 24-16, McIntosh-Winger got by Oklee 18-10, Gonvick blasted Erskine 40-0 and Mentor edged Clearbrook 28-26.

Top of the State Conference scores found Stephen picking up a key 6-0 decision over Argyle, Marshall County Central stopped Karlstad 12-7, Warroad shut out East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 21-0 and Roseau handled Hallock 30-6.

Plummer 24
Goodridge 16

Quarterback Brad Rosten, playing for the first time since suffering an injury in the second game of the season, scored two touchdowns and passed for two more Friday to lead Plummer to a 24-16 North Tri County Conference win at Goodridge.

The Cardinals rolled up a 24-0 lead as Rosten scored on a pair of three-yard runs and threw touchdown passes covering 25 yards to Jon Swanson and 19 yards to Kevin Malwitz.

"We played real well in the third quarter," explained Plummer coach Gary Brantl who watched his Cardinals double a 12-0 edge after intermission.

Rory Haugen scored on an eight-yard run in the third quarter for Goodridge and Carroll Bishop pulled a Neil Race pass away from a Plummer defensive back for a 50-yard touchdown play with 14 seconds left in the game.

Rosten completed only five of 15 pass attempts, but had those two touchdowns among his 64 yards. Alan Mattison led a Plummer ground game that produced 186 yards with 114 yards on 21 carries.

Malwitz, Swanson and Jay Brekke were singled out for their defensive play for the Cardinals who won their second game in seven outings.

Goodridge fell to 1-6 with the loss and Huskies coach Rick Nelson wasn't happy with his team's performance. "We made about five mental errors that really killed us," he said, "and there's no excuse for them."

The Huskies played without Mark Grabowska, a mainstay on the Goodridge defensive line and the Huskies' fullback. Grabowska suffered a deep thigh bruise in practice Wednesday and will be lost to the team for the rest of the season. To make matters worse, Bob Wayne, Grabowska's replacement in the line, was also injured.

McIntosh-Winger . . 18
Oklee 10

McIntosh-Winger stayed in the thick of the North Tri County Conference football race with a 18-10 victory over visiting Oklee Friday.

The Scots opened up a 12-0 lead after a scoreless first quarter when Cameron Burslie caught a 50-yard touchdown pass from Todd Haugen and Coby Burslie scored from the three.

Oklee pulled within 12-8 at halftime on a four-yard Mike Kirkpatrick run and his two-point conversion. The Bobcats narrowed the gap even more when defensive end Brad Gunderson tackled the McIntosh-Winger punter in the end zone after a high center snap. The two-point safety made it 12-10 to start the fourth quarter.

But with about three minutes left, Coby Burslie added his second short yardage touchdown run of the night to ice the game.

"I was disappointed in our running game," mentioned Oklee coach Dale Svaren who could only come up with 49 yards on the ground when he added up the Bobcats' stats. "I was satisfied with our defensively play, but they (Scots) did a tremendous job defending against our running game."

The loss, the second straight for the Bobcats, dropped Oklee to 4-3 for the year.

Marshall Co. Central 12
Karlstad 7

Scott Peters capped a pair of Marshall County Central offensive drives with short touchdown runs in the second and fourth quarters Friday as the Nordics got by Karlstad 12-7 in a Top of the State Conference football game played at Karlstad.

The Nordics defense gave up yardage but no points until Karlstad's Ron Helling scored on a nine-yard pass from Gene LaDoucer in the final minute of the game.

"They moved the ball against us all night, but we stopped them inside the 20," explained Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart, remembering an 82-yard Karlstad drive in the first quarter that produced no points. "Both teams moved the ball," he noted.

Marshall County Central accumulated 219 yards worth of offense, 186 on the ground where Cordy Collin rushed for 89 yards and Jeff Johnson added 73. Karlstad finished with 221 yards, 169 on the ground.

"We didn't do as well on defense as we would have liked," admitted Gebhart, "but offensively we did fairly well."

Gebhart still praised the defensive work turned in by Peters at nose guard, Steve Boe at middle linebacker and Brian Skadsem who came up with a key pass interception that led to the Nordics' second touchdown.

Marshall County Central climbed to above .500 with the win at 4-3.

INJURIES HAVE STRUCK the Lincoln high school football team as the Prowlers faced Fergus Falls Friday night without the services of three two-way performers. Dave Odegaard, a halfback and defensive back, and Brian Ranum, an offensive guard and a linebacker, both missed the game with leg injuries and Jim Thompson (40), a wide receiver and defensive back, joined them on the sidelines when he hurt his leg in the first quarter of the Northwest Athletic Conference game played at Fergus Falls. Jon Pinkerton (86) and Dave Kays (54) helped Thompson off the field, accompanied by Thief River Falls head coach Gene Jurgens. The Otters beat the Prowlers 28-22.

Helpers Not Allowed On Moose Hunt

Only those with moose licenses may assist in the hunting of Minnesota's largest big game animal, the Department of Natural Resources said.

DNR enforcement officials said they have received many calls from persons asking if it is permissible to go along with a moose hunting party, even though they themselves may not have a moose license.

They ask if it is all right to hunt other game in the same area as their moose-hunting friends.

Officials said they suspect that many asking the question actually are planning to assist moose hunters in scouting or driving the animals. This is prohibited.

Richard Tarte, enforcement chief, said that to allow such a practice would be unfair to the thousands of persons who applied for a moose license but failed to receive one in the drawing.

He added that under Minnesota law, "Taking" (of game) includes every act or assistance to any other person in taking or attempting to take wild animals.

"Hunting" includes every act of assistance to any person in taking or attempting to take birds or quadrupeds.

Canadian Waterfowl Set For Migration

With a productive nesting season now behind them, waterfowl throughout Saskatchewan and Manitoba are beginning to congregate on traditional staging marshes for the long flight that will take them south to favorite wintering areas far from their summer homes.

The fact that this fall's migration is getting underway later than normal in central Canada can be attributed, in part, to milk September weather and a prolonged summer nesting season according to officials of Ducks Unlimited, North America's largest waterfowl conservation organization.

"Our DU (Canada) field reports indicate that the buildup of staging populations of waterfowl has come about slowly during September and early October," said DU executive vice president Dale E. Whitesell on October 8, "but the first arrival of cold temperatures is quickly going to move those birds now scattered across small ponds into more concentrated populations on larger marshes. What's important to realize is that this later-than-normal staging pattern is being caused in part by the extended nesting season. We're simply pleased that this summer has proven to be a particularly productive one for waterfowl across the central prairies."

According to Whitesell, there has been no significant migratory movement of waterfowl to date out of Saskatchewan. "Even early migrants like pintail and blue-winged teal remain abundant," he said, "but cold weather will soon push broods hatched late in the season from their natal ponds into the traditional staging marshes. Arctic geese have been arriving in the province in good numbers, and our field reports reveal that there is a high proportion of young birds in these populations indicating a successful breeding season across northern nesting areas.

"As for Manitoba, staging populations appear to be near-normal for this time of year onthe large marshes. It's interesting to note, however, that because of the late breeding season there are still large numbers of flightless birds on many of the smaller marshes. The first staging flocks of dabbling ducks actually began appearing in southwestern Manitoba in early September. Flocks dominated by mallards, blue-wings, widgeon and gadwall have increased steadily since then."

Whitesell pointed out that through the milk Canadian September weather has contributed to a belated fall waterfowl migration, it has provided a boost to Ducks Unlimited's habitat restoration program. "Our program this year in central Canada has involved work on 76 waterfowl-habitat-creating projects totalling some 52,874 acres and 513 nesting shoreline miles," said Whitesell. "When up against the pressure of a schedule like that, I'm sure DU (Canada) will take every break from the weather they can get. Meanwhile, we're in the midst of a 1979 fund-raising season here in the U.S. whose momentum is generated by 300,000-plus DU members who want to make sure this fall's waterfowl flight will have nesting homes to return to next spring."

Sportsmen Club Meeting Wed.

Pennington county sportsmen club will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the club house north of Thief River Falls. Lunch will be served and all members and others interested in hunting, fishing and sport shooting are encouraged to attend.

Freshmen To End Season On Tuesday

Lincoln high school freshmen football team, still looking for its first win, will close out its 1979 season Tuesday with a 4 p.m. game at Crookston.

Grand Forks Valley Junior High handed Thief River Falls a 14-12 setback Thursday, dropping Lincoln's recrod to 0-6.

Thief River Falls, trailing 14-6 at halftime, pulled within 14-12 in the fourth quarter on a 14-yard Kerry Wollin pass to Darren Wiskow, but failed for the second time to come up with a completion on a two-point conversion attempt.

Mark Gere passed 60 yards to Lo Aune for the first Thief River Falls score in the second quarter.

DNR Education Program Aiding State Trappers

A program sponsored and conducted by the Minnesota trappers association and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources on trapping ethics and correct trapping procedures has received considerable interest from novice trappers, DNR wildlife officials said.

A series of trapping workshops employing the use of video tapes have been presented in northeastern Minnesota during the past few months and the first workshop in the Twin Cities Metro Area was held on Oct. 3-5 in White Bear Lake.

Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife chief, said the Minnesota trappers association contributed $400 for the purchase of video tape sets so the workshops can be expanded to other areas of the state.

A workshop is divided into six lessons corresponding to the tapes. Topics covered include trapping ethics, trapping laws, basic trapping equipment, trapping safety, trapping sets and fur handling.

Several members of the Minnesota trappers association are coordinating the workshops, Holmes said.

In the trapping ethics lesson, students are instructed to obtain the landowners permission before setting traps and to avoid setting traps where domestic animals may be caught. They are told to check traps every day, set traps to kill quickly, assist farmers having predator problems and to support strict enforcement of regulations.

Said Holmes, "We want beginning trappers to learn proper techniques so that trapping can be carried out humanely, productively and efficiently."

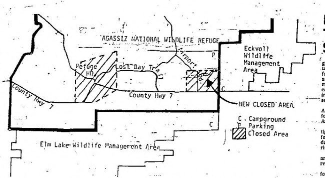
Closed Area At Agassiz Refuge Is Announced

Deer and moose hunters at Agassiz national wildlife refuge should be aware that a new "closed area" has been established this year.

The newly designated area will be permanently closed to deer hunting due to construction of a new refuge maintenance center.

The closed area is on the eastern boundary of the refuge. It extends one mile north along the east boundary to Ditch 194, west past the intersection of Airport road, south to county highway 7 and east along county highway 7 to the east boundary. The area will be clearly marked with signs. The Airport Road will be closed to vehicular traffic.

This new closed area is in addition to the closed area around existing refuge headquarters. These closed areas provide protection for refuge families and for refuge buildings and equipment. A map showing the closed area can be obtained by writing the Refuge Manager, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, Middle River, MN 56737, or calling 218-449-4115.



THIS MAP SHOWS a new "closed area" at Agassiz national wildlife refuge that will be closed to deer and moose hunters during the 1979 season. The area, a popular spot for hunters in the past, will be clearly marked with signs that will also close the airport road to vehicular traffic. The area will be permanently closed to hunting because of the construction.

UND Hockey TV Broadcasts To Start Oct. 26

University of North Dakota hockey home games have been added to Prairie Public Television's Friday and Saturday night schedules. The first broadcast of UND hockey is scheduled for Friday, October 26, when the Fighting Sioux host Colorado College. The teams meet again the following night. Both games will be videotaped and broadcast on the night of the game by KGFE-Grand Forks, KFME-Fargo and KBME-Bismarck.

In weeks to come the fighting Sioux will host Michigan Tech (November 2-3), St. Lawrence (November 16-17), Minnesota (November 30-December 1), Ohio State (December 21-22), Alberta (December 29-30), Notre Dame (January 11-12), Minnesota-Duluth (January 18-19), Denver (February 8-9) and Michigan (February 22-23).

Minnesota-UND games on November 30 and December 1 will be broadcast live.

Two Minnesota Fish Records Are Confirmed

A 30-pound, four-ounce "tiger" muskellunge taken in Deer Lake, Itasca county Aug. 6 is a state record says the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Richard Sternberg, DNR research biologist, said the hybrid tiger musky (a cross between a northern pike and a muskellunge) could also be a world record for 20-pound test line if it is accepted by the fresh water fishing hall of fame.

Using a bucktail lure, Stephen Friberg of Northbrook, Ill., boated the fish and had his catch weighed in Deer River before witnesses. His "record fish application" was notarized as prescribed by new rules laid down by the department this summer.

The muskie was 49 inches long with a girth of 21¾ inches.

A new state record for pink salmon has also been certified by the department, said Sternberg. The two-pound, 9¼-ounce fish was taken in the Arrowhead (Brule) river by Gregory Bambanek of Duluth Sept. 23.

Bambenek used a salmon colored yarn fly on two-pound test line. His fish displaces a one-pound, six-ounce pink salmon taken Sept. 6 by Don Woods, assistant DNR fisheries chief, in Lake Superior near Grand Marais.

Key Forestry Appointments Made By DNR

Two key positions in the Department of Natural Resources forestry division were filled recently according to Ray Hitchcock, forestry director.

Robert E. Hance Jr., 39, has been appointed supervisor of the planning and operations section. Bruce R. ZumBahlen, 38, was named state forest management and policy supervisor.

In his new position, Hance will be responsible for all short and long range forestry planning and for environmental reviews. He will also have responsibility for personnel functions and training activities and will formulate and administer the division's budget and accounting procedures.

Hance has been with the DNR since 1964, most recently as environmental review planner. Prior to this, he served in a variety of forestry positions including environmental studies forester where he coordinated the division's comments and concerns on environmental projects affecting the state's forest lands. He was superintendent of General Andrews forest tree nursery at Willow River from 1968 to 1975 and was district forester at Cook from 1965 to 1968.

A 1964 graduate of the University of Minnesota, Hance holds a B.S. degree in forest resource management.

As supervisor of state forest management and policy, ZumBahlen will direct forest development and timber management on the state's 4.5 million acres of forest lands. His main emphasis will be to intensify forest management as a result of the recent BWCA legislation and to integrate timber management with other department resource goals.

ZumBahlen joined the DNR in 1964 after graduating from the University of Illinois with a B.S. degree in forestry. He has been regional staff forester at Cloquet since 1974, involved mainly with fire control and timber management. Prior to this, he served as regional utilization and marketing forester. From 1968 to 1972, he was area staff forester at Deer River and district forester at Moose Lake from 1965 to 1968.

Colorful Trip

One of the most beautiful trips which the month of October features is on highway 61 down south from Hastings. You travel through Red Wing, Frontanac, Lake City and Wabasha. Drive slowly so that you may enjoy the picture that Mother Nature has painted for you.

Once you see this picture you'll never forget it. The Mississippi river at Wabasha is ablaze with color on each side of the water.

You should have both your gun and your fishing rod with you. Dick Bach of the Wapashaw Resort at Wabasha tells of excellent duck hunting. The wood ducks are the most prevalent. There are mallards and teal as well. Now that you have filled your bag, bring out your fishing rod for the silver bass are hitting on green jigs.

Only the month of October can offer you an experience like this.

More Color

A canoe trip on the Cannon river from Cannon Falls to Welch is an adventure in beauty at this time of year. You may rent a canoe at Cannon Falls. The trip to Welch takes about three hours. Here a bus will pick you up and return you to Cannon Falls. Some people have picnics on the islands on the way to Welch. If you wish you may try your luck at fishing.

Fall Combination

People who combine fishing and hunting at this time of year have found that two kinds of fish and two kinds of ducks are being featured in some areas. Near Lakeville bass and northerns are being taken from Orchard Lake and Lake Marion. The bass are hitting on plastic worms and suckers. Local mallards and wood ducks are in supply for the hunter. At White Bear Lake bass and northerns are biting. Suckers and plastic worms bring in the bass. At Hugo there is some good mallard hunting being reported.

Grand Rapids

Walleye fishing is improving in the Grand Rapids area with the advent of October. A 10-pound walleye was taken by Gene Larson of Hastings in Big Winnie. Leech Lake has produced several nine pounders. Big Balsam Lake provided good bass fishing with a half a dozen bass weighing over five pounds being registered. Little Cutfoot featured some excellent crappie fishing. Many of the crapples weighed over a pound and a half.

New York Mills

During our "Operation October" a couple of years ago at New York Mills and Perham we collected several stories we have used from time to time. One of our favorites appeared in the column "Mapping Our Town" in the New York Mills Herald.

"While at the doctor's office for a checkup, Toivo asked the physician if there was some way he could improve his love life. The doctor suggested that he get out and run ten miles every day. After two weeks Toivo phoned the doctor to say that he had complied. Has it helped you? the doctor asked. No, and I don't think it is going to, Toivo replied. "I'm 140 miles from home!"

Ammonia Spill Kills Fish In Mississippi River

An accidental spill of a large volume of anhydrous ammonia into the Mississippi river above Hastings resulted in the death of at least 25,000 fish, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

The spill occurred at approximately 8 a.m. Sept. 27 at CF Industries barge terminal when a pressure relief valve opened on a barge being unloaded, allowing the ammonia to escape.

An estimated 100 tons of ammonia was spilled, some of which evaporated but most of which entered the river.

An investigation of the spill site and downriver areas by the DNR during the next few days disclosed large quanities of dead fish floating in the river and washed up on the shore.

Survey personnel said a minimum of 25,659 fish were found. However, they pointed out that many dead fish had undoubtedly sunk to the bottom of the river or floated downstream before they could be included in the count.

Of the fish killed, approximately 3,600 were classed as game or sportfish including walleye, sauger, nortern pike, smallmouth bass, crappies, sunfish and catfish.

CF Industries is a fertilizer manufacturer owned by 19 agricultural coops including Land O' Lakes, Cenex and Midland.

DNR officials said they have been told that CF Industries has contracted with Fuel Recovery Systems Inc. — a local firm specializing in spill cleanup work — to clean up the dead fish.

Midwest Horse Show Oct. 19-21 Entries Climb

Entries for the Great Midwest international horse show to be held October 19, 20 and 21 in Crookston are "way up", according to Show chairman Toby Solberg.

"We already have enough entries for a Class A quarter horse show (225 adult entries)," Solberg said enthusiastically. "We have exhibitors coming from Randall and Boone, Iowa; Longsdale, Minn.; and Wassington, S.D. We have a number of Canadian exhibitors registered as well as numerous Appaloosa and quarter horse entries from North Dakota."

The fifteenth annual Great Midwest horse show, held in the Red River Valley winter shows building, will begin with a youth horse judging contest on October 19 at 2 p.m.

An open horse show will follow at 7 p.m. Friday, October 19 with approved halter classes for quarter horses and Appaloosas starting at 7 a.m. Saturday. Performance classes follow with the Saturday show beginning at 1 p.m., followed by another performance at 7 p.m. Trail classes begin at 8 Sunday morning and the final performance will get started at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Open show and quarter horse classes will be judged by Bob H. Spedden of Ellicott City, Maryland. Jack Dreshler of West Brome, Quebec, Canada, will judge the Appaloosa events.

Agassiz Riders Queen Joydell Olson of Crookston will be show hostess and will preside at the Royal Queen's rides during the weekend and at the coronation of the 1979-80 Agassiz Riders Queen Sunday afternoon. Eleven equestrian queens from throughout the five-state area are expected to add glamour to the show.

Fall Is Time To Prepare Snowmobile

Fall is the perfect time to get out your snowmobile — not to go riding, but to get it ready for when the snow season arrives. A little preventive maintenance now can keep a carefree outing from turning into an unexpected repair session on the trail.

Here are 10 tips from Randy Adamson, technical information coordinator for Arctic Enterprises, Inc.

(1) Check all the hardware: tighten nuts and bolts; replace fasteners that appear damaged; replace loose rivets.

(2) Examine control wires and cables for wear and replace any damaged parts.

(3) Examine the drive belt for cracks or tears and replace if necessary.

(4) Check the track and skid frame for loose or damaged parts.

(5) Inspect chain case components and change the lubricant.

(6) Check brake adjustment.

(7) Check ski alignment and examine the ski wear bars.

(8) Remove any covers over the intake hose or exhaust outlet and clean all cooling vents. On liquid-cooled models, check the coolant level.

(9) Check all the switches, headlight, taillight and brakelight.

(10) Put in fresh gas and oil and examine the in-line fuel filter to make sure it's clean. Start the engine.

You will likely be able to handle those tasks yourself. Finishing touches might include a wash and wax of the machine's exterior and inspection of your tool kit. These 10 tune-up tips will ensure you're ready for the first ride of the winter.

Fish Netting Permits Limit Net Numbers

A news item issued recently by the Department of Natural Resources announced that 213 lakes and streams would be open for netting of white fish, tullibee and herring starting as early as October 19 in some waters, and that two nets would be allowed for each license as in previous years.

Jerry Kuehn, chief of fisheries, said however that only one net per person of license will be allowed instead of two.

"The number of people taking fish in this fall netting season has more than doubled in the last five years," he said, "and this reduction is a measure to accomodate the growing number of participants without increasing the indidental catch of game fish."

According to a federal wildlife biologist, 40 young bald eagles were hatched in the Superior national forest of Minnesota this year.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of our husband and father, Walter Rux, who passed away Oct. 14, 1970:
Just a line of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a word of love's devotion
That our hearts still hold for you.

We who love you sadly miss you,
Thoughts of you are always near
In the lonely hours of dreaming
As it dawns another year.
Sadly missed by wife Lillie and children. 1181c

200 Attend Beef Cattle Institute

Just over 200 persons attended the Beef Cattlemen's Institute program held Thursday, October 4 at the Red River Valley winter shows arena, Crookston.

This was about half the total number usually attending the institute sponsored by the Minnesota and North Dakota agricultural extension service, the Northwest experiment station, Crookston and the Central Livestock assn., inc., Fargo. Late harvesting problems and conflicting meetings were indicated as the reason for the smaller attendance.

Interested cattlemen who did attend heard Lauren Carlson, president, National Cattlemen's association, Denver, Colo., give a review on where the cattle business is today and what the combined efforts of cattlemen within the association have been able to accomplish over the past year. Carlson, who raises cattle at Choklo, travels widely and sees the need to educate consumers across the country as a high priority.

He indicated that in his meetings and talks with people in all walks of life, that many do become farm and ranch advocates after they understand and appreciate what it really takes to get an agricultural commodity such as beef to the marketplace. Carlson further noted that the younger generation just setting up housekeeping does not have any background on the real value and nutrition of good beef.

Looking to the future for cattlemen, Carlson stated that economic fluctuations are necessary if a free economy is to be maintained and that major juggling of markets by legislation would have more adverse effects than good.

Carlson advocated that all beef cattlemen join or continue to support the National Cattlemen's association and the beef checkoff which maintains the funds used for education, research and promotion of the beef industry. He said, "We should do it and we should do it with our own money."

The major topic of the institute was the effects of pasture management in today's beef industry and the problems and solutions were aired by Neal Martin, Extension agronomist, university of Minnesota, St. Paul; Paul Hasbargen, extension economist, St. Paul; and two beef producers, Homer Kenner, Roseau, and Franklyn Preisler, Bejou. A feeder cattle demonstration with live cattle of various grades was presented by the Central Livestock association, Carl Spong and Lee Ebsen, West Fargo, N.D.

Liquor Sales $123,564,380 At Municipals

Net income from Minnesota's 384 municipal liquor stores increased slightly last year, reversing a downward trend of the previous three years, according to state auditor Arne Carlson. Total sales were $123,564,380.

The state auditor's annual report on municipal liquor store operations showed sales increased by $9 million for 1978 over 1977 and operating income rose by $250,000 over 1977. Operating income as a percentage of sales continued to decline to 8.1 per cent of sales as compared to 8.5 per cent in 1977 and 12.2 per cent four years ago (1974). The gross profit margin declined to 32.3 per cent, down from 32.9 per cent for 1977.

Operating expenses of 24.2 per cent of sales was down slightly when compared to the prior year figure of 24.4 per cent. Operating expense has been increasing rapidly in recent years. Operating expenses for 1974 totaled $21,507,000, or 20.9 per cent of sales and increased to $29,865,000 and 24.2 per cent of sales by 1978.

The stores' aggregate contributions to other city funds decreased from $8.7 million in 1977 to $8 million in 1978, a trend which has continued furing the last three years.

The cities of Richfield and Edina had the largest municipal liquor sales, reporting sales of $4.8 million and $4.7 million, respectively. Twenty municipalities in all had sales in excess of $1 million while 29 stores suffered operating losses in 1978.

Times Reporter

Awe. . .sadness. . .joy. . .

These words, among many others, describe the feelings of Gelene Peltier when she was presented woman of the year award at the regular dinner meeting of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women (BPW) club Monday evening.

Mayor Bob Carlson, after briefly addressing the women at the meeting and describing their importance to the city of Thief River Falls, stated that the woman selected was very special and deserving of the award.

Gelene was presented a bouquet of red roses by her daughter, Susan Walsberg of Federal Way, Wash.— a gift from Gelene's husband, Bill. A corsage was presented to her from Ruby Miller, International board director of Con-Stan International, a company for which Gelene sells products and fashions.

Immediate past president of the Christian Women's club, Kathy Ebbighausen, read Gelene's accomplishments while involved in the Christian Women's club; and Vicki Erickson, president of the BPW club, presented a Woman of the Year pin. Mayor Bob Carlson presented her with the plaque for woman of the year for her "ability and leadership in her profession and for her services to the community." Women are judged according to the type of persons they are, and by what they contribute to the community, stated Clarice Collins, BPW member.

Telegrams were also presented to Gelene by various people who know and admire her. Telegrams were sent by Mulford Nobbs, president of the Con-Stan corporation; Phyllis Kruckenberg, vice president of sales and also senior regional director of the corporation; Bonnie Wilhelm, district director from Jamestown; Ruby Miller, International board director; Marian Joling, senior regional director of Con-Stan from Grand Rapids, Mich., Margaret Lakeman, Ada, group director of the corporation; and Gelene's son, John and his wife, DeAnn from Seattle, Wash.

Gelene has been a BPW member since 1964, she said. Besides being involved with the BPW organization, she is a member of the Christian Women's club, and is a charter member of the "fearless foursome" (a group made up of four BPW women,

Net Income Of Minn. Farmers $1,474,100,000

Total net income of Minnesota farmers in 1978 has been estimated at $1,474,100,000, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin reported recently. He said the average farm family earned only $145 more than in 1977.

"Although that is nearly one per cent gain over net farm earnings in 1977, Minnesota's 1978 total net farm income was short by $612.4 million or 27 per cent below that for the boom year of 1973," Commissioner Seetin pointed out.

All time high production expenses of $4 billion, $94.9 million offset over 84 per cent of the record $4 billion, $851.9 million in cash receipts from Minnesota farm marketings last year. Production costs in 1978 were 10 per cent above 1977, and 64 per cent higher than in 1973.

Minnesota's realized gross farm income for 1978 also was a new high, estimated at $5 billion, $568.9 million. That included, in addition to the marketing receipts, a $493.4 million value of on farm consumption of food and fiber production, $164.3 million in government price support and conservation incentive payments, and $59.3 million in gross earnings for agricultural services performed for other farmers.

Commissioner Seetin commented, "although Minnesota farm income estimates are impressive and attest to the economic benefit of the state's biggest industry, many citizens may be surprised to learn that last year's total net farm earnings actually represent a less than five per cent return for their capital investment and the year's labor and management skills."

According to latest federal estimates on the agricultural "balance sheet", the average Minnesota family farm has net assets—land, buildings, equipment, production inventories—of about $375,000 and an outstanding debt of nearly $80,000.

State farm income statistics for 1978 indicate that the averages for each of Minnesota's 104,000 farms were $53,546 in realized gross income, $39,374 production costs, $14,172 realized net income.

TRUCK DRIVER John Wagner, a native of the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, is responsible for ferrying around costumes and props of the Bohemian Folk Ballet of Prague, Czechoslovakia, during a nation-wide tour. During a stop in Thief River Falls where the 36 dancers and musicians opened the local concert association season, Wagner checks a map and itinerary in planning his next move.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"All I'm really supposed to do is drive the truck," drawled big John Wagner in the hallway of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, surrounded by trunks and boxes bearing stencilled identification as property of the Bohemian folk ballet of Prague, Czechoslovakia. The group would present the first concert of the local concert series in about three hours but had not yet arrived.

But, "I'm also usually the first one to get to each of the concert places and I can sometimes help take care of a few things," he grinned through a thick beard that was no johnny-come-lately of a whisker-growing project. He turned to one of the local youngsters helping with stage requirements.

"They're going to need a light behind the backdrop," he said. "They move around back there and they'll be upset when they get here if they don't have a light. Might as well find one now, even if it's just a drop cord or something."

He hauled his large frame up on one of the packing cases, wiped some perspiration from what little bare area there was on his forehead and drew one foot up under him, wrapping massive arms around the upraised knee. Finished was the task of unloading seemingly endless cartons of costumes and props for the Bohemian group — aided by a number of strong, young Northland community college students. There was a moment for respite.

"These are really pretty nice people to work with," he confided. "They seem to have a good time and they're always ready to try something new. In Chicago we went down to a disco one night after the show. In California we're gonna hit a rock concert and down in Texas it will probably be some country-western stuff."

A native of the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, Wagner applied for the driving job when he heard about the opening through a friend who worked for Columbia Artists Management in New York City, sponsor of the Bohemian touring group. He picked the visitors up at the airport in New York on September 28 and will stay with the tour right on through their departure in mid-December.

During the interim he will pilot the leased truck through Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Washington state, British Columbia, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas (13 stops in the Lone Star state alone), Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire with the final concert at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Stepping outside the school building, Wagner lit a menthol cigarette and we asked him about security, if any, on the tour. Czechoslovakia is a communist country, of course, and defections from Rossian touring groups have been common of late.

"You mean any KGB or stuff like that?" he asked. "There isn't any that I can notice. There are 36 dancers and musicians in the group and they all seem free to go and do whatever they want. We went to the disco one night, like I said, and they go shopping if they get the chance. Several of them speak pretty good English.

"And the other night at one of the stops there was a guy who owned a store that sold jeans. He opened up his place after the concert so the people could buy jeans. I guess they're about $45 a pair in Prague."

Wagner commented on the nice weather. Monday was a beautiful fall day. "I expect we'll get plenty of bad stuff along this northern swing and back up the coast," he said.

We asked about interviewing the tour manager. "Mr. Ramon should be in his office about an hour before the concert," he said. "That would be the best time to catch him. (Wagner had arranged for a classroom next to the rooms being used as dressing rooms to serve as the tour

Commissioners Approve Budget Items At Meet

Pennington county commissioners approved several budget items at the regular meeting held in the commissioners' room of the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

The 1980-81 plan for the Quin-County nursing program was approved and an appropriation of $13,000 was made for operations of the Pennington soil and water conservation district. The appropriation is a part of the $28,920 budget of the district.

Taken under advisement by the board was a request brought by Merle Lundeen, president of the county 4-H club leaders council, that Beattie Mickelson be employed as a youth agent for the Pennington county extension service. The request was made on behalf of the 4-H club council and the county extension committee. Request to acquire a display case for awards received by the county's judging teams and others was also presented.

Roy Waters of the Northwestern mental health center at Crookston presented program requests for the coming year, asking that $150,000 be allocated from the county under the new block grant procedure through the county welfare department. Last year Pennington county allocated $32,000 to the center. Waters' request was taken under advisement.

Ray Oen appeared to discuss a problem with airport zoning affecting his property along the airport road south of the city. He was referred to the airport zoning commission which operates under auspices of the city of Thief River Falls.

Sheriff Charles Richards received approval on his request to adjust board and care of prisoners from $4.50 to $5.50 daily effective October 1. He also asked provision in the 1980 budget for a new squad car for the department and an appropriation of $2,000 from each of the 1979 and 1980 budgets to assist in developing a firing range in the law en-

Thyren and Peterson Vows Exchanged Here

Miss Jean Marie Thyren and Thomas Alan Peterson exchanged marriage vows recently at a three o'clock wedding at the Evangelical Covenant church in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thyren of this city. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Peterson, Monticello.

Rev. Marden Wickman officiated at the double ring ceremony and Mrs. Alvin Dahlstrom was the organist, playing "Trumpet Voluntary," for the processional and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," as the recessional. During the ceremony, Mark Thyren, brother of the bride, sang, "My Tribute"; and Terry Dunham, a friend of the couple, sang "You're A Gift," and "Treasures". A quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Van de Loo, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, Mrs. Jeannie Thyren, sister-in-law of the bride, and Ron Johnson, a brother-in-law of the bride, sang "Gentle Shepherd."

Forming a background for the wedding party were arch candelabra with white starburst mums, peach carnations, ferns and peach bows. Matching bows and ferns marked the pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white Sata-glo organza over taffeta, featuring an A-line skirt with chapel-length train, trimmed with silk Venise lace. The fitted bodice with natural waistline was fashioned with a high neckline, rounded lace yoke embroidered with pearls, and sheer bishop sleeves appliqued with lace motifs. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a semi-Camelot headpiece trimmed with silk Venise lace. She carried a cascade of white starburst mums, stephanotis, coral roses and peach carnations and babies' breath.

Serving as the bride's personal attendant was a friend, Mrs. Elaine Johnson of Minneapolis.

Maid of honor was a sister, Judy Thyren of this city. Other attendants were Joy Johnson, Roseau, a sister of the bride; Jane Brodin, a cousin of the bride; and Janelle Bengtson, Hallock, a friend. Their identical gowns of peach chiffon over taffeta featured spaghetti strapped, gathered bodices with empire waistlines, and triple-tiered full skirts trimmed with cream lace inserts. Topping the gowns were elbow-length peach chiffon capes with cream lace complementing the mandarin neckbands. All carried bouquets of white starburst mums and peach and white carnations, accented with rust colored button mums. Their gold bracelets were gifts from the bride.

Mark Peterson, Watkins, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Dale Ahlberg, New Prague, a friend; Tom Schafer, Thief River Falls, a friend of the couple, and Dave Meyer, Buffalo, a friend of the groom. Ushers were Dale Bergstrom, Buffalo, a friend of the groom, Mike Erickson and Tim Dahlstrom, Thief River Falls, friends of the couple. All wore dark brown tuxedos with vests, peach ruffled shirts and peach carnation boutonnieres. The groom's boutonniere was a coral rose with stephanotis and babies' breath.

The mother of the bride was attired in a peach polyester sheer, floor-length print gown over taffeta featuring a springling of white flowers. The gown was styled with an empire waistline, long, puffy sleeves with ruffled cuffs, and a ruffled neckline. Her corsage was of coral roses, white carnations and babies' breath. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of mint green polyester crepe with an attached blouson chiffon cape.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A.V. Brodin, Sebring, Fla., grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Betty Swanson, Monticello, grandmother of the groom.

A reception followed with Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Brodin, uncle and aunt of the bride, as host and hostess. Mrs. Mary Hoyce Thyren, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest book as Mr. and Mrs. Mark Wall, cousins of the bride, distributed the wedding programs. Punch was ladled by Carol Brodin, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Marijo Schafer, a friend.

Highlighting the reception table was a three-tiered marble cake, iced in white and topped with a Christogram and an arrangement of fresh flowers, matching the bridesmaids' bouquets. At the base was a flowing water fountain, surrounded with peach flowers and ferns. The cake was cut and served by Kathy Diavastes and Bonnie Kluver, friends of the couple. Mrs. Evelyn Scholin, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Lorraine Larson, aunt of the groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Liz Brodin, Patti Erickson, Mary and Marsha Erickson and Kathy and Ann Goodrich. Connie Olson and Connie Peterson, friends of the bride, arranged the gifts and Lana Thyren and Jennifer Johnson, nieces of the bride, distributed the candy kisses. Gift bearers were Gwen Michalick, Tammy Reierson, Ann Swanson and Kristyn Vigstol.

Relatives and friends attending were from California, Flaorida, Twin Falls, Idaho; Rapid City, S.D.; Chicago, Ill.; Grand Forks, N.D.; Moorhead, Minneapolis, Buffalo, Bemidji, Hallock, Kennedy, Monticello and the Thief River Falls area.

For traveling on the wedding trip to a lake cabin in the Brainerd area, the bride wore a salmon-colored polygab suit with a coordinated pring blouse.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Covenant Bible college, Prince Albert, Sask., Canada and the Thief River Falls AVTI practical school of nursing. Prior to her marriage, she was employed by the Swedish Covenant hospital, Chicago, Ill. The groom is a graduate of Monticello high school and Bethel College, St. Paul. For the past three years, he was youth director at the local Evangelical Covenant church. He is presently attending North Park Theological Seminary in Chicago, Ill.

The couple's at home address is 3204 West Carmen avenue, Third Floor north, Chicago, Ill. 60625. Photo, Wayne and Mark Thyren, brothers of the bride.

Ranum and Brekke Vows Exchanged at Redeemer

Susan Ranum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Ranum, Thief River Falls, and Robert Brekke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brekke, Plummer, exchanged marriage vows recently at an afternoon wedding at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city.

Rev. Keith Prekker officiated at the double ring ceremony attended by approximately 200 relatives and friends. Mrs. William Halbasch was the organist. She played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Michelle Kaspari, a friend of the couple, as she sang, "Wedding Song," "Annie's Song," and "We've Only Just Begun". Acolytes were Mick Brekke and Kevin McKeever.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a Victorian styled gown with an empire bodice featuring a Venice lace yoke, outlined in front and back by a ruffle. Lace also trimmed her full-length sleeves. Complementing her full skirt was a chapel-length train. Her walking-length veil edged with scalloped lace was held by a headpiece of Venice lace, etched with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of blue carnations centered with yellow Sweetheart roses. Her locket was a gift from the groom.

The bride's personal attendants were Kim Noreen and Virginia Swanson.

Maid of honor was Deb Wiskow, a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Janet Krag, Thief River Falls, Kirstein Froseth and Deb Swanson of Plummer, friends of the couple. All wore blue floor-length, short-sleeved gowns topped by blue floral print jackets. Each carried a solitary long-stemmed yellow rose. Their pearl necklaces were gifts from the couple.

Flower girl was Lisa Anenson, Minneapolis, a niece of the bride. She wore an empire fashioned gown of white chiffon, styled with long, puffy sleeves. Her silver cross necklace was a gift from the couple. She carried a basket of blue carnations, yellow roses and babies' breath.

Mike Skjerven, Plummer, a friend of the couple, served as best man. Groomsmen were Brian Brekke, Plummer, a brother of the groom; Scott McKeever, Middle River, a cousin of the groom, and Greg Bottem, Thief River Falls, a friend of the couple. The guests were ushered in by Jay Brekke, Plummer, a brother of the groom, and Kermit Helle, Plummer, a friend of the couple. All wore blue tuxedos with dark blue trim, light blue ruffled shirts and yellow sweetheart rose boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a blue polyester floor-length gown styled with a fitted bodice with long, puffy sleeves. Her corsage was of yellow roses. A similar corsage complemented the peach floor-length gown worn by the groom's mother.

Special guests were Clara Ranum, Elsie Knutson and Leonard Brekke.

A reception followed Mr. and Mrs. Terry Knutson, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, as host and hostess. Centering the serving table was a pillared, three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with blue and yellow flowers. Topping the cake was a miniature bride and groom backed by a white-lace-and-satin heart.

The cake was cut and served by Melanie Skjerven and Dee Dee Huotari. Rebecca Sorenson and Virginia Sorenson, presided at the coffee service. All are friends of the couple.

At the guest book was Jodi Pahlen, a cousin of the groom. Cathy Gustafson, a cousin of the bride, served the punch. Waitresses were Roxane Ulrich, Joan Gehrls, Dana Spencer, Diane Cork and Janelle Kain. Tawny Offerdahl arranged the gifts and Kathy Pahlen and Kathy DuChamp served as flower hostesses. All are friends of the couple.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls at 808½ North Arnold. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed by Oakland Park Nursing home. The groom, a graduate of Pershing high school, Plummer, is employed by Lakehead Pipelines. Photo, Nieland studio, Thief River Falls.

director's office.)

Stepping back inside the school he met one of the custodians. "Just the man I'm looking for," he said. "The fellows on the lights tell me that everything is locked up after the concert. We'll need to have showers open if we can. The group will be moving on right after the concert. . ." His voice trailed away as he headed down the hall with the custodian in the direction of the gymnasium.

Reappearing a short time later with assurance that showers would be available, he seemed pleased. "This is really well organized," he said. "Some places we get to, boy, they don't even know what building we're supposed to be at. For using a school auditorium and all, this is terrific."

Somehow, it seemed that John Wagner would never be content to simply drive a truck.

8 From County Attend State NFO Gathering

Eight Pennington county residents attended the Minnesota state convention of the National Farmers organization held recently at Little Falls. Main speaker was Robert Arndt, acting national vice president of the NFO.

Merle Lundeen of Trail, district chairman, headed the county delegation which included his wife, Don Erickson and Bill Peterson of Plummer, Mrs. Andy Peterson of Trail, Jens Steen of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Bennie Johnson and Mrs. Edward Stucy of Goodridge.

Vice president Arndt stated at the convention that he had never ". . .seen this organization across the entire nation pulling together like they are now." Arndt, a farmer from Echo, filled in for national president DeVon Woodland who was unable to attend.

Noting that NFO is now being asked to represent agriculture along with other national industries on trade missions, Arndt said respect for the NFO has grown. "We're not just farmers and ranchers, we're experienced leaders in a new marketing system that has the capabilities of giving the farmers and ranchers a method to price their products at a fair level," he said.

In convention voting, Gene Paul of Delavon was reelected national director and Jerry Blonigen of Paynesville was selected as alternate. Paul Sobocinski of Wabasso was elected alternate director for Dave Pawlitschek, Lowry.

Also speaking at the convention, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture Mark Seetin deplored the "disastrous effect" on farm prices by the grain handlers strike at Duluth. "Neither the strikers nor the grain companies were affected by it like the farmers were," he said.

Expressing concern over trends in land ownership and land prices, the commissioner said farmers must sometimes take a look in the mirror when assessing the blame.

RUG-MAKING at the Happy Seniors program in Thief River Falls has been a main activity for Albert and Verna Sjolsvold, pictured at left with director Jerry Nelson. The Sjolsvolds were recognized at an appreciation dinner for a number of the Happy Seniors members Tuesday. Albert operates the loom and all of the rugs he has made have been quickly sold.

State Holds 21 Per Cent Of Grain Reserve

Minnesota's share of the grain reserve has increased to nearly 21 per cent of the 907.7 million bushels national total and is second highest behind only Nebraska's 23 per cent share of the reserve, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin reported this week.

According to U.S. department of agriculture estimates of September 28, Minnesota farmers still held nearly 188 million bushels of wheat, corn, oats, barley and grain sorghum under federal price support loans in the national Grain Reserve.

Commissioner Seetin said that Minnesota's reserve commodities had a September market value of more than $467.6 million.

"Regularly updated grain reserve and other marketing statistics continue to show the braking action of the weather and strike situations on our Minnesota market area this year at a time of peak export demand and favorable farm commodity prices."

"These latest grain reserve figures reveal that Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota farmers had by late September been able to redeem only 16 per cent of the commodities they had contracted into the grain reserve under non-recourse federal price support loans. The rest of the nation's farmers were able to redeem nearly 37 per cent of their reserve loans," Commissioner Seetin said.

Minnesota farmers redeemed 37.9 million bushels of their 225.8 million reserve total.

Minnesota commodities remaining in the grain reserve as of the September 28 update were: 126.1 million bushels of corn worth $275 million; 41.6 million bushels of wheat worth $157 million; 10.2 million bushels of oats worth $12 million; 9.9 million bushels of barley worth $23 million; and 41,700 bushels of grain sorghum worth $94,000.

Commissioner Seetin said that the backlog of 1976-78 harvested old crop grains, with the 1979 crops harvest further jamming farm and commercial storage capacities and the bulk commodity marketing and transportation systems, dramatizes the need for U.S. and Canada concessions to extend the Duluth-Superior shipping season as late as possible this winter.

PAYING A VISIT to the North Country museum of arts in Park Rapids recently were Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hartz of Thief River Falls. They are shown with Pam Teslow, museum curator. The Hartz foundation provided $10,000 for use in establishment of the museum, making the commitment in 1978 to match $10,000 if it could be raised by the community by 1981. Fund raisers in Park Rapids got the job done in just over a year. Mr. and Mrs. Hartz were guests at a luncheon in recognition of the community effort and Hartz' participation.

Fall Hazards Face Motorists In Minnesota

Along with the splendor of fall comes several seasonal driving hazards Minnesota motorists should be aware of, warns Commissioner John P. Sopsic, Department of public safety.

Thick fog and sun glare limit visibility, and leaf cluttered roads can make stopping or turning difficult.

Sopsic offered the following tips to drivers confronted with fog, sun glare or leaf-slick roads.

When day or night-time fog occurs, use full headlights so the car is visible to approaching drivers. Use low beams which do not create excessive glare and only occasionally switch to high-beams to reveal any danger that may lie ahead.

When approaching a stretch of fog, flash brake lights to alert drivers behind that you are cutting your speed. A chain reaction is a major danger in fog.

Never tailgate while driving in fog, and increase the distance between your car and the vehicle ahead.

If the fog becomes so thick that driving is impossible, pull completely off the roadway and turn on your four-way emergency flashers. If possible, pull completely off the road via an exit ramp or rest area.

As the days become shorter, drivers must face low sun on their way to and from work, the time that traffic is the heaviest and accident-possibility is the greatest.

A clean windshield, wearing sunglasses, using the sun visor and wearing a cap or hat can minimize the glare from a low sun.

Motorists driving into the sun can momentarily be blinded by sun glare. Motorists driving away from the sun can help the visibility of approaching motorists by turning on their headlights.

Highways can become very slippery with fallen leaves, especially when mixed with rain or early morning frost. When brakes are applied or when turning, tires can lose their gripping ability and begin sliding over a bed of leaves covering the roadways.

The greatest danger from slippery leaves is on two-lane roads and secondary highways through forest areas and in wooded residential areas where leaves collect near curbs and corners.

"While admiring the splendor of Minnesota's woodlands, be aware of fall driving hazards so your driving can be enjoyable and safe," said Sopsic.

RECEIVING INSTRUCTION before competing in the compass-first aid race at the Voyageur Trails district scout camporee at Twin Valley recently were these scouts attending the event. Approximately 225 scouts and adults were in attendance.

FRIENDS OF 4-H award was given to Ethel Moe during the 4-H awards program in the city auditorium in Thief River Falls October 9.

Currently, Japan ranks second only to Canada as a major buyer of U.S. pork, according to Sperry New Holland.

Nature Of Matter To Be Studied In Tower-Soudan Mine

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

A mine shaft 2,000 feet deep and five million gallons of water are the props University of Minnesota researchers will need to conduct a test that may shed light on the nature of all matter.

Research project, which will combine the efforts of physics researchers from the University of Minnesota, the University of Wisconsin, and Harvard and Purdue universities, will test a part of the unification theory of physics, according to Marvin Marshak, associate professor of physics at the University of Minnesota.

Albert Einstein spent the latter part of his career working on the unification theory, but was unable to complete the work before he died. Basic premise of the unification theory is that the four forces in nature — gravity, electromagnetism, the nuclear or strong force that holds the nuclei of atoms together, and the weak force, which is responsible for some radioactive decay — are governed by one fundamental interaction.

In the last decade, partial unification of the electromagnetic and weak forces has been verified experimentally. Gravity and the strong force, however, have yet to be "unified," and the Minnesota project will be an attempt to prove that the strong force fits into the unification scheme, Marshak said.

"This experiment is of such importance to the world-wide physics community that three independent experiments are currently planned, one in Minnesota, one in a salt mine in Ohio, and one in a tunnel under the Franco-Italian Alps," Marshak said.

Supported by the U.S. department of energy, the Minnesota experiments will be conducted in the tower-soudan mine, now a state park near the southern shore of Lake Vermilion. Planning for the experiment is well underway, and Marshak expects testing to begin sometime this winter.

If the researchers can find empirical evidence that the strong force is part of the unified whole, they will be one step closer to providing that all matter, at some time, breaks down spontaneously and converts to energy, Marshak said. Observing this breakdown is the key to this experiment.

Researchers hope to observe the protons contained in the atoms that make up water as they decay, that is, change from matter to energy. Such transformations are extremely rare, happening only once every 10 to the power of 30 to 10 to the power of 34 years, or 10 followed by 30 to 34 zeroes.

"The experiment can be performed either by observing a small amount of matter for a long time or by observing a large amount of matter for a short time," Marshak said.

Physicists have opted for the second choice. Five million gallons of water, the amount that contains 10-34 protons, will be piped from nearby Lake Vermilion to a point 2,000 feet below the earth's surface in the mine shaft.

Into the water-filled shaft, the researchers will place photoreceptors sensitive enough to pick up and record minute quantities of light.

When a proton decays, the resultant energy is measurable as a tiny burst of light. Light burst is so minute that the photoreceptors must be extremely sensitive to detect it, Marshak said.

Because of the hypersensitivity of the photoreceptors, the experiment must be done deep underground. If the testing were done on the earth's surface, the radiation that bombards the earth daily would overload the photoreceptors.

Some forms of radiation, however, will penetrate the earth and reach the photoreceptors, Marshak said. This radiation will not be significant enough to disrupt the experiment, and will be used to test the effectiveness of the equipment.

Beyond its attempt to include the strong force in the unification scheme, the experiment, which will last for at least five years, will shed light on the origins of the universe and may provide clues to the nature of its demise, Marshak said.

"This is basic research," he said. "The technology of today is based on yesterday's basic research. Obviously, not all basic research has a practical application, and some never will have, but we must explore on as large a frontier as possible," he said.

A public discussion will be in Soudan October 12, when university scientists will explain the experiment to local residents.

GOSPEL SINGER Roy Hope will appear at Our Saviour's Free Lutheran church Saturday as a part of the "Life in Christ Crusade" which began Tuesday of this week. Rev. Bruce Dalager is the speaker at these 8 p.m. meetings. Hope and his daughter Janet will sing at the youth banquet at 5:30 p.m. and a public concert at 7:30 p.m. Evening service will begin at 8:30, followed by a fellowship hour. Public is invited to attend this special music concert as well as the "Life in Christ" crusade which will run through Sunday.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

A very belated thanks to the local Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the Roy Acuff appearance in Thief River Falls September 25. Hopefully, this is just the beginning of having big name country-western stars appear here. Then we, and several others from the Thief River Falls area, won't have to drive all the way to other towns (like Chisholm or Hibbing) to see stars like Tom T. Hall, Charley Pride, etc., who appear every couple of months. We've found that tickets have to be purchased weeks in advance, or there just aren't any left! Evidently, a lot of people still listen to "country" music!

Which brings us to mention of Acuff's performance in Thief River Falls in the September 30 Minneapolis Tribune which stated that (in TRF) "some local organizations were approached but refused to sponsor on the grounds that nobody listens to country music anymore." Well!? It does raise the ire a bit at the insinuation that I'm among 90 per cent of the "nobodies" in our area who happen to prefer country western music! (Hey, isn't Everybody supposed to be Somebody in TRF?)

Frankly, it was disappointing that a famous country music hall of famer like Acuff didn't rate at least a brief "Times" interview and a couple of candid pictures, while an unheard of circus performer got coverage on two pages! This isn't meant to put down any other type of music — to each his own — but if you get another big name country-western star, I'll wager you'll be surprised at how many people would rather drive to Thief River Falls, where EVERYBODY is Somebody. ('N by cracky, ah'd shore appreciate it!)

LuAnn Lewis

(Editor's Note: Just a comment on the absence of an interview with Acuff in the Times. The interview we had planned went awry when the staff member who had made advance arrangements for the interview left our employ suddenly to return to college the day before Acuff's appearance. Schedules couldn't be juggled to fit it in.

And let's keep things in perspective. How long has it been since a circus came to town? Quite a spell, that's for sure. How about the last country-western singer? Jeannie C. Riley got a good chunk of the front page back in July. Jeanne isn't Roy, but she IS country!)

Patty Sampson In Glee Club

Women's glee club, directed by Charlotte Trautwein, NDSU assistant professor of music, will have its first concert of the season, along with the NDSU varsity men's glee club at 4 p.m. Sunday, November 4. Patricia Sampson, Thief River Falls, is a member of the 63-voice women's glee club at NDSU.

Demand For Ag Loans Expected To Increase

Demand for agricultural loans is very strong and likely to remain so for some time, according to rural bankers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, and northwestern Wisconsin.

In the agricultural credit conditions survey taken in July by the federal reserve bank of Minneapolis, many of the 124 regional bankers expressed concern over their ability to meet short-term loan demands in August, September and October. Since the date of the survey, the Duluth grain shippers' strike was has probably increased the demand for short-term ag loans even more.

Forty-two per cent of the bankers surveyed felt that demand for loans of less than one year maturity was greater than usual, and 27 per cent felt that demand for loans of one to seven years was greater than usual. For both classes of lending only a handful of respondents described demand as below normal, and the rest felt that it was about usual.

Many of the lenders indicated that the extraordinary number of short-term loans was made mainly to grain farmers to finance inventories of grain. They were holding these inventories either because they expected prices to rise or because they were having difficulties arranging for shipment. The demand for long-term loans for farm real estate, however, was not especailly large. Only nine per cent of the bankers thought that it was greater than usual.

In July, 32 per cent of the sample reported they had had to refuse or reduce a loan because of lack of funds. This percentage is more than twice what it was last July. Even more strikingly, only 34 per cent of the lenders indicated that they were actively seeking new farm loan accounts. That number is very low — in fact, the lowest it has been in at least the last four years.

As a result of the Duluth grain shippers' strike, which had only just begun when the survey was taken, it is likely that rural bankers are finding themselves under even greater pressure to finance grain inventories for farmers. Even those regional farmers who usually ship their grain through other channels find it harder to do so, because greater volumes are being shipped through the channels that are still open.

As buyers anticipate problems with delivery, the prices of grain shipped from this area are falling below the prices of grain from other areas. So, the low prices also encourage some area farmers who might be able to ship their grain to hold it until the strike ends and prices improve.

Bankers surveyed expected tight short-term ag credit for the near future even before the severity of the shippers' strike was known. In their July responses, 34 per cent expected greater-than usual demand, and fully 26 per cent anticipated problems meeting loan requests in the next three months. If the survey were redone today, they would likely expect even higher demand and even more problems meeting loan requests.

The one exception to the generally tighter credit conditions is the South Dakota Market. Only 10 per cent of the South Dakota bankers in the sample foresaw a shortage of funds. That percentage was the lowest of the states in the ninth federal reserve district and was down dramatically from the 25 per cent expecting difficulty in our April survey. The change apparently occurred because, effective July 1, the legal maximum for interest rates was raised from 10 to 12 per cent. It appears that the higher interest rates were making funds more available in the state, as the Minneapolis bank predicted in its April survey.

First Aid For Eye Injuries Is Suggested

When Johnny comes in from the backyard after a happy afternoon of play, the first thing on his mind may be a cookie and a glass of milk and the ball game he wants to see next week. But the afternoon may not always go so well. Sometimes he rushes in to Mom with bumps and bruises... or perhaps even an eye emergency.

National society to prevent blindness points out that some 160,000 children suffered eye injuries last year. More often than not, they occurred in everyday, unsupervised play. "And about 41 per cent of all accidents causing vision impairments happen around the home," according to Virginia S. Boyce, executive director of the society.

Joining the United Nations' international year of the child, the soceity urges parents everywhere to learn how to cope quickly with children's eye emergencies. "Knowing how to handle an eye injury could save sight — seconds count," Mrs. Boyce said.

Among common causes of accidents around the home are ordinary horseplay, careless use of everyday objects, hazardous toys and burns from strong chemicals found in many household and garden products.

The society recommends these first aid procedures:

Blows to the eye: Apply cold compreses immediately, for 15 minutes; again each hour as needed to reduce pain and swelling. In case of discoloration or "black eye," which could mean internal damage to the eye see a doctor.

Chemical burns: Eye damage from chemical burns may be serious! In all cases of eye contact with chemicals, FLOOD the eye with water, continuously and gently, for at least 15 minutes. Hold the head under a faucet or pour water into the eye using any clean container. Keep the eye open wide during the flooding. Then see a doctor as quickly as possible. DO NOT use an eye cup or bandage the eye.

Cuts and punctures: Bandage the eye lightly and see a doctor at once. DO NOT wash out the eye with water to try to remove an object stuck in the eye.

Specks in the eye: Lift the upper eyelid outward and down over the lower lid and let tears wash out the speck or particle. DO NOT rub the eye. If it doesn't wash out — keep the eye closed, bandage it lightly and see a doctor.

For a free medicine cabinet sticker on "First Aid for Eye Emergencies" send a stamped self-addressed business envelope to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10016. Ask, too, for free information on eye safety for children.

MN. Ranks 4th In Supplying Pork Products

September 1 inventories of hogs and pigs in the 14 leading states show that Minnesota pork producers are continuing to strengthen their national ranking as the fourth highest supplier of pork products, agriculture commissioner, Mark Seetin reported recently.

Minnesota's September 1 count was 4.6 million hogs and pigs — an increase of 950,000 over a year ago, and the second highest boost in production; topped only by national champion Iowa with an increase of 1.1 million hogs and pigs.

During the first three quarters of the 1979 production and marketing year Minnesota pork producers also chalked up the nation's second highest increase in pig crop. The 6,022,000 pigs born between last December 1 and August 31 was a gain of 1,162,000 or 24 per cent higher than for the same period last year.

Minnesota's pig crop for the current production year ending November 30 could top the 8 million mark. During this final quarter the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service estimates 286,000 sows will be farrowing pigs. That is the same number of sows that delivered an average of 7.3 pigs per litter in each of the previous three quarters. It also reflects an increase of 45,000 sows compared to the last quarter of the 1978 Minnesota pork production year.

Among the nation's 14 leading states that account for about 86 per cent of the domestic hog and pig inventory, Minnesota's September 1 total represented over eight per cent. The breakdown also showed Minnesota in a tie with Missouri for the third highest carryover of breeding hogs, 760,000 for each state. That was an increase for Minnesota of 155,000 breeding hogs over a year ago, the biggest gain estimated for all states.

Gelene Peltier Named BPW's Woman of Year

who claim "we get along well together")

Mrs. Peltier has lived in Thief River Falls for almost 30 years. She has two children and three grandchildren. Her words, "I can't believe it" were her indication that help was needed to express her joyous feelings. Help came from Clarice Collins, who presented a short history of Gelene's life to all BPW members.

Gelene was born in Fisher and attended schools at Fisher and Crookston. She worked in Crookston before her marriage to Bill Peltier. They lived in Grand Forks while her husband attended the University of North Dakota. After moving to Thief River Falls, Gelene was bookkeeper for Goodman Electric, a company owned and operated by Bill and his father.

She attended the cosmetology school in Thief River Falls and upon graduating in 1967, worked at JoAnn Wedul's beauty shop until 1964, when she opened her own shop under the name of Gelene's Beauty shop. She held various offices in the Red River valley hairdressers and cosmetologists unit. She also was a dealer for Vivian Woodard cosmetics and Con-Stan' products.

Mrs. Peltier is an active member of the Christian Women's organization, holding office and giving of her time. Gelene spends much of her time helping and caring about other people. She has a special lady in her 80s, Anna Nyhagen, who lives in St. Hilaire, who is very close to Gelene. Gelene drives out to her home in the country, calls her frequently, and runs errands when necessary. Mrs. Nyhagen feels Gelene is a very special person.

Gelene is an active member of the Northwestern Hospital auxiliary and does much volunteer work. She was also an active American Legion auxiliary member. She has served on several committees on the BPW board, especially that of chairman of finance. She is a strong believer in God in whatever she does.

Feelings for Gelene were further expressed in a letter from Ruby Miller, who stated, "Gelene Peltier is a dear friend and has been one of my most faithful directors for 11 years."

During these years, she has attained many achievements from being elected several times to the corporation's royal court of honor and she has also won national awards for outstanding sales and management with Con-Stan international. Miller further stated that Gelene has been a consistent yearly trophy winner for high sales volume in her regional directorship.

"Gelene is well loved and admired by all her peers," Miller said. "In spite of many personal and family challenges, she has maintained her well being and strength and has overcome many obstacles due to her strong faith and belief in God. She is most deserving and would make a beautiful woman of the year."

The BPW organization that elected Gelene woman of the year began in 1944 in Owatonna, according to Jo Anne Wedul, charter member of the organization. The idea for the organization, however, originated in 1919 in the southern states, where it was more popular at that time. Carol Marx was the first organizer of the club. Her job was to get in touch with those business women interested in having a club of their own, she said. In the beginning, the club was very exclusive and the only women that could belong were those salaried women who had regular jobs. Today the organization is more liberal, Wedul said.

"Almost anyone can join," she said. "The main purpose of the organization is to serve as a teacher for women, and to act as a learning and education club."

The BPW club was organized to further the interests of working women, she said. The organization looks at the equal rights amendment and serves to enhance equal pay for equal work.

Marge Kiland, once a resident of Thief River Falls, was the organization's first president. The club had to have at least 12 members to start. Wedul, who joined the BPW organization in 1945, became president in 1948 and remained president for two years. The club is an international organization.

Gelene stated that, right now, there are approximately 50 members in the BPW organization in Thief River Falls.

"We should recruit more," she said.

A BOUQUET OF RED ROSES was given to Gelene Peltier Monday night at the Business and Professional Women's meeting at the Elks club in Thief River Falls when she was selected woman of the year. Gelene's daughter, Susan Walsberg, presented the bouquet to her mother. The gift was given to Gelene by her husband, Bill.

GELENE PELTIER was unable to find words to express her appreciation when she was awarded Woman of the Year during the regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women conducted Monday night at the Elks club in Thief River Falls.

Railroads in our Future

When I was growing up in Stearns county, railroads were truly part of the fabric of our lives. At the turn of the century my grandfather, at the age of 15, started a 50-year railroading career by laying track for the Great Northern. In those days it seemed inconceivable that railroads could ever fall from grace as the primary form of long-distance passenger transportation.

But, times change and the past three decades have witnessed a steady deterioration in the importance of passenger rail service. Inefficiency spread by over-regulation, massive public investment in other forms of transportation and the built-in limitations on railroad flexibility combined to decrease the demand for rail service. Falling demand, in turn, weakened railroad finances. Roadbeds went without maintenance and equipment went without necessary repairs and upgrading. Railroads became unable to compete with other forms of transportation.

This tragic situation might have spelled the end of the passenger railroad had it not been for a single, important development in our society — the onset of the "energy crisis."

The disappearance of cheap and plentiful energy supplies has brought about a dramatic resurrection in the importance of rail transportation. A well-patronized passenger train is far and away the most energy-efficient form of mass transportation. This will become more significant as future transit systems will be judged first on their ability to conserve energy.

Fortunately, the increase in the importance of railroads to our energy future has been coupled with an unprecedented increase in public support for rail passenger transportation. Since the beginning of the energy shortage, ridership on passenger trains has increased more dramatically than in any other period since the end of World War II. Minnesota's Hiawatha train, for example, had sold 96 per cent of its seats in advance for the last two weeks of July. The Empire Builder, the state's other Amtrak train, has been increasing its ridership by nearly 21 per cent per month. System-wide, Amtrak has turned away over three-quarters of a million passengers this year due to sold-out trains and flooded reservation lines. The most remarkable aspect of this increase in ridership is that it comes despite the deteriorated equipment and bad interconnections that have plagued Amtrak since its first days of operation.

The conclusion is inescapable that recent ridership improvements are just an example of the gains that could be generated if Amtrak were given the resources to modernize its equipment and repair deteriorating roadbeds.

Against this background of public support the Carter Administration's proposal for a 43 per cent cutback and Congress' decision to eliminate over one-fifth of the nation's rail passenger system are tragic, both for those who utilize the trains today and for the generations of Americans who will need them in the future. At a time when the nation is striving to promote alternatives to the automobile, it is difficult to defend a policy that cuts back our mass transportation options. Rather than reducing those options, we should be striving to build on the increasing popularity of the trains and to encourage added ridership and increased efficiency. The relatively small savings produced by the reductions will be more than offset by losses resulting from increased demand on scarce energy supplies, transfer payments made to laid off rail workers and loss of production in the various industries that support the passenger rail network. In contrast, investment in improving Amtrak's physical facilities could yield great dividends in employment, productivity and long-term energy efficiency. Actually, the real tragedy of the Amtrak reorganization is that it does nothing to address the fundamental problems plaguing the passenger rail system. It is just another reduction that lays the groundwork for continuing cutbacks.

So, despite its expression of support for the Amtrak system, the public is losing this year's fight because Congress and the administration ignored the message contained in the ridership statistics. Unless a lawsuit filed by the state of Minnesota and other parties changes the course of events, Minnesota will lose one east-to-west Amtrak line and will see reduced service on the second route.

Public support for the system will remain strong. Those few senators who have been fighting for an energy-efficient transportation system will continue their efforts. In the long run, I believe that public demand and sound transportation planning will restore Amtrak service. That will be my goal as long as I represent the people of Minnesota in the Senate.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says net farm income should reach about $30 billion this year, up from $27.9 billion last year.

To The Editor:

I am writing about a topic which I had not given any thought to until this past Sunday, when one of my family had to be taken to the hospital by ambulance. I realized then the need of a paramedic training program here in Thief River Falls.

Like most people, I am familiar with the paramedic rescue squad on TV. Those gallant heroes, who dash to the scene of an accident or other emergencies and with their life-saving techniques, save the lives of numerous people, who otherwise may have perished. So — you can imagine my surprise and utter dismay when the ambulance I had called arrived at our home to pick up one of my family members who was in very severe pain and I found out that these strong, capable and efficient looking young Emergency Medical Technicians (E.M.T.) did not have the training or license to administer any pain relieving medication or shots.

I did not realize until that moment that we do not have a paramedic rescue squad here in Thief River Falls; we only have the "E.M.T."

The EMT or the emergency medical technician program is a good start, but I think that there should be something done to advance the training of the young men who perform the vital service; after all, would it be feasible to expect a nurses' aide to assume the full responsibility of a registered nurse?

When the ambulance goes out on an emergency call, I'm sure that many times the life of that sick person or accident victim depends on how quick they are given the necessary emergency treatment.

Out there on the road or wherever, when every second counts, wouldn't it be reasonable to think that those ambulance drivers should be given every training possible to enable them to handle serious emergencies?

I realize that a paramedic training program would take a tremendous effort on somebody's part and a sizeable amount of money for transmitting equipment, but I think that with the excellent hospital board and medical staff that are in charge of Northwestern Hospital services and the clinic complex, along with our outstanding Chamber of Commerce, a great city council, a progressive planning committee, etc., and a mayor that one city of comparable size would give their eye teeth to have, could come up with a plan to put the paramedic training program in effect, if they had a mind to.

This may sound like sheer flattery, but I am sincere; I've seen some of the seemingly impossible things they have accomplished in the past and I know they go all out to make Thief River Falls one of the best.

When talking to some people in Crookston yesterday who would also like a paramedic training program there, I learned that the federal government is supposed to have set aside approximately $8 million for research into the paramedic training program (Sounds like a lot of money for "research," doesn't it?). Surely, there must be some way to channel some of that money into a training program here.

At the present time, most of the paramedic training programs are in the bigger city hospitals such as Minneapolis, Rochester, Duluth, etc., with Grand Forks in the process of setting up the program, but is that any sign that only the bigger hospitals are entitled to the program? And is our Thief River Falls hospital so small? Very few people realize that our hospital has approximately 200 beds right now. I would really like to see some sort of a plan put in effect to further this worthy cause.

Surely, there must be some person or organization with the knowledge and initiative to get this training program rolling. Who knows when you or I or some of the readers of your paper may desperately need the help of the paramedic squad.

There is another thing that I learned, too, in my little research episode and that is that of the few ambulance operators that are on duty at Northwestern hospital here, at least four of them have made application to United hospital in Grand Forks to take the paramedic training course and be employed there. It is really a shame that we may lose four capable and dedicated young men from our hospital ambulance crew here at Thief River Falls, and no doubt they will be very hard to replace.

Sincerely,
Mrs. L. Carpenter

Helping Our Small Business

The role of small business in the nation's economy and that of the Seventh District of Minnesota is equal in importance to the role played by our farmers. We are all dependent on their work and contributions to the local community, and if we are to maintain the benefits they afford, the development of new initiatives to build a better climate for small business should be seriously considered. The business community has been negatively impacted by increasing government regulations, escalating energy costs, and by higher operating costs caused by excessive inflation.

Small business is something we quite frequently take for granted. We hear more about big business and how it affects our lives, but the 14 million small businesses currently operating throughout the nation account for 96 per cent of all business. This important portion of the economy also provides 55 per cent of the jobs in the private sector, supports more than 100 million people, and produces 43 per cent of all business output.

In the State of Minnesota there are more than 82,000 businesses, with 98 per cent employing less than 100 people and 75 per cent employing less than 10 people.

Two important issues currently pending before Congress which relate directly to small business center on regulatory reform and special government grants for research and development.

The regulatory reform proposal, entitled the Smaller Enterprise Regulatory Improvement Act, would provide for new and special consideration of the needs of small business in the formulation of Federal regulations. Specifically, the legislation would require Federal agencies, whenever possible, to establish rules and regulations for small business and not just big business alone.

I am convinced that this type of regulatory reform would demonstrate a major step in the battle to relieve our neighborhood businesses of overburdening paperwork and unnecessary regulations. In 1977, Minnesota businesses spent approximately 143 million man-hours, at a cost of billions of dollars, to fill out over 4,400 Federally required forms, with that expense being passed on to consumers and further boosting our rate of inflation.

The House Small Business Committee is also studying the Small Business Innovation Research Act of 1979. This bill is designed to provide funds for small businesses to use for further research and development. Currently small businesses receive only 3½ per cent of the Federal research and development contract dollars which are made available.

In addition, the State of Minnesota was recently selected to be one of five states to develop a small business assistance program funded in part by the Small Business Administration. The $150,000 SBA contract is aimed at providing close direct access to business management help for small business people with emphasis being placed on marketing, insurance, accounting, personnel investment decisions and management strategies.

The small business community has always been the heart and soul of the free enterprise system, and I am determined to keep it that way. In the Seventh District I have established a Small business Advisory Committee to keep me informed on concerns facing the small business in our specific location of the country. These dedicated people deal every day with the problems that hinder and often prohibit this economic sector from being able to provide the kind of service which is needed. By working on the local level, with the State, and in Congress as a unified group, the business climate can be improved, thus benefiting all of us who are dependent on our local small business establishments.

Co-Op Month Cited By Ag Commissioner

October is an appropriate time to remember that it will take cooperation as well as innovation and conservation to solve the energy crisis, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin suggested recently.

This month marks the annual observance nationally of "Cooperative Month." It has a special significance for Minnesota because this state leads the nation in the number and volume of farm and consumer cooperative services.

"Cooperatives in Minnesota have a well established lead both in solving past problems and in implementing new and better ways of strengthening the farm and rural economy while at the same time helping to increase our standard of living.

"The energy crisis and its depressing economic impact represent an opportunity as well as a challenge for cooperative solutions. Our farm cooperatives heave already helped introduce renewable energy resources that we recognize by the term 'gasohol'," commissioner Seetin pointed out.

Acknowledging that present gasohol production and distribution is limited, Commissioner Seetin said that he is convinced that alcohol processed from agricultural and forestry commodities is one of the fuels of the future, at least for the farming industry.

"Some of the experts visualize that one day farm produced fuel alcohol will be picked up by tanker trucks for marketing and distribution of the farm suprlus, just as we have long been doing with route pickup of farm produced milk by our dairy cooperatives.

"Presently it is primarily individual farmers who are attempting to solve their own energy and financial problems by growing and processing their own renewable fuel. Perhaps as many as 200 Minnesota farmers are already in some stage of developing their own solar and renewable energy resources. Several new farm energy cooperatives are reported being formed in our region, part of a national agricultural movement toward energy independence.

"It is an exciting and growing movement, one I heartily enforse," declared Commissioner Seetin.

Methodists Take Stand On Issue Of Abortion

A request from the United Methodist bishop in Minneapolis has gone out to the more than 400 United Methodist clergy in this state asking that a Sunday in October be set aside to make parishioners aware of the church's position on abortion.

In a message prepared before he left for a two-month leave, Bishop Wayne K. Clymer wrote, "Many people are tired of hearing about this issue (abortion) which has divided so many communities and households. Unfortunately, this issue is not going to go away."

He urged the clergy to set aside either October 21 or October 28 to read the statement on abortion in the denomination's social principles.

United Methodist position on abortion is that "we recognize tragic conflicts of life with life that may justify abortion. We call all Christians to a searching and prayerful inquiry into the sorts of conditions which may warrant abortion. We support the legal option of abortion under proper medical procedures."

The week in October was selected by the bishop to coincide with abortion rights action week, October 22-28, a nationwide observance in support of the 1973 supreme court decision on abortion.

The aim of this week is to familiarize all United Methodists with the church's position on oabortion, to encourage and urge United Methodists to speak out in favor of existing rights and to help in putting together a network to take action against the threat of losing the legal option of abortion.

Rise In Egg Check Noted By Poultrymen

Egg production in Minnesota through August this year continued to be below 1978 by about six per cent but the state's poultry farmers are averaging about a 15 per cent higher gross "egg check" than last year due to favorable prices last winter and spring, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported recently.

He said that thus far this year consumers are playing only about three fourth of one cent more per egg than last year for the farm share of the price of Minnesota produced eggs.

Minnesota's egg production for the first eight months of 1979 is estimated at 115.7 million dozen, compared to the 122.9 million dozen production for that period last year.

Estimated farm wholesale value of this year's January through August egg production was $57 million, or an average market price of 49.3 cents per dozen. Minnesota's 1978 egg production for that period was worth $49.4 million or an average of 40.2 cents a dozen.

Commissioner Seetin noted that August egg prices paid to Minnesota producers had dropped to 44 cents per dozen, the lowest monthly price since October 1978. In mid-September the Minnesota farm egg price has recovered to 47.5 cents per dozen, or just under 4 cents per egg.

Traffic Deaths In 1979 Down 15 Per Cent

Minnesota traffic deaths in the first nine months of 1979 were running about 15 per cent below the same period last year, announced Commissioner John P. Sopsic of the Minnesota Department of Public Safety.

Traffic crashes killed 595 persons from January through September this year, compared to 703 who died in the first nine months of 1978, according to preliminary figures for both years. The 1979 preliminary figure could change within the next three months as later reports of deaths arrive. For example, the final nine-month toll for 1978 was 728 deaths, an increase of 25 over the preliminary figure.

Preliminary figures for January-September 1979 show pedestrian deaths were 74, bicyclists were 11, moped deaths were 1, and motorcyclist deaths were 90. Final figures of 1978 showed pedestrian deaths were 115, bicycle deaths were 23, and motorcyclist deaths were 107.

The 90 fatal motorcycle fatalities occurring so far this year have already surpassed the yearly totals for every year to 1977, which was the year the law requiring helmets was repealed.

"Minnesota Vehicle Crash Facts" show that cycle riders are five times more likely to die and three and one-half times more likely to suffer serious injuries than persons in any other motor vehicle.

According to Commissioner Sopsic, if good weather continues through October allowing the use of motorcycles, it is expected that motorcycle accidents and fatalities will continue to rise and quite possibly exceed the all-time high fatality record for 1978.

"The best accident protection available to motorists is for every driver to practice good driving habits," said Sopsic. "Stay within the 55 mile per hour speed limit, use safety belts, take an occasional rest break and don't drink while driving."

Near Normal Flow Achieved By Beekeepers

Prolonged blooming of clover crops and sharply increased sunflower acreage helped Minnesota commercial beekeepers achieve near normal honey production this year despite the short, cool and wet growing season, Agriculture Commissioner Mark Seetin recently reported.

Minnesota's 1979 commercial honey flow is estimated at 12.5 million pounds, only one per cent below the 1978 honey crop and again fifth highest in the nation.

Average production per colony for Minnesota's 125,000 commercial bee colonies this season was 100 pounds of honey. That was third highest among the 20 leading honey states and far above the national average of 74.1 pounds of honey per colony. Neighboring North Dakota, the nation's leading sunflower producing state, had the second highest average yield per colony this season, 118 pounds of honey, and moved into the national lead in honey production by commercial colonies with an estimated crop totaling nearly 21.5 million pounds.

Most of Minnesota's commercial honey production is harvested by bees from blooming clover hay crops. This season's cool and wet weather prolonged that blooming period significantly.

Sunflowers are becoming increasingly important in honey production in Minnesota and North Dakota. This year these two national leading states planted 4.86 million acres of sunflowers, an 85 per cent increase over 1978, and topped for the first time the alfalfa and clover hay acreage for the two states estimated at 4.12 million acres.

Neighboring states that have no yet moved far into sunflower production reported 1979 honey yields per colony well below those of North Dakota and Minnesota. South Dakota, the third leading state both in sunflower and hay acreage, reported harvesting 83 pounds of honey per colony, Wisconsin 73 pounds, and Iowa 80 pounds.

According to Northland community college head football coach Irv Smith, the Northmen have reached one of their primary goals this year — to be competitive. But like anyone that has had a taste of success, he's still not satisfied.

With a 2-4 record going into the final three weeks of the 1979 season that will present the Northmen with their toughest competition in the likes of Bismarck, Golden Valley Lutheran and Crookston, it's possible that Northland may not be able to better last year's 2-6 finish. In fact, with a ninth game — Bismarck — the Northmen could actually wind up with a poorer record.

However, it's obvious that Northland is a much better football team this fall, the fourth year of intercollegiate football at the school. A year ago Northland lost to Vermilion 26-0, Itasca 35-12, Brainerd 28-6 and Mesabi 47-7. This year the Northmen still lost to those teams, but by much closer scores: Vermilion 10-0, Itasca 14-13 and Brainerd 32-28.

"One of our goals this year was to be competitive," explained Smith. "We were getting blown off the field before with little chance of victory. We've been in every game this year."

The problem, though, is that with a much-publicized recruiting effort that brought in a large freshman class was expected to make the Northmen instant title contenders in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division. But while making Northland competitive, the 45-or-so freshmen also make the Northmen one of the youngest teams in the league. And even in a two-year situation like the MJCAA, experience is a valuable commodity — something the Northmen just don't have.

"I suspect we're a year ago," admitted Smith. "I think that year of maturity really helps. We've only got two or three sophomores that play. I think there's a thing about confidence and familiarity that a sophomore has. Every team we've played has been using sophomores against us. It makes a difference."

Smith expects to have a sizeable group of sophomores on hand in 1980. Northland started the 1979 season with about 60 players. That number is now 47, with five players sidelined because of injuries. Using 50 per cent as a normal attrition rate for a two-year athletic program — which is more likely high than low — Smith can expect to have somewhere in the neighborhood of 22 sophomores on hand next fall.

Chances that Northland will better last year's 2-6 record, which matched an inaugural 2-6 campaign in 1976 and was sandwiched around an 0-8 finish in 1977, are not particularly good.

"We're going into the tough part of our schedule now," admits Smith. "I think we're capable of beating all three, but it's going to be tough. Bismarck, Golden Valley and Crookston all have very good football teams."

NWAC Champion Will Be On The Road

Northwest Athletic Conference football champion will begin post-season Class A playoff competition Sat., Nov. 3, on the road, it was announced this week by Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith. Thief River Falls, with wins over East Grand Forks tonight (Wednesday) and Crookston on Fri., Oct. 26, could be that NWAC representative.

A first round Class A qualifying game will be played Tues., Oct. 30, between champions from the Seaway and Mid-State conferences. The game will be played at the site of the Seaway Conference winner, with Two Harbors having a lock on that title. There's currently a four-way first place tie in the Mid-State Conference between Detroit Lakes, Aitkin, Park Rapids and Crosby-Ironton.

Second playoff round, and the actual quarterfinal start of the Class A competition, will have the Northwest Athletic Conference champion on the road against the Seaway vs. Mid-State winner because the MSHSL format says the game will be played at the site of the eastern-most school. And that game will be an afternoon contest starting at 1:30.

Miscellaneous

+ Tom Zieman, a one-time Lincoln high school golfer who graduated from International Falls high school, was medalist in the recent Northern Intercollegiate Conference (NIC) golf meet at Houghton, Mich. Zieman, a member of the Bemidji State University golf team, fired a 36-hole total of 149 to edge Tom Heinen of St. Cloud by one stroke. "I was kind of back in the pack after the first day, but the second day I had back-to-back birdies on the ninth and tenth holes and another birdie later to shoot a 73," said Zieman, a sophomore.

Prowlers Put Title Hopes On Line Tonight

Northwest Conference

	NWAC w	NWAC l	All w	All l
Crookston	2	0	4	3
Bemidji	2	1	6	1
Thief River Falls	1	1	3	4
Fergus Falls	1	2	3	4
East Grand Forks	0	2	4	3

It's a do-or-die situation tonight (Wednesday) for the Lincoln high school football team as the Prowlers travel to East Grand Forks for 7:30 p.m. Northwest Athletic Conference game against the Green Wave.

Beaten by Fergus Falls 28-22 Friday, Thief River Falls finds itself in a must-win situation tonight at East Grand Forks if the Prowlers want to keep their NWAC championship hopes alive. Now 3-4 for the year and 1-1 in the NWAC, Thief River Falls can win a share of the 1979 conference title and gain a post-season Class A state playoff berth with wins over East Grand Forks and Crookston. The Prowlers host the Pirates in the regular season finale Fri., Oct. 26.

"We had the good fortune to be in a situation where we could lose to Fergus Falls or East Grand Forks and still win the conference and go to the playoffs," noted Thief River Falls head coach Gene Jurgens. "We used up that option in a hurry. We had to win the Crookston game either way."

East Grand Forks actually owns a better record than Thief River Falls, but the 4-3 Green Wave mark includes a title-eliminating 0-2 NWAC log. East Grand Forks owns wins over Grand Forks Central 16-6, Staples 39-6, Detroit Lakes 27-16 and Grafton 15-7. The Green Wave lost to Grand Forks Red River 25-16, Crookston 22-6 and Bemidji 33-8 last week when Bemidji totaled 601 yards on offense despite the fact the Lumberjacks fumbled six times.

Thief River Falls also fumbled six times last week, losing five of them, in a poor performance at Fergus Falls.

"The kids realize they didn't play well," mentioned Jurgens. "We hurt ourselves as much as Fergus Falls did. Fergus Falls did not stop us one time; we stopped ourselves every time."

"There are no ifs, ands or buts this week," said Jurgens. "We have to win this one. We feel we're capable of doing it, but we have to go out and get it done. Fumble the ball six times again this week and I'm sure the outcome will be the same. Bemidji fumbled six times against them and still won, but I don't think we can afford the luxury."

The early game this week presents Thief River Falls with some problems because the Prowlers have been hit by the injury bug. Four starters are expected to miss tonight's game, including wide receiver-defensive back Jim Thompson, listed as doubtful; offensive guard-linebacker Brian Ranum, a definite no; offensive back-defensive back Dave Odegaard, listed as questionable; and tackle Wayne Huseth, like Ranum, a definite no-show. All four have some type of leg injury. An extra two days would have found Odegaard back in uniform for sure and would have made Thompson a probable performer.

NWAC Cross Country Title Won By Jacks

Bemidji, paced by the one-two finish of Ron Wolfe and Brian Kraft, was an easy winner Tuesday in the 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference cross country meet held at Fergus Falls.

The Lumberjacks were tagged with only 24 points, followed by East Grand Forks with 67, Thief River Falls 68, Fergus Falls 101 and Crookston 113.

Wolfe and Kraft covered the three-mile course in 15:37 and 15:38, respectively. Thief River Falls sophomore Bruce Johnson was third in 16:30, followed by Dave Lee of East Grand Forks 16:34 and Kevin Morey of Fergus Falls 16:37 in the top five.

"Bruce had a very good time," said Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann. "It was an excellent race for him."

The Prowlers' Greg Ness was 11th in the 35-runner field in 17:16; Bob Fitzgerald was 16th in 17:55; and Mark Broadwell was 20th in 18:10.

"I was very pleased," mentioned McGann. "I didn't think we'd finish where we did."

Bemidji was also a winner in the junior varsity race with 17 points. Thief River Falls was a distant second with 113 points and Crookston had 138. East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls fielded incomplete teams.

Todd Broadwell paced the Thief River Falls junior varsity runners with a 14th place 18:45 effort. Kevin Kezar was 16th in 18:51.

Impressive Spuds Beat LHS Volleyball Team 2-0

Sharon Stauss figures her Lincoln high school volleyball team faced a state champion Tuesday as the Prowlers lost a 2-0 decision to Moorhead.

"They looked good, didn't they?" began the coach of the Prowlers moments after the unbeaten Spuds completed their 18-4, 18-12 sweep. "That's the best I've ever seen them look. If they don't win the state tournament. . ."

Moorhead dominated play from the outset in the first game, rolling up an 11-0 lead before Thief River Falls' Stacy Ehrenstrom finally served a point for the Prowlers.

Facing Moorhead reserves, Thief River Falls battled gamely in the second start, trailing only 15-12 at one point following an Ehrenstrom spike.

Moorhead's impressive showing was highlighted by an offense that featured fakes and screens at the net that are rarely seen in this area of the state.

"I've gone to four state tournaments," explained Stauss, "and I've never seen a high school team use that multiple offense like Moorhead did tonight."

The victory raised the Spuds' record to 13-0 and makes them the obvious favorite when they host the 1979 Region 8AA North Half volleyball tournament November 3 and 8. The Prowlers are 11-7 overall.

"Our kids were outclassed," admitted Stauss. "But they had a lot of heart and they played hard."

Moorhead was an 18-4, 18-4 junior varsity winner, dropping Thief River Falls' B squad record to 7-5.

Thief River Falls closes out its regular season schedule next week when the Prowlers host Crookston Tuesday and travel to East Grand Forks Thursday.

Ose, Lincoln Sophomores Beat Central

Tom Ose scored three touchdowns Monday as the unbeaten Lincoln high school sophomore football team ran its record to 5-0 with a 26-6 win over Grand Forks Central on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

It was an 8-0 game for the first half as Ose scored on a five-yard first quarter run and Kent Kainz added the two-point conversion.

In the third quarter Ose went in from the six and Dan Odegaard scored from the 12, with Ose adding the conversion points.

The score mounted to 26-0 in the fourth quarter when Ose broke loose on a 60-yard touchdown run.

Thief River Falls will close out its 1979 sophomore football season Monday with a 4:30 p.m. game at Bemidji.

Freshmen End Season 0-7

A winless 1979 season began the same way it started for the Lincoln high school freshman football team Tuesday as Thief River Falls lost a 32-8 decision to a Crookston team that beat Lincoln 30-12 to open the schedule back on Sept. 13.

Thief River Falls, trailing 20-8 at halftime, got on the scoreboard in the second quarter when Kerry Wollin passed 60 yards to Lon Aune and then passed to Jeff Milender for the conversion points.

The 0-7 Thief River Falls season also included losses to Grand Forks Schroeder 22-0, Bemidji 14-6 in overtime, East Grand Forks 26-16, Grand Forks South 22-0 and Grand Forks Valley 14-12.

Northland-At-Bismarck-Saturday . . .

Northmen Are Concerned About Defense, Penalties

Eliminating penalities will be a major Northland community college objective this week when the Northmen play a 2 p.m. football game at Bismarck Junior college.

The Northmen, 2-4 for the year, have been accumulating penalties and penalty yardage at a disturbing pace — 68 for 626 yards in six games, including 17 for 145 yards in a 32-28 loss at Brainerd last week.

"We're killing ourselves," admitted Northland coach Irv Smith. "It's frustrating to put your whole heart and soul into it like the kids have been doing and then beating yourself. Penalties just flat out lost the game for us at Brainerd."

Saturday's trip to Bismarck is the only nonconference game of the season for the Northmen who close out the year against Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division foes Golden Valley Lutheran Oct. 27 and Crookston Nov. 3.

As usual, Bismarck, as a two-year school competing in the four-year North Dakota College Athletic Conference (NDCAC), is struggling. Winless in five NDCAC starts,

Northern Division

	w	l
Golden Valley Lutheran	6	0
Mesabi	4	1
Itasca	3	2
Crookston	3	2
Vermilion	2	3
Hibbing	2	3
Northland	2	4
Brainerd	2	4
Fergus Falls	0	5

Bismarck has lost to Dickinson 3-0, Jamestown 41-7, Minot 51-7, Wahpeton 31-0 and Valley City 28-0 last week. But Dickinson, Jamestown and Valley City are all NAIA nationally ranked teams and Bismarck opened the 1979 season with a 33-2 rout of MJCAA member Crookston.

"They're a two-year school in a four-year conference," said Smith. "I'm sure they'd do well in our conference. They're going to be tough."

In addition to the panalities, which Smith says, are the difference between being 2-4 or 4-2, the Northland coach staff is also fretting about a defensive breakdown that could not protect a 13-0 lead in a 14-13 loss to Itasca two weeks ago and then surrendered 32 points — more than the Northmen had given up in four previous games combined — at Brainerd.

"We're concerned about our defense," confirmed Smith. "We've had two ball games where we didn't play as well as we had in the past."

Loss of standout defensive tackle Jeff Reese, a freshman from Hallock, to a knee injury at Brainerd, certainly won't help the Northland defense. He may be back to play against Golden Valley Lutheran when the nationally ranked Royals visit Thief River Falls next week.

While the coaches worry themselves about the penalties and defense, the offense — although guilty of most of the penalties — has jelled with the installation of the I-formation and it's variations. The Northmen collected 312 yards against Brainerd and had 255 against Itasca. Tailback Mike Cowart has benefited from the switch to the I from the veer, evidenced by his 193 yards against the Vikings and 162 against the Red Raiders. He's carried 74 times in the last two games.

In MJCAA Northern Division action this week, Brainerd will be at Vermilion, Hibbing at Mesabi, Golden Valley Lutheran at Itasca and Fergus Falls at Crookston.

Last week, Crookston beat Hibbing 27-7, Golden Valley Lutheran drilled Fergus Falls 41-0 and Mesabi shut out Vermilion 13-0.

LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL senior Kathy Walker tapped the ball over the net, forcing Moorhead's Laura Sagen to come up with a play during Tuesday's volleyball match played in Thief River Falls. The Spuds were 2-0 winners, 18-3, 18-12.

Post-Season Playoff Spots Being Filled

As the high school football season heads into its final two weeks of regular season play the post-season playoff pairings schedule in each of the five classes is becoming more clear, reports Larry Larson, director of information and publication for the Minnesota State High School League.

Less than one-fourth of the state's 498 teams are still in contention for this year's eighth annual state football playoffs, which will find eight teams entered in each of those five classifications — AA, A, B, C and nine-man divisions.

State playoffs will begin with quarterfinal play November 2 followed by semi-final and championship games the next two weeks. Sites for all games will be announced when qualifying teams are known. There will be a number of qualifying games between conference champions leading up to those state playoff outings.
